

Woman Is Likely Choice For Cabinet Post

ATLANTA (AP) — Pushing to complete his cabinet by Christmas, President-elect Carter is announcing at least four cabinet-level choices this week. For the first time in history, a woman is likely to be commerce secretary.

Carter scheduled a nationally broadcast news conference today to announce the names of meet with Dunlop today at the Georgia governor's mansion where Carter spent the night after interviewing prospective appointees Monday.

This was the second Carter-Dunlop meeting in two weeks. The prospect of Dunlop's nomination has drawn protest from some women's groups and representatives of minorities sador to the United Nations, though Young earlier said he wanted to stay in Congress rather than join the Carter administration.

Vice President-elect Walter F. Mondale participated in Monday's interview sessions without speaking to reporters. Mondale has had little to say in public since he criticized major steel producers for raising prices during a Georgia visit two weeks ago.

Carter also was to meet during the day with representatives of the National Association of County Officials, the National League of Cities and the U.S. Conference of Mayors, as well as the Council on Full Employment headed by Coretta Scott King.

The President-elect was returning to his home in Plains following the news conference. Jody Powell, Carter's press secretary, said he expected Carter to hold another news conference there later in the week, probably Thursday, to announce more appointments.

Carter previously announced his selection of Cyrus Vance, a Wall Street lawyer, to be secretary of state and of Thomas B. Lance, an Atlanta banker, to be his budget director.

His Bail Upped To $50,000

A man free on $5,000 bond on a burglary charge had his bail jacked up to $50,000 when he showed up in Berrien Fifth court Monday on a second breaking and entering charge.

Judge John T. Hammond set the $50,000 bond on Eugene Crawford, 49, who was arrested early Sunday by state police on a charge of breaking and entering Mr. Dee's Market at Harbor. Crawford demanded examination on the charge during arraignment yesterday.

Crawford at the time was free on $5,000 bond and awaiting circuit court appearance on a charge of breaking and entering Ed's O'Casey, Columbia township, on Aug. 26, according to Trooper Donald Beck.

When arrested in August, Crawford's address was listed at 963 Pipestone street, Benton Harbor. The booking sheet after his arrest Sunday gives an address of 1665 Pearl street, Fairplain.

Nuclear Engineers Tell Of Pressure, Blackballing

By STAN BENJAMIN

WASHINGTON (AP) — A federal agency suppressed safety questions about nuclear power plants and blackballed engineers who raised them, according to an engineer for the Nuclear Regulatory Commission.

The charge, stated in an interview and implied in public testimony Monday, was in effect denied by NRC officials. They said there were "communications problems" and personality conflicts within the agency responsible for public safety in the licensing of nuclear power.

Engineer Demetrios Basdekas and four other present and past NRC engineers testified to the contrary in a hearing conducted by Sen. John Glenn, D-Ohio. They said unnamed NRC supervisors disregarded or suppressed their efforts to raise unresolved safety issues — not immediate public hazards, but design problems which, in some cases, have already caused worrisome reactor malfunctions.

"We don't want to make the near-misses of the past the accidents of the future," said Basdekas.

The engineers' boss, Ben Rusche, NRC director of nuclear reactor regulation, said management and personnel problems were being corrected and that safety questions were given full consideration, contrary to the charges of the dissident engineers.

Rusche said the electrical, instrumentation and control systems branch, where four of the engineers worked, was reorganized last week to relieve "personality clashes" between engineers and supervisors.

In the process, Basdekas and another dissenter, Evangelo Marinou, were transferred out of their jobs as power plant design reviewers.

Asked why, Rusche later said in an interview that they had requested transfers about a year ago. He declined to provide details but indicated they were dissatisfied at failing to receive promotions.

Rusche testified that the transfers were not retaliatory. Basdekas, however, scoffed angrily at Rusche's explanation

Five Icy Deaths Reported

DETROIT (AP) — Five persons have frozen to death in Detroit in the last five days, police said Monday.

The first four deaths apparently were accidental, officials said. In the fifth, the cold weather was used as a homicide weapon.

The body found Monday was that of a man bounded and gagged and left with only a t-shirt. He froze to death before he was discovered.

Police said the 55-year-old man whose body was found Thursday had not been seen in several days, and that there was no heat in his upstairs flat. His frozen body was found inside the front door.

Friday's victim was found in an alley. Police identified him from a nameband hooked around his wrist.

A 57-year-old man was found outside Saturday in the downtown area. He had removed his coat, which police found lying by his feet.

Police said Sunday's victim was found on railroad tracks. They said the man apparently died of acute alcohol intoxication before he froze.

Police said only "three or four" people froze to death last winter. So far this season, temperatures have averaged as much as 10 degrees below the normal 29 to 31 for this time of year, the National Weather Service says.

Blumenthal-- A $60 Start, Then Success

By MICHAEL L. GRACYK

SOUTHFIELD, Mich. (AP) — W. Michael Blumenthal, who appears to have the inside track as Jimmy Carter's Secretary of the Treasury, exemplifies the rags to riches theory. The 50-year-old chairman of Bendix Corp., a billion-dollar diversified manufacturing firm headquartered near Detroit, is a German-born naturalized American whose family fled to Shanghai, China to escape the Nazis in 1939. But they wound up being imprisoned by the Japanese during World War II. "I feel strongly about a person having no say because I had a lot of experience with that sort of thing myself," he said recently.

Blumenthal came to the U.S. in 1947 with $80 in his pocket. "Once I made it to this country, people I met didn't care who my father was, what his income was," he said. "When I told them that I had just arrived here, they usually would say, 'Gee, that's great.'" Blumenthal, who did not finish high school, graduated Phi Beta Kappa with a major in international finance from the University of California at Berkeley. He worked his way through the university, holding at least 25 different jobs, ranging from janitor to truck driver.

After earning a masters degree in public administration from Princeton University, he won his doctoral degree in economics and took a faculty job at Princeton in 1954. Three years later he left the school to become vice president of the Crown Cork International Corp., a firm with several foreign subsidiaries which produced bottle caps. "It was my first experience in business life and I learned a lot," he recalled. His work attracted the attention of then-presidential candidate John F. Kennedy, who eventually named him to the post of deputy assistant secretary of state for economic affairs. In 1963, he moved "technically out of the State Department and into the White House," where he headed a special foreign trade delegation which completed and signed an international trade package known as the Kennedy round.

He left public service in 1967 to become president of Bendix International. Five years later, he was named board chairman at Bendix, the nation's 70th largest firm, according to the Fortune list of the top 500 companies in America.

Within Bendix, his philosophy is "people before profits. It relates to a philosophy of working with and through people," he said. "Above all, people here don't feel forgotten. It is not I who sits around and gives orders. We work as a team." And while his is a team approach, he says, "The person at the top sets the tone. There is no such thing as being relatively more honest in one aspect of life than another."

Blumenthal is married and has two children.

Death Still Desire Of Gilmore?

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Gary Gilmore, said to be "very happy" that the U.S. Supreme Court lifted its stay of his execution, broke his 25-day hunger strike after hearing the news.

But an obstacle of his own making stood between the convicted murderer and the firing squad — his bid for freedom on a legal technicality.

Attorney Ronald Stanger said he would file a further action today in connection with last week's request for his client's freedom under a state law requiring that executions be carried out no later than 60 days after sentencing.

A lieutenant at the Utah State Prison said Gilmore, who had refused solid food since Nov. 19 because he was prevented from contacting his girlfriend, ate an orange and two cheese and luncheon sandwiches just before midnight. He later had an apple and some milk.

The lieutenant said he didn't know why Gilmore had ended his fast, but he said the prisoner had still not talked with his girlfriend, Nicole Barrett. She was confined to a mental institution following their attempted double suicide last month.

Gilmore, who has consistently said he preferred speedy death to a life in prison, said in his request for a writ of habeas corpus last week that Utah officials had to free him because they failed to execute him within the required 60-day period.

That period expired on Dec. 6, the day Gilmore, 35, was to have died for killing a Provo motel clerk during a robbery last July.

But the high court stayed the execution on Dec. 3 so it could consider whether to hear an appeal of the sentence by Gilmore's invalid mother, Bessie, of Milwaukie, Ore.

In voting 5 to 4 to lift its stay Monday, the Supreme Court returned the case to the 8th District Court in Provo, where Gilmore was first sentenced. The high court said it was satisfied that Gilmore knew what he was doing when he accepted his condemnation to death.

But three dissenting justices said the key issue was whether

Now Hear This---Winter Hasn't Started Yet!

People in many sections of the country may shake their heads in disbelief, but the depressing fact is that winter has not yet officially begun. It will not do so until 12:36 p.m. Eastern Standard Time on Tuesday, Dec. 21, when the sun will reach its most southerly point in northern skies. The daylight hours of Dec. 21 will be a few seconds shorter than the 10 days or so before and after the date.

Winter temperatures arrived weeks ago in the eastern half of the country, and the outlook is for more of the same. Atlanta's average temperature of 56.2 degrees in November, snow had fallen in New England, western New York, Tennessee, New Mexico, and Indiana. Heavy snow accumulation in Buffalo stranded commuters and discouraged others from even attempting to get to work.

According to the National Weather Service, colder-than-normal weather is in store for the South, the southern Great Plains and the Ohio Valley from December through February. The Pacific Northwest, the California Coast and the northern Great Plains can expect temperatures somewhat milder than normal. But the Weather Service cautions that such long-range forecasts carry no more than a 60-40 chance of being accurate.

While the winter solstice is a curse to some, it is a blessing to others. In the southern hemisphere, Dec. 21 will mark the first day of summer. Thus, travelers who can't abide chilly weather and have sufficient money can journey southward with the sun for a respite from winter's gloom.

More Must Work To Pay All Those Taxes

Economists have been noting for some months what appear to be basic changes occurring in the American work force. The major change noted is that a higher percentage of the population is entering the labor market.

The November employment figures show the trend continuing. A record 88 million Americans were working in November, an increase of 357,000 from October. But the unemployed also grew by 200,000 during the month, increasing the unemployment rate to 8.1 per cent.

What the combined figures indicate is that about 600,000 more Americans became available for employment in the month of November. Approximately two-thirds found jobs, the other third did not.

For a population which is nearly stable, that was a large influx into the labor force for a single month. It is a pattern, however, which has shown up repeatedly in recent years.

Has anyone suggested it takes more people at work to pay our ever-increasing taxes?

Zoning May Be Way To Control Pornography

Frustrated in their efforts to stamp out pornography, cities across the country are making use of their zoning powers to control the spread of sex-related business establishments. Boston attacked the problem by confining X-rated movies and bookstores, strip-tease bars and similar establishments to a two-block downtown area known as the "Combat Zone." Detroit, on the other hand, enacted ordinances aimed at dispersing adult theaters and bookstores.

Both approaches have been sanctioned by the U.S. Supreme Court. Affirming the constitutionality of the Detroit ordinances in a decision handed down last June, the court held: "The city's general zoning laws require all motion picture theaters to satisfy certain locational as well as other requirements; we have no doubt that the municipality may control the location of theaters as well as the location of other commercial establishments, either by confining them to certain specified commercial zones or by requiring that they be dispersed throughout the city."

The court declined to appraise the respective merits of concentration and dispersal. "In either case," it ruled, "the city's interest in attempting to preserve the quality of urban life is one that must be accorded high respect. Moreover, the city must be allowed a reasonable opportunity to experiment with solutions to admittedly serious problems."

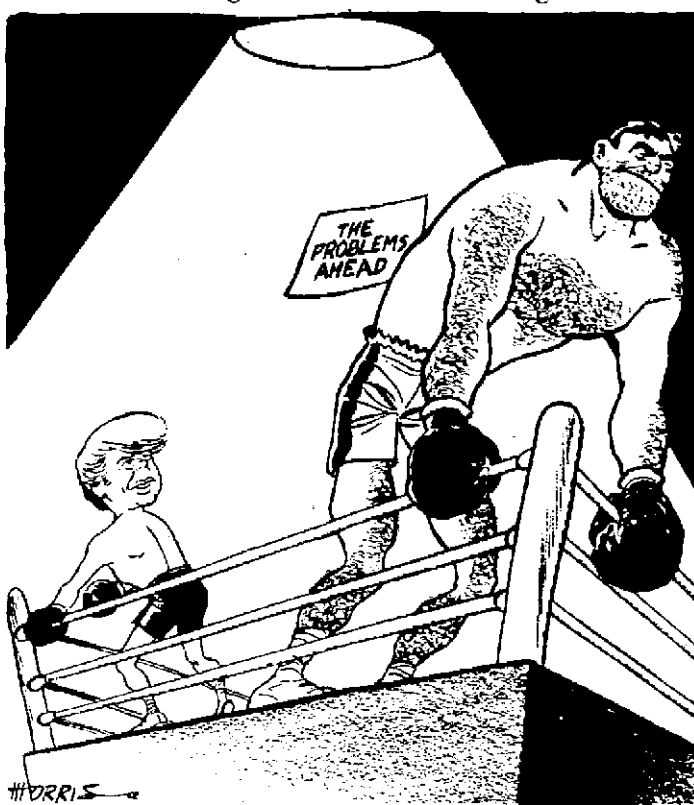

Many Bostonians now feel their city chose the wrong solution in creating the Combat Zone. In a report released Nov. 8, the police department's special investigation unit alleged "corruption and/or incompetence" on the part of officers assigned to the district in which the zone is situated. A week later, two Harvard football players were stabbed in the Combat Zone and an off-duty state trooper suffered a fatal heart attack after being injured during a fight in the area.

A police crackdown followed. "The heat's on and most of the hookers are moving out of the Combat Zone," a police official said, "but there's an army of them and they're plying their trade in the fringe areas just outside the zone itself." Suffolk County District Attorney Garrett H. Byrne declared "There is no way of containing this Combat Zone," which he described as "a dirty place which is there to make the wrong people rich."

The Detroit ordinances upheld by the Supreme Court do not empower the city to order the closing of "adult" theaters and bookstores. Instead, they stipulate that new operations must be at least 1,000 feet from similar existing enterprises. Moreover, the owners of new establishments must obtain the consent of 51 per cent of the people living or doing business within 500 feet of the proposed establishment. The overall effect of the ordinances is to protect neighborhoods from deterioration caused by a flood of undesirable businesses.

New York City is now considering a zoning proposal modeled on the Detroit plan. It would ban "massage parlors" anywhere in the city and permit only small numbers of sex-related businesses in the Times Square area and elsewhere. If the proposal is adopted and actual leads to a cleanup of Times Square, other cities no doubt would conclude that control through dispersal is the most effective way of combating commercialized sex.

Growth Or No Growth Is Decision For Baroda

Editor,

I would like to direct my questions and comments to the citizens of Baroda and the problems of our community.

First of all, I respect the opinions of those who differ from mine. You have a right to express your opinions as some of you have already done. I also have that right.

The trailer park under construction is not the most wonderful event that will ever come to Baroda. It will not, in itself, be the sole deciding factor in preventing further deterioration of the business district. By the same token, neither will it be the terrible calamity for the town that some people have tried to present. Very possibly it will have both advantages and disadvantages.

However, it is not the real issue. I feel that Baroda may have a more serious and disturbing problem. The controversy over the park has merely brought it to the surface.

At a recent village council meeting one citizen raised the question of whether we really want growth.

It is obvious by that very question that this person does not.

Citizens of Baroda, do the majority of you feel the same way? Does this mean that all future growth of any kind must his retirement my husband's father and my husband operated the same service station under lease for over 20 years, making a total of nearly 25 years of operation in Baroda. Now we are faced with having to purchase our building and property to continue operating, or possibly doing business elsewhere.

The State of Michigan with all their recent legislation and revised taxation has made it nearly impossible for the small business to survive. In order to make a substantial permanent investment, a business must be able to increase, or declare bankruptcy.

It would be foolish for us to make a permanent investment to stay in business in a community whose people are turning their backs on our plight; in fact, resenting us completely.

It is difficult not to be discouraged trying to comply with State and Federal regulations and taxes. Without the moral support of our local people, there is no hope whatsoever.

Citizens of Baroda, Larry and I have to know how you feel. If the majority of you are against progress of any kind, it would be better that we know it now, before we make the terrible mistake of deciding to stay in a town that wants to die.

Unknown Lawyer Called--Nessen

WASHINGTON (AP) — An unknown lawyer who phoned the White House to ask about a possible presidential pardon for Spiro Agnew was routinely referred to a Justice Department pardon attorney, Press Secretary Ron Nessen says.

Nessen said Monday he didn't know if the lawyer represented Agnew, who resigned as vice president on Oct. 10, 1973, then pleaded no contest to income tax evasion charges.

Agnew has already denied he sought a pardon from President Ford.

Ray Cromley

Pick Brilliance?

WASHINGTON — For 10 years, Wilfred J. McNeil was comptroller of the Defense Department. By his careful watch over spending, his detailed study of military programs, he bolstered efficiency and economy in this sprawling agency. I would venture to say that in his tenure this man alone saved you and me billions of dollars which would otherwise have been wasted. Nothing slipped by his eagle eye.

McNeil left the Pentagon in 1959. The organization chart was not changed. There have been six comptrollers since his time, all in the same location in the paper hierarchy. There has not been another McNeil.

Most recent presidents have made much of reorganization. They have prepared detailed plans of great complexity. There have been some small successes and many large failures.

The point I make with McNeil is the men a president picks for critical posts in his government determines how efficient — or wasteful — that government will be.

The failures of the seven presidents I have watched in action come not from misorganization of the federal government, sloppy and haphazard as it is.

Rather the failures have come because these presidents have not had the will or wisdom to appoint great minds to their cabinets, and outstanding men and women to the number one, two and three slots in each major agency.

No president can possibly be sufficiently wise or knowledgeable to handle all major problems he faces. Even when he has the facts fed him by advisers.

What he needs is the daily give and take with tremendous minds. Think back if you will. In the last 30 years how many great men have been members of any cabinet? Then recall earlier periods.

Thomas Jefferson, John Marshall, James Madison, Daniel Webster, John C. Calhoun, William Seward, Edmund Randolph were Secretaries of State.

Alexander Hamilton, Albert Gallatin, William McAdoo and Andrew Mellon were Secretaries of the Treasury.

Harlan Stone and Roger B. Taney were Attorneys General. James Monroe and Elihu Root were Secretaries of War.

It may be that today men of great stature won't consider cabinet posts. But I think the problem may be simpler. Great men would upstage a president, at times edge him out of the spotlight.

Presidents, being politicians, wouldn't like that. Few men in the business are comfortable surrounded by minds more brilliant than their own.

In the main, men who succeed to the presidency have large egos. They have run the race because they like to command. Even the best tend to surround themselves with men and women they can control — or dominate.

But think what a 1977 president could accomplish if he had a cabinet of modern Jeffersons, Hamiltons, McAdoos, John Marshalls, William Seward, Harlan Stones, Elihu Roots. They would stir things up as Washington has not been stirred up for more than a century.

Mr. Carter to date has called on a variety of experts for advice. Thus far, however, he has surrounded himself with loyalists. We shall have to wait to see what type of men and women he puts in the major posts of his administration.

A Call For 'Hard News'

It is highly instructive to compare the front page of a newspaper today with one from the same paper 20 years ago. In almost every case, today's paper delivers much less "hard news," much less sheer information.

Formerly, it was the tabloids and the Police Gazette-type organs that went in for violence, scandal, heart-wringers and other such entertainment.

Today we are getting increasing amounts of that sort of thing from other major newspapers. Even the once-august New York Times, sometimes called our "newspaper of record," has drastically reduced its hard news in favor of various kinds of culture consumption, entertainment, and speculative "interpretation."

Not only does the Times devote much more space than formerly to food, art, gossip, "color" and whatnot, but even the front pages have been increasingly given over to essays rather than news stories, essays that purport to give "background" or "in depth" interpretation.

Two reasons, at least, may be cited for this retreat from hard news.

First, contemporary journalists, many of them with advanced degrees from journalism schools and other graduate schools, tend to look on mere "reporting" a bit demeaning. They tend to feel that interpreting and philosophizing is a more elevated form of activity.

In addition, the printed media apparently feel a need to compete with TV as purveyors of entertainment, personality, sensation, color.

The result of this retreat from fact and hard news in the printed media has been an increasingly severe information gap, a lack of daily information about what is actually going on both here and around the world.

TV cannot provide this. A plausible view, indeed, holds that TV, rather than involving its audiences in the events of the day, actually alienates them. A rapid series of very brief scenes flashes across the TV tube: Charles Kuralt in front of the pyramids, Barry Serafin on the steps of the Supreme Court building, earthquake, Nicolsia, rubble in Beirut, Arthur Burns, swine flu, Mayor Beame, Carter, snow in Buffalo. All of this first muddles then bores the audience, reduces everything to the level of inconsequence.

Readings the news, in contrast, is a quite different experience. The reader is not passive. He selects some stories, in which he is knowledgeable and interested, and skips others. Reading is active, TV passive.

In a curious way, the leading figures in the TV news tend to dramatize that very passivity. At first glance, people like Walter Cronkite, Harry Reasoner, Eric Sevareid and the others come on as mature, reasonable, balanced, sober. They are father figures, even statesmanlike.

But that pose of overwhelming maturity exists at considerable remove from the "events" depicted on the TV news. Whatever may have happened in the news clips, disaster, outrages, anything, the maturity and balance of the anchorman remain unshaken and unshakable.

Sevareid is so "mature" he is finally empty, and he might as well be moralizing from Shangri-la.

Cronkite's trademark sign-off, "And that's the way it is..." beautifully epitomizes the passivity of the TV medium, its inconsequence. Of course, Cronkite is really saying "That's the way it isn't..." because TV, an entertainment medium, cannot get into fact and complexity.

Do people really want fact, detail, reality?

I believe they do, and if I am right it is now time for the press, perhaps as a New Year's resolution, to return as first priority to detailed, hard, factual reporting.

Now Hear This---Winter Hasn't Started Yet!

People in many sections of the country may shake their heads in disbelief, but the depressing fact is that winter has not yet officially begun. It will not do so until 12:36 p.m. Eastern Standard Time on Tuesday, Dec. 21, when the sun will reach its most southerly point in northern skies. The daylight hours of Dec. 21 will be a few seconds shorter than the 10 days or so before and after the date.

Winter temperatures arrived weeks ago in the eastern half of the country, and the outlook is for more of the same. Atlanta's average temperature of 56.2 degrees in November, snow had fallen in New England, western New York, Tennessee, New Mexico, and Indiana. Heavy snow accumulation in Buffalo stranded commuters and discouraged others from even attempting to get to work.

According to the National Weather Service, colder-than-normal weather is in store for the South, the southern Great Plains and the Ohio Valley from December through February. The Pacific Northwest, the California Coast and the northern Great Plains can expect temperatures somewhat milder than normal. But the Weather Service cautions that such long-range forecasts carry no more than a 60-40 chance of being accurate.

While the winter solstice is a curse to some, it is a blessing to others. In the southern hemisphere, Dec. 21 will mark the first day of summer. Thus, travelers who can't abide chilly weather and have sufficient money can journey southward with the sun for a respite from winter's gloom.

More Must Work To Pay All Those Taxes

Economists have been noting for some months what appear to be basic changes occurring in the American work force. The major change noted is that a higher percentage of the population is entering the labor market.

The November employment figures show the trend continuing. A record 88 million Americans were working in November, an increase of 357,000 from October. But the unemployed also grew by 200,000 during the month, increasing the unemployment rate to 8.1 per cent.

What the combined figures indicate is that about 600,000 more Americans became available for employment in the month of November. Approximately two-thirds found jobs, the other third did not.

For a population which is nearly stable, that was a large influx into the labor force for a single month. It is a pattern, however, which has shown up repeatedly in recent years.

Has anyone suggested it takes more people at work to pay our ever-increasing taxes?

Zoning May Be Way To Control Pornography

Frustrated in their efforts to stamp out pornography, cities across the country are making use of their zoning powers to control the spread of sex-related business establishments. Boston attacked the problem by confining X-rated movies and bookstores, strip-tease bars and similar establishments to a two-block downtown area known as the "Combat Zone." Detroit, on the other hand, enacted ordinances aimed at dispersing adult theaters and bookstores.

Both approaches have been sanctioned by the U.S. Supreme Court. Affirming the constitutionality of the Detroit ordinances in a decision handed down last June, the court held: "The city's general zoning laws require all motion picture theaters to satisfy certain locational as well as other requirements; we have no doubt that the municipality may control the location of theaters as well as the location of other commercial establishments, either by confining them to certain specified commercial zones or by requiring that they be dispersed throughout the city."

The court declined to appraise the respective merits of concentration and dispersal. "In either case," it ruled, "the city's interest in attempting to preserve the quality of urban life is one that must be accorded high respect. Moreover, the city must be allowed a reasonable opportunity to experiment with solutions to admittedly serious problems."

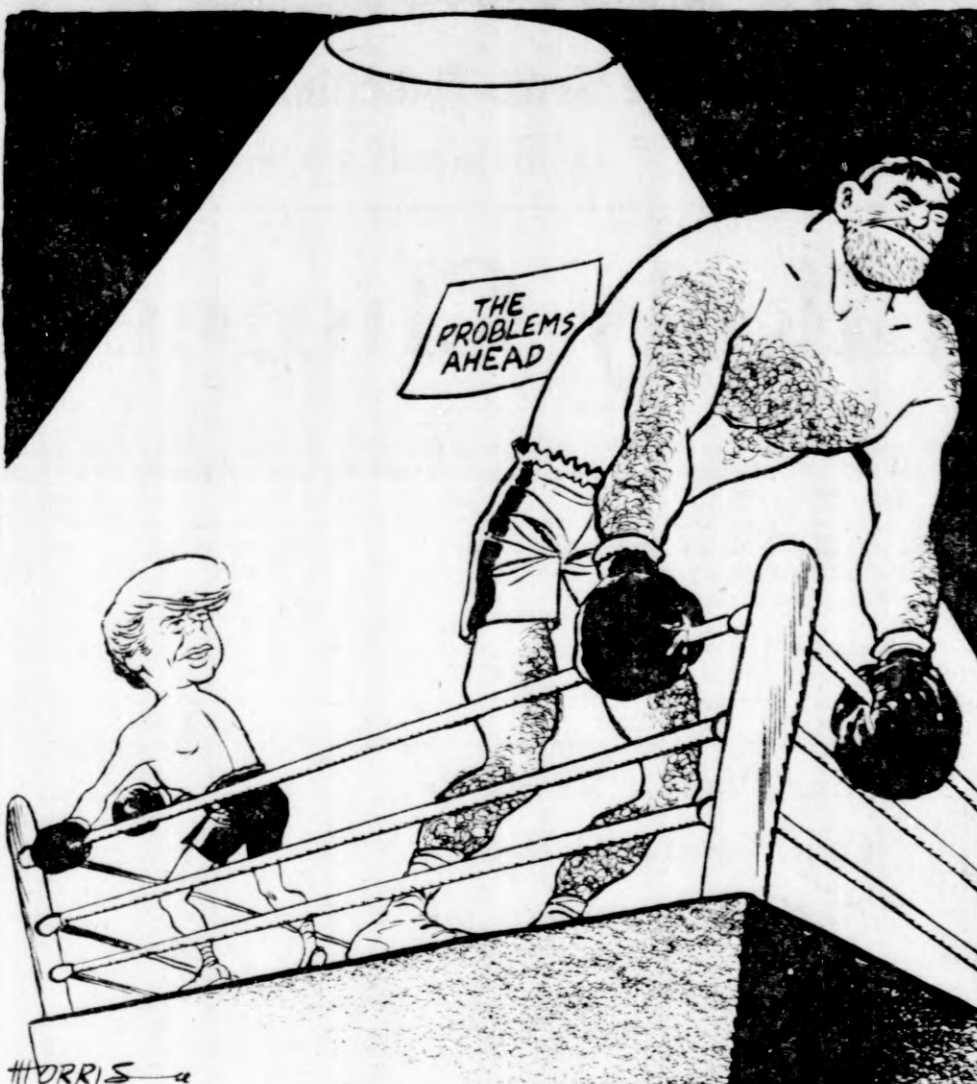

Many Bostonians now feel their city chose the wrong solution in creating the Combat Zone. In a report released Nov. 8, the police department's special investigation unit alleged "corruption and/or incompetence" on the part of officers assigned to the district in which the zone is situated. A week later, two Harvard football players were stabbed in the Combat Zone and an off-duty state trooper suffered a fatal heart attack after being injured during a fight in the area.

A police crackdown followed. "The heat's on and most of the hookers are moving out of the Combat Zone," a police official said, "but there's an army of them and they're plying their trade in the fringe areas just outside the zone itself." Suffolk County District Attorney Garrett H. Byrne declared "There is no way of containing this Combat Zone," which he described as "a dirty place which is there to make the wrong people rich."

The Detroit ordinances upheld by the Supreme Court do not empower the city to order the closing of "adult" theaters and bookstores. Instead, they stipulate that new operations must be at least 1,000 feet from similar existing enterprises. Moreover, the owners of new establishments must obtain the consent of 51 per cent of the people living or doing business within 500 feet of the proposed establishment. The overall effect of the ordinances is to protect neighborhoods from deterioration caused by a flood of undesirable businesses.

New York City is now considering a zoning proposal modeled on the Detroit plan. It would ban "massage parlors" anywhere in the city and permit only small numbers of sex-related businesses in the Times Square area and elsewhere. If the proposal is adopted and actually leads to a cleanup of Times Square, other cities no doubt would conclude that control through dispersal is the most effective way of combating commercialized sex.

Growth Or No Growth Is Decision For Baroda

Editor,

I would like to direct my questions and comments to the citizens of Baroda and the problems of our community.

First of all, I respect the opinions of those who differ from mine. You have a right to express your opinions as some of you have already done. I also have that right.

The trailer park under construction is not the most wonderful event that will ever come to Baroda. It will not, in itself, be the sole deciding factor in preventing further deterioration of the business district. By the same token, neither will it be the terrible calamity for the town that some people have tried to present. Very possibly it will have both advantages and disadvantages.

However, it is not the real issue. I feel that Baroda may have a more serious and disturbing problem. The controversy over the park has merely brought it to the surface.

At a recent village council meeting one citizen raised the question of whether we really want growth.

It is obvious by that very question that this person does not.

be smothered before it takes its first breath? This frightening attitude is the real problem, not the fact that there is disagreement over construction of a trailer park.

In a very short time my husband and I must make a major decision concerning our business. We have operated our service station under lease for the past few years, and before his retirement my husband's father and my husband operated the same service station under lease for over 20 years, making a total of nearly 25 years of operation in Baroda.

Now we are faced with having to purchase our building and property to continue operating, or possibly doing business elsewhere.

The State of Michigan with all their recent legislation and revised taxation has made it nearly impossible for the small business to survive. In order to make a substantial permanent investment, a business must be able to increase, or declare bankruptcy.

It would be foolish for us to make a permanent investment to stay in business in a community whose people are turning their backs on our plight; in fact, resenting us completely.

It is difficult not to be discouraged trying to comply with State and Federal regulations and taxes. Without the moral support of our local people, there is no hope whatsoever.

Citizens of Baroda, Larry and I have to know how you feel. If the majority of you are against progress of any kind, it would be better that we know it now, before we make the terrible mistake of deciding to stay in a town that wants to die.

Unknown Lawyer Called--Nessen

WASHINGTON (AP) — An unknown lawyer who phoned the White House to ask about a possible presidential pardon for Spiro Agnew was routinely referred to a Justice Department spokesman, Press Secretary Ron Nessen says.

Nessen said Monday he didn't know if the lawyer represented Agnew, who resigned as vice president on Oct. 10, 1973, then pleaded no contest to income tax evasion charges.

Agnew has already denied he sought a pardon from President Ford.

Pick Brilliance?

WASHINGTON — For 10 years, Wilfred J. McNeil was comptroller of the Defense Department. By his careful watch over spending, his detailed study of military programs, he bolstered efficiency and economy in this sprawling agency. I would venture to say that in his tenure this man alone saved you and me billions of dollars which would otherwise have been wasted. Nothing slipped by his eagle eye.

McNeil left the Pentagon in 1959. The organization chart was not changed. There have been six comptrollers since his time, all in the same location in the paper hierarchy. There has not been another McNeil.

Most recent presidents have made much of reorganization. They have prepared detailed plans of great complexity. There have been some small successes and many large failures.

Grant Of $73,000 To BH Too Little?

The federal government has given Benton Harbor an anti-recessionary grant of $73,000, but City Manager Melvin Farmer Jr. isn't satisfied. He told the city commission last night Uncle Sam may "owe" the city more than that.

The grant from the federal Office of Revenue Sharing apparently was based on an unemployment level of 12.3 per cent, Farmer told the commissioners. That is Berrien county's jobless rate, the city manager indicated.

"The city's unemployment rate is almost twice the rate for the entire county," said Farmer. "This might mean they owe us somewhere in the area of $60,000 to $65,000 more."

Farmer will ask Washington for a review of the grant figure.

Under the federal act, the higher the unemployment rate is, the bigger the grant. Benton Harbor's average unemployment rate for this year has been documented at 22 per cent, according to Farmer, while the county-wide unemployment rate averages to about 12 per cent.

Farmer said the city will write to the federal office to determine if the wrong unemployment statistics were used in calculating the amount of the grant.

The city plans to use part of the grant to pay a 6 per cent cost of living raise the city commission recently approved for the city's 14 non-union employees, according to Farmer. He said the city has not determined how it will use the rest of the grant.

Funds for the grant come from Title II of the federal Public Works Employment act recently approved by Congress and are to be used by governmental units for maintenance of employment and purchase of equipment necessary to continue employment, according to Farmer.

The Title II funds, unlike Title I of the Public Works Employment act, cannot be used for capital improvement projects. Benton Harbor has applied for more than $10 million from Title I of the PWE act.

The Berrien county board of commissioners will hold a public hearing sometime in January to determine how it will spend nearly $383,000 allocated to the county under the same Title II funds.

In other areas, Farmer announced the city will not provide free sidewalk shoveling for senior citizens this winter because of a lack of manpower and equipment.

Farmer said the public works employees normally used for the shoveling program are now on the city's trash and garbage pickup. The city has offered the sidewalk shoveling program for senior citizens for the past two years.

Mayor Inel Patterson requested employees in downtown Benton Harbor businesses "to be more considerate of downtown shoppers." Patterson said the employees are "somewhat abusing" a suspension of enforcement of the time limit on downtown parking. The commission approved the suspension Nov. 22 to stimulate business in the city. The suspension is effective until Dec. 31.

The commission voted to advertise for bids for demolition of substandard housing at 643 Baird, 734 Columbus, 704 Riverside, and 396 North McCord streets.

The commission approved contracts with John A. Curtis, to demolish substandard housing at 683 Buss street for $70 and 334 Brunson avenue for $80, and with Bilton and Bilton Construction company, to demolish substandard housing at 227 Jefferson court for $580.

Hearing Slated On SJ Project

A public hearing will be held Thursday at 7:30 p.m. on the proposed reconstruction of Lake boulevard which could cost an estimated $280,000, according to St. Joseph City Manager Gerald W. Hepler.

The public hearing will be in the city commission chambers at city hall. Hepler announced the public hearing at last night's city commission meeting.

He said the public hearing was a requirement for the city to apply for federal funds that

FREE FIREWOOD IN SJ: St. Joseph City Manager Gerald W. Hepler announced last night city is trying new program that will provide residents with free firewood and save city some money. City recently purchased wood chipper machine that chops up small limbs and branches which are ground into chips that will be stored and used for landscaping in city parks.

Bigger branches and trunks are sawed into firewood and left on tree lawns where residents may pick them up free. Hepler said operation saves trip to landfill and paying for dumping brush and trees. Steve Howell, of forestry department, feeds branches into chipper. (Staff photo)

Offer For St. Joe Land Was $150,000 In 1974

A $150,000 offer was made a little over two years ago for a portion of the city-owned land the St. Joseph city commission is considering selling for about $83,000, according to L. Montgomery Shepard, president of the Berrien County Abstract & Title Insurance Co., St. Joseph.

Shepard last night presented St. Joseph city commissioners with a copy of a land title insurance commitment for $130,000 which showed the Old Kent Bank & Trust Co., Grand Rapids, was willing to pay $130,000 for land located at the corner of Broad and Main streets, then privately owned.

Purchase of the property fell through because Old Kent couldn't get state approval to build a branch office on the land.

The insurance commitment, dated Feb. 26, 1974, was filed with Shepard's company.

The city commission last week received an offer from the Peoples Savings Association, Benton Harbor, to buy the same land, plus a vacant strip on Court street for $83,350. The Peoples Savings offer is for property it cost the city a total of $142,630 to buy and partially clear. The parcel at Main and Broad was bought by the city earlier this year from Cities Service Oil Co. for $105,000.

The city commission tabled the Peoples Savings proposal until Dec. 20.

Shepard asked the commission two questions about the savings association offer: —If the land was worth $150,000 to Old Kent two years ago, why is it not worth that much now?

—Why were negotiations between Peoples Savings and the city kept so secret?

Shepard told the commission, "I think you should have patience. Hold off a while. Let someone else have a chance to move its main offices to the site. Shepard said he addressed the commission last night as a taxpayer.

In other business, the commission voted to join the board of harbor commissioners. Hepler said the six-man commission would have representatives from Benton Harbor, St. Joseph and Berrien county and would be concerned with the development and promotion of the St. Joseph river harbor. Hepler said each governmental unit would have two representatives, a director would be hired, the commission would be able to request funds from the three governments and each member would be able to drop out at anytime.

Hepler said Benton Harbor has voted to join while the county has not acted.

The commission also passed a resolution granting Whirlpool Corp. a tax exemption for a new addition to its St. Joseph division. The city commission originally passed a resolution granting the exemption about a year ago under the Michigan plant rehabilitation and industrial development districts act of 1974.

However, within a week after the city's approval an amendment was tacked onto the act requiring city approval to include the fact the exemption "would not substantially impede operation or impair financial soundness" of the city, according to City Atty. Arthur G. Preston Jr.

Speaking for Whirlpool last night was Atty. Richard Koch. The exemption is for a $1.4 million steel slitting operation.

The commission also passed a resolution commending the 23-member force on the LaSalle Expedition II. The expedition will be in Berrien county Sunday.

free. He said that price was around $2.30 to $3 per square foot.

Hepler also said the city was not dealing with "captive" buyers. He described "captive" buyers as those who have a business next to vacant land and want to expand.

As to Shepard's second question, Mayor Franklin Smith said most negotiations like the sale are handled by the city manager because the city commission doesn't have time to do it. He added it is not "unusual" for parties dealing with the city to ask that information not be released prematurely.

Old Kent wanted to purchase the land, then owned by Cities Service Oil, to put a branch bank up, but the Michigan Financial Institutions bureau turned the project down for a number of reasons including the fact the area is already over-banked.

Peoples Savings wants to Hepler said various city officials will be at the meeting to answer questions about the project.

Included in the project are the following: —A storm sewer separation system

—Resurfacing.

Another $100 For SJ Fund

Four more contributors joined the ranks of those helping to boost the St. Joseph Area Good Fellow fund to its $5,000 goal.

Contributions received today totaled $100 and boosted the Good Fellow fund to $1,216.06, still $3,783.94 from the goal.

A $10 contribution was received from Ruth S. Gasconne, St. Joseph. That was matched by a $10 gift from an anonymous giver.

The day's largest donation for $90 came from "Director's fees from a nameless director." Santa recalled the "director" has been giving to the Good Fellow fund for several years.

A neighborhood bridge club south of St. Joseph got together recently and assessed themselves for the Good Fellow fund to the tune of $20.

Santa noted optimistically

that today was the second day in a row that contributions totaled $100 or over.

"Let's keep up the good work," he added.

That legislative body appropriated $50 for the Benton Harbor Area Good Fellow fund. Santa Claus thanked the student senators for their generous gift and assured them it will go where most needed at Christmas.

The Good Fellow fund also received $10 from Ralph Roberts who said he's picking a sure winner again in Santa Claus and his cause.

American Legion Auxiliary Unit 105 sent $5 through its secretary Estella Tenter as the Benton Harbor Area fund climbed to $2,450.17 today.

"That's only one-third of the way home for a joyous Christmas for the elderly and deserving families of the Benton Harbor area," St. Nick observed. "But I'm sure Good Fellows will come through again. They always have."

BENTON HARBOR AREA Good Fellow FUND

Grant Of $73,000 To BH Too Little?

The federal government has given Benton Harbor an anti-recessionary grant of $73,000, but City Manager Melvin Farmer Jr. isn't satisfied. He told the city commission last night Uncle Sam may "owe" the city more than that.

The grant from the federal Office of Revenue Sharing apparently was based on an unemployment level of 12.3 per cent, Farmer told the commissioners. That is Berrien county's jobless rate, the city manager indicated.

"The city's unemployment rate is almost twice the rate for the entire county," said Farmer. "This might mean they owe us somewhere in the area of $60,000 to $65,000 more."

Farmer will ask Washington for a review of the grant figure. Under the federal act, the higher the unemployment rate is, the bigger the grant. Benton Harbor's average unemployment rate for this year has been documented at 22 per cent, according to Farmer, while the county-wide unemployment rate averages to about 12 per cent.

Farmer said the city will write to the federal office to determine if the wrong unemployment statistics were used in calculating the amount of the grant.

The city plans to use part of the grant to pay a 6 per cent cost of living raise the city commission recently approved for the city's 14 non-union employees, according to Farmer. He said the city has not determined how it will use the rest of the grant.

Funds for the grant come from Title II of the federal Public Works Employment act recently approved by Congress and are to be used by governmental units for maintenance of employment and purchase of equipment necessary to continue employment, according to Farmer.

The Title II funds, unlike Title I of the Public Works Employment act, cannot be used for capital improvement projects. Benton Harbor has applied for more than $10 million from Title I of the PWE act.

The Berrien county board of commissioners will hold a public hearing sometime in January to determine how it will spend nearly $383,000 allocated to the county under the same Title II funds.

In other areas, Farmer announced the city will not provide free sidewalk shoveling for senior citizens this winter because of a lack of manpower and equipment.

Farmer said the public works employees normally used for the shoveling program are now on the city's trash and garbage pickup. The city has offered the sidewalk shoveling program for senior citizens for the past two years.

Mayor Joel Patterson requested employees in downtown Benton Harbor businesses "to be more considerate of downtown shoppers." Patterson said the employees are "somewhat abusing" a suspension of enforcement of the time limit on downtown parking. The commission approved the suspension Nov. 22 to stimulate business in the city. The suspension is effective until Dec. 31.

The commission voted to advertise for bids for demolition of substandard housing at 645 Baird, 753 Columbus, 704 Riverside, and 396 North McCord streets.

The commission approved contracts with John A. Curtis, to demolish substandard housing at 683 Buss street for $750 and 334 Brunson avenue for $500, and with Bilton and Bilton Construction company, to demolish substandard housing at 227 Jefferson court for $580.

Hearing Slated On SJ Project

A public hearing will be held Thursday at 7:30 p.m. on the proposed reconstruction of Lake boulevard which could cost an estimated $280,000, according to St. Joseph City Manager Gerald W. Hepler.

The public hearing will be in the city commission chambers at city hall. Hepler announced the public hearing at last night's city commission meeting.

He said the public hearing was a requirement for the city to apply for federal funds that

FREE FIREWOOD IN SJ: St. Joseph City Manager Gerald W. Hepler announced last night city is trying new program that will provide residents with free firewood and save city some money. City recently purchased wood chipper machine that chops up small limbs and branches which are ground into chips that will be stored and used for landscaping in city parks.

Bigger branches and trunks are sawed into firewood and left on tree lawns where residents may pick them up free. Hepler said operation saves trip to landfill and paying for dumping brush and trees. Steve Howell, of forestry department, feeds branches into chipper. (Staff photo)

SJ 'Breaks Even' On Sale Of Milton

The St. Joseph board of education last night awarded a $49,900 contract to John G. Yerington Concrete Co. to demolish Milton junior high school, and the board voted to sell the cleared 2½ acre site to Whirlpool Corp. for $50,000.

District Business Manager Dennis Percy said Whirlpool's bid was the only one for the Milton site and is contingent on leasing the land to the City of St. Joseph for use as a public park for at least 10 years.

Percy said he learned only yesterday that Whirlpool had made the $50,000 offer which was announced at the October board meeting as from an "anonymous party."

The Milton building will be turned over to the Yerington company, of Benton Harbor, by Jan. 1 with demolition to be completed 90 days after that date, Percy said.

Whirlpool was represented in the transaction by Donald Ranum, assistant to John Platts, firm president and board chairman.

"It's coincidence" that the $50,000 land offer and $49,900 demolition bid were so close, Percy said. He reminded that the district expected to pay between $70,000 and $80,000 for demolition and hoped to about equal the cost with the total sale prices of the Milton site and Royal school.

The board got no bidders to buy the closed Royal school on US-31 south of St. Joseph and voted to advertise again for bids.

The Yerington demolition bid was the lowest of six. Others ranged to as high as $113,800. They were: Siebert and Associates, Michigan City, Ind., $56,943; Zebrowski and Associates, Farmington, $71,200; Bierlein Building Movers, Inc., Saginaw, $73,800; George Miller and Sons, St. Joseph, $95,950; and Owens Contracting Service, Saginaw, $113,800.

When Milton school was closed because of rising costs and declining enrollments, its seventh and eighth graders were transferred to the newer Upton junior high school at Lincoln avenue and Maiden lane, St. Joseph township. Ninth graders who would have attended either Milton or Upton schools were transferred to St. Joseph high school.

The closing of Milton and tentative plan to close Jefferson elementary school—discarded at least for the time being—brought citizen protests. Last September, a new element of protest was added because Jefferson although threatened with closing because of declining enrollments was reported overcrowded in some classes.

Mr. and Mrs. James Rahfeldt then told the board that although they lived within four blocks of Jefferson in a house they bought last summer, their daughter was bused to Washington school because of an overcrowded fourth grade class at Jefferson.

This began controversy over the district's unofficial, but generally used policy of "last in, first out" for overcrowded situations.

The board last night indicated that action that might make this policy formal may be taken in February. The "last in, first out" policy is supported by the board-appointed citizens' advisory council, "as a last resort," John Howard, of 372 Ridgeway, chairman of the council's policy committee, said last night.

Howard said policy should be as possible and consistently applied. He added, however, that the neighborhood school concept should be continued to the greatest extent possible, and elementary attendance areas should be redefined by geographical boundaries.

Howard said assignment of pupils to other than neighborhood schools should be made before the start of each school year, based on the most recent projection of enrollment.

The board in other business adopted curriculum content goals for all grade levels and subject areas except junior high social studies. Goals were compiled over the past year by a committee headed by Daly Macgrayne, district curriculum coordinator.

In a report on district financing, Percy said if it were not for the Michigan single business tax, the district's tax yield would have increased from $4.1 million to about $4.88 million, based on its current tax levy.

Percy said businesses would have paid more. Percy said the repeal of the personal property inventory tax dropped the state equalized valuation of the district from $140.8 million last year to a current $132.9 million. He said even with more state aid, the district will receive total income of $77,600 less than last year.

A statement by Percy to this newspaper Dec. 3 regarding homeowners getting "soaked" with higher tax bills while businesses received a break from the repealed inventory tax drew criticism from a businessman in a letter to the editor column.

Offer For St. Joe Land Was $150,000 In 1974

A $150,000 offer was made a little over two years ago for a portion of the city-owned land the St. Joseph city commission is considering selling for about $63,000, according to L. Montgomery Shepard, president of the Berrien County Abstract & Title Insurance Co., St. Joseph.

Shepard last night presented St. Joseph city commissioners with a copy of a land title insurance commitment for $150,000 which showed the Old Kent Bank & Trust Co., Grand Rapids, was willing to pay $150,000 for land located at the corner of Broad and Main streets, then privately owned.

Purchase of the property fell through because Old Kent couldn't get state approval to build a branch office on the land.

The insurance commitment, dated Feb. 26, 1974, was filed with Shepard's company.

The city commission last week received an offer from the Peoples Savings Association, Benton Harbor, to buy the same land, plus a vacant strip on Court street for $63,360. The Peoples Savings offer is for property it cost the city a total of $142,640 to buy and partially clear. The parcel at Main and Broad was bought by the city earlier this year from Cities Service Oil Co. for $105,000.

The city commission tabled the Peoples Savings proposal until Dec. 20.

Shepard asked the commission two questions about the savings association offer: —If the land was worth $150,000 to Old Kent two years ago, why is it not worth that much now?

—Why were negotiations between Peoples Savings and the city kept so secret?

Shepard told the commission, "I think you should have patience. Hold off a while. Let someone else have a chance to move its main offices to the site."

City Manager Gerald W. Hepler told Shepard in response to his first question, "I can't answer that." However, he told Shepard the site was being offered at "comparable" prices for undeveloped land as determined by the city assessor's office. He said that price was around $2.50 to $3 per square foot.

Hepler also said the city was not dealing with "captive" buyers. He described "captive" buyers as those who have a business need to vacant land and want to expand.

As to Shepard's second question, Mayor Franklin Smith said most negotiations like the sale are handled by the city manager because the city commission doesn't have time to do it. He added it is not "unusual" for parties dealing with the city to ask that information not be released prematurely.

Old Kent wanted to purchase the land, then owned by Cities Service Oil, to put a branch bank up, but the Michigan Financial Institutions bureau turned the project down for a number of reasons including the fact the area is already over-banked.

Shepard said he addressed the commission last night as a taxpayer.

In other business, the commission voted to join the board of harbor commissioners. Hepler said the six-man commission would have representatives from Benton Harbor, St. Joseph and Berrien county and would be concerned with the development and promotion of the St. Joseph river harbor. Hepler said each governmental unit would have two representatives, a director would be hired, the commission would be able to request funds from the three governments and each member would be able to drop out at anytime.

Hepler said Benton Harbor has voted to join while the county has not acted.

The commission also passed a resolution granting Whirlpool Corp. a tax exemption for a new addition to its St. Joseph division. The city commission originally passed a resolution granting the exemption about a year ago under the Michigan plant rehabilitation and industrial development districts act of 1974.

However, within a week after the city's approval an amendment was tacked onto the act requiring city approval to include the fact the exemption "would not substantially impede operation or impair financial soundness" of the city, according to City Atty. Arthur G. Preston Jr.

Speaking for Whirlpool last night was Atty. Richard Koch. The exemption is for a $1.4 million steel slitting operation.

The commission also passed a resolution commending the 23-member force on the LaSalle Expedition II. The expedition will be in Berrien county Sunday.

Another $100 For SJ Fund

Four more contributors joined the ranks of those helping to boost the St. Joseph Area Good Fellow fund to its $5,000 goal.

Contributions received today totaled $100 and boosted the Good Fellow fund to $1,216.06, still $3,783.94 from the goal.

A $10 contribution was received from Ruth S. Gascoigne, St. Joseph. That was matched by a $10 gift from an anonymous giver.

The day's largest donation for $80 came from "Director's fees from a nameless director." Santa recalled the "director" has been giving to the Good Fellow fund for several years.

A neighborhood bridge club south of St. Joseph got together recently and assessed themselves for the Good Fellow fund to the tune of $20.

Santa noted optimistically

that today was the second day in a row that contributions totaled $100 or over.

"Let's keep up the good work," he added.

Student Senate Votes For Santa

Lawmakers are sometimes accused of passing nonsensical legislation and appropriations — but not the Student Senate at Benton Harbor high school.

The Good Fellow fund also received $10 from Ralph Robards who said he's picking a sure winner again in Santa Claus and his cause.

Driver In Fatal Crash Must Spend Five Weekends In Jail

A Niles man involved in a two-car crash last May which killed a St. Joseph woman was sentenced Monday in Berrien Circuit court to begin a two-year probation with the first five weekends in jail. Judge William S. White imposed the sentence on Mark D. Conn, 27, of 1715 Bell road, for a no contest plea to a charge of negligent homicide. Conn was also ordered to pay $500 fine and costs. Conn was charged as the driver of a car which ran a stop sign and collided with an auto driven by Carol Ann Graebner, 21, at the intersection of Hinchman and Hollywood roads in Oronoko township on May 4. Miss Graebner was killed when her car rolled onto its roof and landed in a vineyard.

Display Danish Christmas Tree At Art Center

Sorority Project

A Christmas tree decorated in the tradition of Denmark is on display at the St. Joseph Art Center, 690 State street, St. Joseph.

The center is open to the public Tuesday through Friday from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. and Saturday and Sunday from 1 to 4 p.m.

The tree has been decorated by members of Xi Gamma Theta chapter of Beta Sigma Phi sorority. The tree will be on display through the holiday season, according to Mrs. Kenneth Multhead, chapter president.

According to the "Trees of Christmas," published by Abingdon Press, the Christmas season is joyful and busy in Denmark.

The Danish people consider Christmas their greatest festival of the year. Christmas Eve is a time of chiming church bells, family dinner, the ceremony around the tree and hymns and carols in candlelit churches.

The family gathers on Christmas Eve for an early meal. The home is decorated with the Danish flag as well as the Christmas Tree. A lighted candle in the window offers food and shelter to travelers.

The Christmas Gospel is read as twilight falls and the family sings Christmas carols. After the dinner is over, the parents disappear into the locked parlor or living room and when the door is flung open there is the Christmas tree.

On Christmas Eve when the rice pudding is served, a portion is set aside for the Nisse, a barn elf or sprite who keeps a friendly watch on the animals in the barn or other domestic animals. The Nisse resembles Santa with his red stocking cap and long white whiskers. He also decorates the Christmas tree.

Two Christmas traditions have originated in Denmark. The Christmas seal was originated by Elvar Holboll, a Danish postal clerk in 1903, and the Danish Christmas plate, which Denmark has given to the world as a Christmas keepsake for 50 years.

The book also contains directions to make Danish Christmas tree ornaments.

PINE CONE ELF

Materials:
wooden cone 4 inches high with one-half inch bead on top pine cone
paint — red, white, skin-tone strip of white fur
wire

Directions:
— Paint a wooden cone red, with a small elf face on one side. Cone should be slender — one and one-half inch at base tapering to one-eighth inch at top — and topped by a one-half inch wooden bead. Glue strip of white fur on for beard.
— Touch the tips of a pine cone with white paint to simulate snow.
— Glue the elf to the stem end of pine cone and hang to tree by a wire fastened around wooden bead.

Materials:
red or green construction paper
gold paper
gold ribbon

Directions:
— From construction paper

cut a seven and three-quarter inch square.

— Cut a gold paper square measuring seven and one-half inches. Make shallow scallops one and three-quarters inch wide on two sides of the gold square.

— Glue gold square onto construction paper so that a border of red (or green) shows beyond the gold scallops. Round the corners of the construction paper to follow the gold scallop.

— Roll the square into a cone, with the scalloped edge at top. Glue overlapping edge. Tie gold ribbon on the top corner for hanging.

WOVEN PAPER HEART

Materials:
red and white construction paper

Directions:
— Measure and cut a square of white paper 10 and one-quarter inches by 10 and one-quarter inches. Fold in half, then fold in half again.

— On the edges of the square away from the fold mark off the top of a heart. There are four hearts on top of each other.

— On the topmost heart measure four lines three-quarters inch apart from the folded edge toward top of heart. Cut on these lines, leaving the curved part of the heart solid.

— From red paper cut a piece three and three-quarters inch by six and one-half inch. Cut one end of the red paper in shape of a half-heart, using the full-size heart as pattern. Mark three lines three-quarters inch apart and cut from the bottom up, leaving the top solid and uncut.

— Weave the red half-heart into the white heart, over and under. Cut two slits at bottom of white heart for the red ends and fold all the extra length of red inside the heart. Glue curve of red heart to white.

— Glue or staple the open sides of the heart together to form a basket.

RAFFIA RING WITH HEARTS

Materials:
raffia (natural color)
red construction paper
wire

Directions:
— Braid raffia around a wire ring six inches in diameter.
— Cut eight hearts two inches wide from red construction paper. Fold hearts in center. Glue four hearts together on center line, making two groups of hearts. Spread open from center.

— Sew a fine thread through each group of hearts at center point and attach the groups to raffia ring, one above the other.

DRINKING-STRAW STAR

Materials:
drinking straws
red thread

Directions:
— Tie 20 drinking straws together at center. (It is easier to do this by tying two groups of 10. Pinch 10 straws tightly at center and tie together; then join them to the other bundle of 10.)

— One inch from center tie the straws together in groups of four, using red thread and tying a tight knot. There will be 10 ties.

— Now take two of the four straws from a group and tie to

SOLDIER

two of an adjoining group at the outer end of the straws. This will form a 10-pointed star.

GOLD PAPER STAR

Materials:
gold wrapping paper
wire or thread

Directions:
— Cut two stars. If paper is gold on both sides, only one star is necessary.

— Cut toward center on dotted lines.

— Place the two stars together, with gold surface outside. Roll each section to a point; staple lower edges together. (Do not flatten the points of the star; the rolled look gives distinction.)

— Hang from a point by thin wire or thread.

SOLDIER

Materials:
one-quarter inch plywood, seven and one-half inches by three and three-quarters inches, tempera paint — red, white, blue, black, flesh tone

Directions:
— Cut soldier from plywood with jigsaw.

— Draw in design lines. Paint with tempera. Trousers are bright blue, coat red, hat and shoes black, crossbelt is white and buttons are black.

— Make a tiny hole through top of head and hang to tree with wire.

WOODEN CUTOUTS

Beside the soldier, other cutouts from one-quarter inch plywood are: elf, small horse, bird and large heart.

— Paint the horse and bird white with touches of gray. Paint the heart red and decorate with diagonal rows of gold rickrack. Paint the elf's cap bright red, mittens and legs red; paint his shoes black and his clothing gray; make a long white beard almost to bottom of jacket.

YARN DOLL

Materials:
beige yarn
yellow yarn
brown and red cloth
small patterned cotton material for shirt and cap
denim for trousers

Directions:
— Cut 30 lengths of four-ply beige yarn 20 inches long. Tie in center and bring ends together.

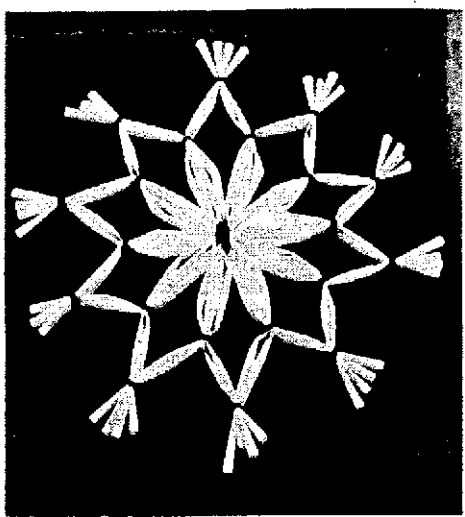

— Tie again tightly two inches from first tying. This forms the head. Tie loosely one and one-half inches down to form waist.

— Divide the yarn into equal parts to form legs. Braid the legs and tie at ankle location.

— With 18 pieces of yarn braid a string nine inches long for arms. Tie at waist. Run the braided arms through the body section.

— Sew a few strands of bright yellow yarn to head for hair. Sew two small brown triangles on face for eyes and a small red heart for mouth.

— Make a shirt of cotton and

ship over the head. Make a pointed cap three inches high with a lassel of beige yarn at peak of cap and sew to head. Complete the costume with denim trousers.

— Hang to tree by a length of beige yarn.

DRUMS

Materials: shirt cardboard
red wrapping paper
white paper
green ribbon, one-quarter inch wide gold braid
white large-headed pins

Directions:
— From shirt cardboard cut a strip eight and one-half inches long and three inches wide. Join three inch ends with staples or glue to make a cylinder.

— Cover the sides with red wrapping paper and the ends with white paper. Use bands of ribbon to cover the joinings.

— Trim drum with gold braid held in place with large-headed white pins. Run the braid in V's from top to bottom row of ribbon, making a loop at the end for hanging.

DOUBLE HEARTS

Materials:
heavy red paper
green paper
twine

Directions:
— Cut five hearts (three inches across) from heavy red paper. From the center of each cut out a one and one-half inch heart.

— Fold the large hearts through the center, tip to tip. Glue the five together on the fold line at the top, at the same time inserting and gluing two green leaves, between hearts. Leave lower sections unglued.

— Fold the small hearts through the center and glue these together with two small green leaves at top.

— Glue each heart group to an end of a 16-inch string and hang, one above the other.

DANISH FLAGS

Materials:
red construction paper
white paper
white wrapping twine

Directions:
— Fold red paper and cut a supply of flags, three and one-quarter inches by two and one-quarter inches, placing the two and one-quarter measurement on the fold.

— Glue on the white bars which are three-eighths inch wide. Glue bars on each side of fold.

— Place white twine on the fold line and glue the paper together, so that the string of flags is the same on each side. Place flags on the string two inches apart.

On Christmas Eve when the rice pudding is served, a portion is set aside for the Nisse, a barn elf or sprite who keeps a friendly watch on the animals in the barn or other domestic animals. The Nisse resembles Santa with his red stocking cap and long white whiskers. He also decorates the Christmas tree.

Two Christmas traditions have originated in Denmark. The Christmas seal was originated by Einar Holboll, a Danish postal clerk in 1903, and the Danish Christmas plate, which Denmark has given to the world as a Christmas keepsake for 50 years.

The book also contains directions to make Danish Christmas tree ornaments.

PINE CONE ELF

Materials:
wooden cone 4 inches high with one-half inch bead on top pine cone
paint — red, white, skin-tone
strip of white fur
wire

Directions:
— Paint a wooden cone red, with a small elf face on one side. Cone should be slender — one and one-half inch at base tapering to one-eighth inch at top — and topped by a one-half inch wooden bead. Glue strip of white fur on for beard.
— Touch the tips of a pine cone with white paint to simulate snow.
— Glue the elf to the stem end of pine cone and hang to tree by a wire fastened around wooden bead.

Materials:
red or green construction paper
gold paper
gold ribbon

Directions:
— From construction paper

cut a seven and three-quarter inch square.

— Cut a gold paper square measuring seven and one-half inches. Make shallow scallops one and three-quarters inch wide on two sides of the gold square.

— Glue gold square onto construction paper so that a border of red (or green) shows beyond the gold scallops. Round the corners of the construction paper to follow the gold scallop.

— Roll the square into a cone, with the scalloped edge at top. Glue overlapping edge. Tie gold ribbon on the top corner for hanging.

WOVEN PAPER HEART

Materials:
red and white construction paper

Directions:
— Measure and cut a square of white paper 10 and one-quarter inches by 10 and one-quarter inches. Fold in half, then fold in half again.

— On the edges of the square away from the fold mark off the top of a heart. There are four hearts on top of each other.

— On the topmost heart measure four lines three-quarters inch apart from the folded edge toward top of heart. Cut on these lines, leaving the curved part of the heart solid.

— From red paper cut a piece three and three-quarters inch by six and one-half inch. Cut one end of the red paper in shape of a half-heart, using the full-size heart as pattern. Mark three lines three-quarters inch apart and cut from the bottom up, leaving the top solid and uncut.

— Weave the red half-heart into the white heart, over and under. Cut two slits at bottom of white heart for the red ends and fold all the extra length of red inside the heart. Glue curve of red heart to white.

— Glue or staple the open sides of the heart together to form a basket.

RAFFIA RING WITH HEARTS

Materials:
raffia (natural color)
wire

Directions:
— Braid raffia around a wire ring six inches in diameter.
— Cut eight hearts two inches wide from red construction paper. Fold hearts in center. Glue four hearts together on center line, making two groups of hearts. Spread open from center.

— Sew a fine thread through each group of hearts at center point and attach the groups to raffia ring, one above the other.

Materials:
drinking straws
red thread

Directions:
— Tie 20 drinking straws together at center. (It is easier to do this by tying two groups of 10. Pinch 10 straws tightly at center and tie together; then join them to the other bundle of 10).

— One inch from center tie the straws together in groups of four, using red thread and tying a tight knot. There will be 10 ties.

SOLDIER

two of an adjoining group at the outer end of the straws. This will form a 10-pointed star.

GOLD PAPER STAR

Materials:
gold wrapping paper
wire or thread

Directions:
— Cut two stars. If paper is gold on both sides, only one star is necessary.
— Cut toward center on dotted lines.

— Place the two stars together, with gold surface outside. Roll each section to a point; staple lower edges together. (Do not flatten the points of the star; the rolled look gives distinction.)
— Hang from a point by thin wire or thread.

SOLDIER

Materials:
one-quarter inch plywood, seven and one half inches by three and three-quarters inches.
tempera paint — red, white, blue, black, flesh tone

Directions:
— Cut soldier from plywood with jigsaw.
— Draw in design lines. Paint with tempera. Trousers are bright blue, coat red, hat and shoes black, crossbelt is white and buttons are black.
— Make a tiny hole through top of head and hang to tree with wire.

WOODEN CUTOUTS

Beside the soldier, other cutouts from one-quarter inch plywood are: elf, small horse, bird and large heart.

— Paint the horse and bird white with touches of gray. Paint the heart red and decorate with diagonal rows of gold rickrack. Paint the elf's cap bright red, mittens and legs red; paint his shoes black and his clothing gray; make a long white beard almost to bottom of jacket.

YARN DOLL

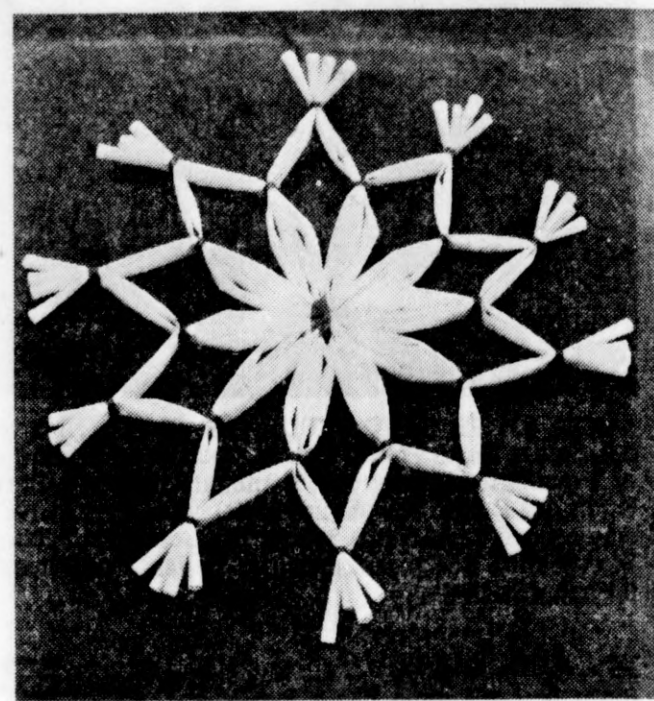

Materials:
beige yarn
yellow yarn
brown and red cloth
small-patterned cotton material for shirt and cap
denim for trousers

Directions:
— Cut 30 lengths of four-ply beige yarn 20 inches long. Tie in center and bring ends together.
— Tie again tightly two inches from first tying. This forms the head. Tie loosely one and one-half inches down to form waist.
— Divide the yarn into equal parts to form legs. Braid the legs and tie at ankle location.

— With 15 pieces of yarn braid a string nine inches long for arms. Tie at waist. Run the braided arms through the body section.

— Sew a few strands of bright yellow yarn to head for hair. Sew two small brown triangles on face for eyes and a small red heart for mouth.

slip over the head. Make a pointed cap three inches high with a tassel of beige yarn at peak of cap and sew to head. Complete the costume with denim trousers.
— Hang to tree by a length of beige yarn.

DRUMS

Materials: shirt cardboard
red wrapping paper
white paper
green ribbon, one-quarter inch wide gold braid
white large-headed pins

Directions:
— From shirt cardboard cut a strip eight and one-half inches long and three inches wide. Join three inch ends with staples or glue to make a cylinder.
— Cover the sides with red wrapping paper and the ends with white paper. Use bands of ribbon to cover the joinings.
— Trim drum with gold braid held in place with large-headed white pins. Run the braid in V's from top to bottom row of ribbon, making a loop at the end for hanging.

DOUBLE HEARTS

Materials:
heavy red paper
green paper
twine

Directions:
— Cut five hearts (three inches across) from heavy red paper. From the center of each cut out a one and one-half inch heart.
— Fold the large hearts through the center, tip to tip. Glue the five together on the fold line at the top, at the same time inserting and gluing two green leaves between hearts. Leave lower sections unglued.

— Fold the small hearts through the center and glue these together with two small green leaves at top.
— Glue each heart group to an end of a 16-inch string and hang, one above the other.

DANISH FLAGS

Materials:
red construction paper
white paper
white wrapping twine

Directions:
— Fold red paper and cut a supply of flags, three and one-quarter inches by two and one-quarter inches, placing the two and one-quarter measurement on the fold.
— Glue on the white bars which are three-eighths inch wide. Glue bars on each side of fold.
— Place white twine on the fold line and glue the paper together, so that the string of flags is the same on each side. Place flags on the string two inches apart.

Michigan-Ohio Dispute Raged 140 Years Ago

It seems that Michiganders and Ohioans have been fussin' and fightin' with each other for a long time.

These days the dispute usually involves football, but the 140th anniversary of the Frost-Bitten Convention recalls another controversy over the boundary between the two states, involving that area known as the Toledo strip.

And as is so often the case these days, the enticement of federal monies and appointments were the deciding factors in accepting a compromise boundary proposal at the "Frost-Bitten Convention" held in Ann Arbor on Dec. 14, 1836.

According to Frank C. Wilhelm, director of the Historical Society of Michigan, this was the turning point in Michigan's three year quest for statehood.

Elected delegates first met at a convention in Ann Arbor in September of 1836 to decide whether or not to give the Toledo strip to Ohio and accept the western three-quarters of the Upper Peninsula in return. Statehood accompanied a yes vote; more political hassles would ensue if the convention voted no.

However, at the time, most people did not consider the Upper Peninsula of Michigan to be an equal exchange for much of anything. People thought of it as "sterile...a wilderness..."

region of perpetual snows." Suffice it to say that the delegates to the convention voted not to accept the compromise resolution.

Upon learning of the convention's decision, one of the most disappointed persons was Stevens T. Mason, acting governor of the Michigan Territory. He had pursued statehood for Michigan from every angle, finally even placing himself at the head of the territorial militia to counter what he felt to be aggressive moves by Ohio's Governor Robert Lucas.

It is surprising that no one was killed in the clashes between the two sides. The only casualty turned out to be a Michigan sheriff stabbed with a jackknife in a tavern scuffle by "Two" Stickney, the second son of ardent Buckeye.

Hardly had the convention adjourned than second thoughts shed some doubt on the wisdom of the decision. After all, what was to be gained by rejecting the Congressional deal? Ohio, who now had complete control of the disputed territory, would never give it up. If Michigan were a state, it would receive five per cent of the proceeds from the sales of public lands in Michigan and it would be in line to share in the distribution of the surplus from U.S. treasury money.

Then, too, state Democrats began to cast an eye to the lucrative federal appointments that might be available to party members in Michigan following the victory of the Democratic party in the presidential election.

Governor Mason refused to call a second convention, but said the people "in their original capacity" had the right to reverse the decision if it was found to be "prejudicial to their interests."

Wayne county Democrats, followed by those from Washtenaw county, met and decided in favor of a second "convention of assent." A Committee of the People was formed calling for delegates to meet in Ann Arbor, Dec. 14, 1836.

The Whigs refused to participate on the grounds that the whole proceeding was illegal. In the end, representatives from 18 counties took two days to draw up and pass a resolution accepting the compromise boundary proposal. All but 10 of the 72 delegates who attended signed the resolution. Its opponents dubbed the meeting the "Frost-Bitten Convention."

When the resolution of assent reached President Jackson, he sent it to Congress and a bill to admit Michigan into the Union was presented. Senators debated over the propriety of the Frost-Bitten Convention for several days; but the bill was finally passed. On Jan. 26, 1837, President Jackson signed the bill that made Michigan the 26th state in the federal union.

Prepare To Change Careers Says Job-Hunting Expert

EAST LANSING — "Career change is in the cards for almost everyone in the world of work," Richard N. Bolles, director of the National Career Development Project, told Michigan State university advisers and counselors at a workshop.

Even people in so-called anchor professions such as medicine, which require much academic preparation, are likely to change careers in their lifetime, said Bolles, an authority on job-hunting and career planning.

But when changing careers or jobs, Bolles added, relying on traditional methods of job-hunting such as newspaper ads, a state employment agency, a private employment agency or a computer job bank will not be very effective.

He said, several studies have shown that "75-90 per cent of the job vacancies which exist at any given moment are not advertised."

Bolles, author of the book "What Color Is Your Parachute?" used fluorescent chalk and black light to illustrate his points throughout the day-long workshop.

He diagramed how careers are broken down into several fields. Each field may include several jobs. Each job requires the performance of several tasks and each task employs several skills.

Skills are the key to job satisfaction, he said, and many people have skills they do not even realize they possess.

Bolles gave workshop participants a list of 99 skills to help them identify their skills. An example of each skill was given in a way that might not occur to an individual trying to identify skills.

For example, figuring out how to get to a certain place demonstrates problem-solving skill. Or, advising a friend who doesn't know what to do about something involves counseling skills.

Bolles classified skills into three areas: functional, specific knowledge and self management skills.

Where these skills are learned — in school, at home or in the street — is unimportant, Bolles said. Identifying them is important, however, because "we tend to carry the same skills with us throughout our careers."

"If you don't know how to identify your skills," Bolles advised job-hunters, "decide where you want to use them, and how to identify such places and then get hired there."

The workshop for MSU advisers and counselors was sponsored by the MSU placement service in cooperation with the Provost's office, College of Social Science, James Madison college and vice president for student affairs and services.

These Yule Logs Shouldn't Burn

By GAYNOR MADDOX
Christmas — all over the world — is a time for joyousness. A time also to serve traditional foods as part of the celebration.

With the French the specialty is Bûche de Noël, or the Christmas log. To children, it reminds them of the customary log in the fireplace. This same French observance has spread and today, in our land, more and more people have adopted the French custom of serving Bûche de Noël at Christmas dinner.

Maurice Bonte, born in Normandy but now one of New York's most noted French bakers, comments on the steadily increasing interest in Bûche de Noël. He says, "I am always seeking way to improve my products. This year I plan to make a cassis-flavored bûche — cassis being black currants distilled or made into a special jam. I use the jam to line the roll, then add cassis liqueur to the special butter cream filling. It is really a glorious creation."

"The chocolate frosting for the entire log is made of the finest domestic chocolate I can get. I do think the imported product is better, a little, but the American brand I use is steady in quality and always available. That is important because I try never to alter the high quality of my products," he says.

"I shall make also a log flavored with Grand Marnier, the orange distilled liqueur, always highly popular in France. I'll line the cake part with thin coatings of orange marmalade made from Seville oranges — slightly bitter — and flavor the filling with flecks of orange peel and Grand Marnier. This makes a particularly exciting Bûche."

Monsieur Bonte is youthful, handsome, loves his petite and energetic wife Suzanne who manages the Patisserie while he attends to the baking. He is father of a seven-year old girl who skis and goes fishing with him on Sundays. He speaks happily of his parents in Normandy who were expert bakers.

Most Christmas logs are made of sponge cake dough baked in a jelly roll pan. But Bonte spurns that recipe. "No, no," he says, "I make a special batter of the freshest eggs available, sugar, fine flour and highest score butter. It is a light and delicate product. I decorate the frosted log with candied mushrooms, candied grass, etc., to make it seem even more like a log from the forest — a perfect log that brings joy at Christmas. I make them in four sizes — 24 inches, 18 inches, 12 inches and 8 inches. The devotion of my American customers gives me great satisfaction. Not only at Christmas time, but all through the year."

The Patisserie is small, immaculate, alive and very French. The cases sparkle with pastries in many colors, many shapes and infinite variety. Bonte has the reputation of being one of the very finest French bakers in the world.

He has four French bakers and two Dominicans working for him. He spends much time testing ingredients and thinks the United States has the finest butter in the world.

"No, I do not notice customers worrying about cholesterol, at least not in my shop. I use only butter — and they do not distress themselves about that. Margarine may be good for other things but not French pastry," he states smiling.

Madame Bonte offered a small French raspberry tart. It was subtly elegant, as was the purest chestnut tart.

Prepare To Change Careers Says Job-Hunting Expert

EAST LANSING — "Career change is in the cards for almost everyone in the world of work," Richard N. Bolles, director of the National Career Development Project, told Michigan State university advisers and counselors at a workshop.

Even people in so-called anchor professions such as medicine, which require much academic preparation, are likely to change careers in their lifetime, said Bolles, an authority on job-hunting and career planning.

But when changing careers or jobs, Bolles added, relying on traditional methods of job-hunting such as newspaper ads, a state employment agency, a private employment agency or a computer job bank will not be very effective.

He said, several studies have shown that "75-80 per cent of the job vacancies which exist at any given moment are not advertised."

Bolles, author of the book "What Color is Your Parachute?" used fluorescent chalk and black light to illustrate his points throughout the day-long workshop.

He diagrammed how careers are broken down into several fields. Each field may include several jobs. Each job requires the performance of several tasks and each task employs several skills.

Skills are the key to job satisfaction, he said, and many people have skills they do not even realize they possess.

Bolles gave workshop participants a list of 99 skills to help them identify their skills. An example of each skill was given in a way that might not occur to an individual trying to identify skills.

For example, figuring out how to get to a certain place demonstrates problem-solving skill. Or, advising a friend who doesn't know what to do about something involves counseling skills.

Bolles classified skills into three areas: functional, specific knowledge and self management skills.

Where these skills are learned — in school, at home or in the street — is unimportant, Bolles said. Identifying them is important, however, because "we tend to carry the same skills with us throughout our careers."

"If you don't know how to identify your skills," Bolles advised job-hunters, "decide where you want to use them, and how to identify such places and then get hired there."

The workshop for MSU advisers and counselors was sponsored by the MSU placement service in cooperation with the Provost's office, College of Social Science, James Madison college and vice president for student affairs and services.

Buchanan Won't Ask For Housing Funds In Grant

BUCHANAN — The Buchanan city commission has struck housing rehabilitation from a list of services that will be provided if the city receives a $400,000 community development grant from the Department of Housing and Urban Development.

Miriam Ohmans, of the Berrien Springs consulting firm Cripps & Associates, suggested changing the grant application last night during the first of two public hearings required on the grant application.

She suggested removing housing rehabilitation from the grant request, she said, because the city is currently getting funds from another grant for that purpose. She suggested, and the commission voted approval, adding the $80,000 to the public works budget, where it would be used for streets, sewers and drains.

She said the grant application will hopefully be filed by Jan. 7.

A second public hearing on the application will be held at the next commission meeting: Dec. 20 at 7:30 p.m.

In other business last night, the commission:

— Voted to sell the 267 shares of Clark Equipment Co. common stock that was left to the Buchanan Teen center by the late Hazel Miles. The stock will be sold today by Mayor Richard Gault, who will deposit the funds in a bank until the city decides how they will be used.

— Authorized payment of the annual December longevity payment for all city employees, who will divide $1,162, as well as a $20 Christmas bonus for each worker.

— Appointed former mayor Joseph Garbert, II, as the commission's legislative coordinator. Most of the work will be done by correspondence, but Garbert will be paid expenses if the job requires traveling.

— Appointed Mrs. Jill Beistle to the Buchanan Area Recreation board to replace Richard Proud, who resigned his recent appointment for business reasons.

Eau Claire Board Hires Auditorium Design Firm

EAU CLAIRE — The Eau Claire school board last night voted to hire the architectural firm of Davenport and Associates, Grand Rapids, to prepare design plans for an auditorium to be added to the high school building.

The cost of the plans are not to exceed $5,000.

Supt. William Horie said the plans are being developed now on the chance that the school district may, at some future date, qualify for a state or federal construction grant to finance the project.

Horie said the board at this time has no plans to build the auditorium with local tax money.

At present, the high school is without an auditorium. Students use the gymnasium or cafeteria for performances and assemblies, Horie said.

In another area, the board voted to allow Horie to enter into private transportation contracts to take high school students to shared time classes outside the district.

Horie said he estimated the district could save as much as $2,500 this year by using private transportation instead of school buses for the classes.

Shared time classes include auto body instruction, nurse's aid training and nature studies offered at one location to students in several school districts.

Horie told board members that the district's declining enrollment reflects the movement of migrant workers out of Michigan. He said enrollment has dropped 180 students since Oct. 1 leaving 1,117 students.

Horie said school officials will survey school district residents prior to scheduling community education classes in the spring. The survey will ask residents what type of classes they would like offered and when the classes should meet.

SJ Firemen Aid Man, 80, With Oxygen

St. Joseph firefighters reported they were called to 435 Ward avenue this morning about 4:30 to administer oxygen to Paul Bunz, 80, who was having trouble breathing. Bunz was taken to Memorial hospital by Action ambulance and was listed in "fair" condition this morning by hospital officials. Firemen said it was not immediately known what was causing the breathing difficulty. An inhalator was used by firemen to provide oxygen for Bunz.

Buchanan Board Seeking Grant

BUCHANAN — The Buchanan school board last night approved seeking $23,839 in federal funds to pay for a machine shop operating instruction class.

Approval came on the request of Wayne Writer, director of community education for the district. Writer said funds would be sought under the Comprehensive Employment Training Act (CETA) program and would fully fund the course. He said 20 men would be trained under the program if funding is obtained.

In other areas, the board discussed but took no action on the needs of Memorial field. Supt. Richard Dougherty said visitor bleachers at the field are unsafe, but no action was taken to replace them until the board studies other needs of the field including the track and the need for additional hard surface parking.

The board accepted a memorial scholarship gift from Mr. and Mrs. Norman Davidson of Buchanan in memory of their late son, Craig. The high school student was killed in a recent traffic accident near Buchanan and the scholarship established in his name will be a one-time award to a member of the graduating class of 1979. Dougherty said an exact amount of the scholarship has not yet been set.

The firm of Crow-Chizek, South Bend, was renamed auditor for the school district. The fee paid the firm for an audit due in August 1977 will be established at a later date, the board said.

Bangor Switches Electric Contract

BANGOR — The Bangor school board last night withdrew the contract it awarded for electrical work on the new elementary school from a Holland firm and awarded it instead to a Grand Rapids firm.

Supt. Fred Stapp said the contract for $63,567 in electrical work on the elementary building was awarded to Van Dyke Electric of Grand Rapids. The contract was originally awarded last week to DeFree Electric, but there were errors in the bid and when it was recompiled, the firm was no longer the low bidder, Stapp said.

Construction on the 16-room elementary school for grades K-2 will begin as soon as the present middle school is torn down.

In other action, the board voted to ask for bank interest bids on $100,000 the school wants to borrow until it receives state aid payments after the first of the year.

Stapp said the school will probably open the bids at its first board meeting in January.

The board also voted to ask for bids on two 1967 school buses it wants to sell.

Rezoning Is Topic In Bangor

BANGOR — The Bangor city council referred two rezoning requests to the city planning commission during last night's meeting.

A request to rezone the Durward Waugh property, located at the intersection of Monroe, Randolph and Cass streets, was made by Chiropractic Physician George Smith, whose office is now on M-43. Under the request the land would be rezoned for a physician's office.

Also, Paul Rigozzi of High street asked that part of his lot be rezoned from its current residential use to allow a trailer.

The council agreed to send a telegram to State Sens. Gary Byker and Charles Zollar urging a "No" vote on a bill that would prohibit cities and villages from annexing township property.

Also, the council voted to cover parking meters from now until Jan. 3 for the convenience of shoppers.

Eau Claire Meeting Is Set Dec. 20

EAU CLAIRE — Last night's meeting of the Eau Claire village council was postponed because several village officials were out of town, according to Clerk Ruth Sharp. She said the council will instead meet next Monday, Dec. 20.

New Buffalo Boy Facing Theft Count

NEW BUFFALO — A 16-year-old New Buffalo boy was arrested on a charge of unlawfully driving away a motor vehicle early this morning in Three Oaks in connection with the alleged theft of a 1954 model pickup truck from a service station here.

Dale Siebenmark, New Buffalo police chief, said the boy was lodged in the Berrien county juvenile detention center.

Siebenmark said Three Oaks police stopped a pickup truck driven by the boy in the village at 12:50 a.m. today. He said it was not until after the truck was stopped that police learned it had been taken from the service station.

The truck is owned by Marie Purtha, Wolcott avenue, Sawyer, and was taken from the Christopher Shell station, 127 West Buffalo street, where it had been taken for repairs, police said.

Court Rulings Sting Feminists

By RICHARD CARELLI
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Feminists fear recent Supreme Court setbacks to the women's movement may represent the reversal of a court trend that had been beneficial to emerging women's rights.

They say, however, that such defeats will only rekindle efforts to pass the Equal Rights Amendment to the Constitution as a means of introducing "a different constitutional standard."

"It's hard to believe those nine men can reach decisions like they did today and then go home and face their wives," an angry feminist said Monday. "Those decisions were disastrous."

The nine men are the justices of the Supreme Court, which Monday dealt two blows to women's rights groups. Those groups were still smarting from the court's ruling last week that employers with employee disability programs are not legally required to provide women with pregnancy benefits. The court ruled unanimously Monday that divorced women are not entitled to all the Social Security benefits that go to married women.

The justices also let stand a Kentucky law requiring married women to adopt their husband's last name before receiving a driver's license.

Together with last week's decision on pregnancy benefits, these decisions are being pointed to by leaders of the women's movement as evidence that the court may no longer be as receptive to their complaints as it recently was.

Whether there is in fact a new trend on the court should become clearer in coming months when the court hands down decisions in some pending cases that have interested the women's movement.

James Earl Ray Attempt To Appeal Is Rejected

By RICHARD CARELLI
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court Monday refused to review James Earl Ray's unsuccessful attempt to withdraw his guilty plea in the assassination of Dr. Martin Luther King.

The court voted not to consider Ray's contention that he was "framed by the FBI and local police, and then coerced by his own attorney to plead guilty against his will."

Just last week, a special congressional committee authorized $6.5 million for the first year of an investigation into the assassinations of President John F. Kennedy and the Rev. Mr. King, one of the nation's leading civil rights activists.

In seeking Supreme Court review, Ray's attorney said the case "raises major constitutional issues with respect to voluntariness of the plea, waiver of conflict of interest on SAULT STE. MARIE, Mich. (AP) — A Chippewa Indian reservation should not be created inside the city limits, according to Sault Ste. Marie city commissioners.

But a spokesman for the Bureau of Indian Affairs told the commission Monday that its approval would not be necessary for the tribe to go ahead with its plans.

Verna Lawrence, a city commissioner and a member of the board of directors of the city's Chippewa tribe, introduced the proposal to block creation of a federal reservation in the city's depressed Mar-Shunk area. Tribal Chairman Joseph Lumsden and tribal attorney Dan Green had said the city's approval was not required when they announced plans to accept federal money for a low-income housing project.

"City residents, and this includes Indian people who have contacted me, are not in favor" of the plan, Ms. Lawrence said.

"They do not oppose housing, but do oppose creation of a reservation to segregate and isolate the Indian people," she said. "Reserve status of the land does not truly reflect the desires of the majority of the Indian people, who are integrated into this community."

The tribal chairman, however, said members of the Indian community unanimously supported the plan during a public hearing, and, "We will proceed" with reservation plans.

Lumsden also said there were racial overtones in Monday's vote, and said he wished other groups "would stay out of tribal business."

Key Senator Fears Ethics Bill Could Be Unconstitutional

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — With less than a week before the end of the legislative session, a key state Senator says he may try to send a major political regulation bill to a conference committee because he fears it may be unconstitutional.

Sen. Patrick McCollough, D-Deerborn, said Monday he is worried about the bill, which he sponsored, because it has been drastically changed by the House.

He said he would decide today whether to go along with the House version or urge it be sent to a House-Senate conference committee. All bills must be approved by the end of the week or die when the two-year session comes to an end.

McCollough's bill would require reporting of campaign donations and expenditures. The House added provisions for partial public funding of gubernatorial campaigns.

As now written, the bill reflects agreements reached at behind-the-scenes bargaining between Republicans and majority Democrats. Gov. William Milliken vetoed earlier attempts to enact the bills separately during a dispute over the campaign financing bill.

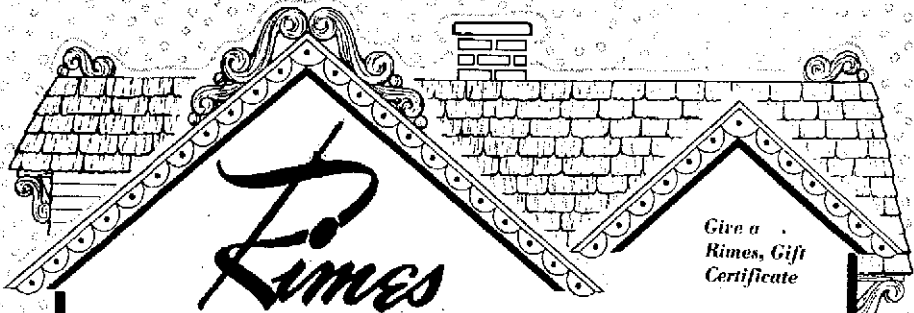

McCollough said the bill may run into the same problem which torpedoed an earlier, more all-encompassing political regulation bill. That measure was ruled unconstitutional by the state Supreme Court because it included too many provisions in one bill.

"By combining the elements of campaign finance reform and gubernatorial funding within one bill...I am afraid we could be heading toward a similar constitutional dilemma in court," McCollough said.

Court Rulings Sting Feminists

By RICHARD CARELLI
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Feminists fear recent Supreme Court setbacks to the women's movement may represent the reversal of a court trend that had been beneficial to emerging women's rights.

They say, however, that such defeats will only rekindle efforts to pass the Equal Rights Amendment to the Constitution as a means of introducing "a different constitutional standard."

"It's hard to believe those nine men can reach decisions like they did today and then go home and face their wives," an angry feminist said Monday. "Those decisions were disastrous."

The nine men are the justices of the Supreme Court, which Monday dealt two blows to women's rights groups. Those groups were still smarting from the court's ruling last week that employers with employee disability programs are not legally required to provide women with pregnancy benefits.

The court ruled unanimously Monday that divorced women are not entitled to all the Social Security benefits that go to married women.

The justices also let stand a Kentucky law requiring married women to adopt their husband's last name before receiving a driver's license.

Together with last week's decision on pregnancy benefits, these decisions are being pointed to by leaders of the women's movement as evidence that the court may no longer be as receptive to their complaints as it recently was.

Whether there is in fact a new trend on the court should become clearer in coming months when the court hands down decisions in some pending cases that have interested the women's movement.

The women's movement had fared well in the courts since 1971, most notably advancing when the Supreme Court ruled in 1973 that abortion is the private right of any woman in her first three months of pregnancy.

The court has since struck down various attempts by states to regulate abortions in the first three months.

Women's rights also made strides before the high court in areas such as equal pay for equal work, equal opportunities in education, including school sports, and equal treatment in the business community in hiring and credit practice.

But this month's decisions are being viewed as a drastic reversal.

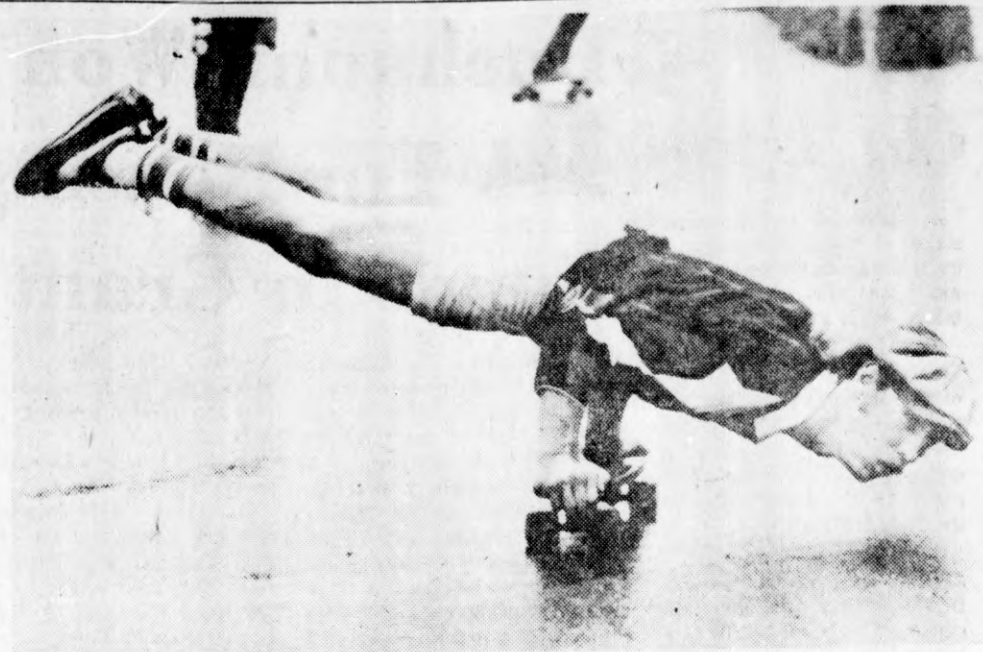

Feminist leaders called the court's pregnancy decision the greatest single setback to the women's movement in the past five years.

Just last week, a special congressional committee authorized $6.5 million for the first year of an investigation into the assassinations of President John F. Kennedy and the Rev. Mr. King, one of the nation's leading civil rights activists.

In seeking Supreme Court review, Ray's attorney said the case "raises major constitutional issues with respect to voluntariness of the plea, waiver of conflict of interest on the part of criminal defense attorneys, professional and ethical competence and obligations in representing a defendant...."

King was killed by a rifle blast in Memphis, Tenn., in 1968. Ray was arrested in London a short time later and extradited to the United States to stand trial for murder.

His case never reached a jury because he subsequently pleaded guilty.

Ray's appeal for review by the high court said his financial agreements with attorneys Arthur Hanes and Percy Foreman and author William Bradford Huie precluded his chance to receive fair representation. Ray said Foreman forced him to plead guilty.

The appeal said other, conflicting considerations by Ray's attorneys led to a "gross violation of the right to private attorney-client communications."

A lower court's finding that there was "potential and limited actual conflicts of interest" by Ray's defense attorneys should be enough to have his case reviewed, his appeal said.

"The charge is that those who did kill Dr. King are still at large, protected in part by the unwillingness of the courts to face these unpleasant facts," Ray's appeal said.

Ray is now an inmate at the Tennessee State Prison where he is serving a life sentence.

"I also am concerned about other aspects of this substitute measure, such as its comparability to the federal political reform law, which has served as one of the guidelines for current legislation," he added.

McCollough said he has asked Common Cause and other interested groups to review the bill.

Hearings Slated On Dual Listings

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — The state will hold public hearings on proposals to list both wives' and husbands' names in telephone directories.

The Michigan Public Service Commission on Monday indicated support for the idea. But the three-member panel said it needs more information before deciding whether phone companies should charge a fee for the double listing.

Commissioner William Ralls says he has received letters from women around the state objecting to the automatic listing of the husband's name unless an extra fee is paid. Several other states are considering changes in the listing procedure.

The only Michigan telephone company that now prints couples' names together is the Chippewa Telephone Co. in the Upper Peninsula. Chippewa lists no addresses in its directories, however.

Michigan Bell Telephone Co. permits multiple listings for a single phone number, but charges a $5 one-time fee and 45 cents a month for each extra listing. The listings are alphabetical, so spouses may not be listed together in the directory.

Bell now suggests printing the husband's and wife's names together twice — alternating the spouses' first names so that the couple would appear two times. The fee would be the same.

For example, one listing could be "Smith, Alice-Ralph," and the second, further down in the Smith column, would be "Smith, Ralph-Alice."

Ralls said he backs a plan suggested by the Michigan Consumers Council to let couples squeeze their names into the same space now taken up by their single listing. If that could be done with abbreviations or initials, it should be free, the council says.

No dates were set for the public hearings, which the commission said will be aimed at coming up with standards for all 52 phone companies in the state.

Aftermath Of Family Shooting

Joe Tilton, 38, visits his 4-year-old son, Jody, in hospital in Oklahoma City. The son was wounded by his mother Dec. 4. She then killed herself.

The father says the mother loved Jody "so much she wanted to take him with her." He said he hopes his son adopts that outlook. He says he doesn't ever expect to understand just what went on in his wife's mind before she died.

Doctors say the boy should recover completely from damage caused by a single .45-caliber bullet.

Tilton said he and his wife of 10 years had a "super family life" and there was "no question" she loved her family.

"Something somewhere snapped, and I just thank God that something happened when I could be a part of saving my son's life." (AP Wirephoto)

Rapes Probed At Ann Arbor

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP) — A woman was raped Monday night by a man police say they believe is responsible for three other rapes and as many as 12 other assaults in recent months in this college town.

A police official said today the woman, described as in her mid-20s, was attacked by a man carrying a kitchen knife about 8 p.m. near the train depot, some three blocks from the University of Michigan's central campus. Police said the woman said she is self-employed and they believed she is not a student.

A campus police official said the unit has been offering increased security since the assaults began this fall, including transportation or escort service from students' apartments to campus locations on request. He said the university has also extended its night bus service from 1 a.m. to 5:30 a.m.

A city police spokesman said many of the rapes and purse-snatchings or armed robberies have occurred about the same time of evening, but in different locations in the city.

He said the composite pictures of the attacker made with the assistance of the victims is very similar, although there are minor differences. But he said police believe the man involved is the same.

Decorating Trends

THE FIREPLACE offers many a living room an ideal focal point around which major pieces of furniture can be grouped. It gives the room architectural interest, warmth and a convenient center of interest.

But what of the home or the apartment without a fireplace? Its living room lacks that convenient focus, and without it a room can still look empty simply by a box with furniture around the perimeter.

In such a room you must create your own focal point. You can do it a variety of ways. You can use a view window, for instance, and group furniture on either side of it as you do with a fireplace. You might use the television set, or a home entertainment center, or stereo set as the center of interest.

Another idea is to introduce a piece of furniture which is big enough, dramatic enough and of sufficient architectural interest to function as a focal point. A big, handsome breakfast nook would be a good example. Use the curved and interpreted decorative Mediterranean style.

Remember that your room must have some point of view. Find it, and the whole room will fall together! And to find that line or impressive piece of furniture that will act as a center of interest in your home, look over our display by the leading furniture designers and manufacturers. U.S. Mayors Ask $12.3 Billion Plan

ATLANTA (AP) — A $12.3-billion federal spending plan designed to create more than a million new jobs is being laid before Jimmy Carter by a group of hopeful big city mayors.

Leaders of the U.S. Conference of Mayors and the National League of Cities were providing Carter today with an extensive laundry list of legislation they say is needed to revitalize the nation's cities. A conference plan calls for a $20-billion economic stimulus, including a $7.7-billion tax rebate.

Several favorable economic and political factors have raised the mayors' hopes. Carter is known to be weighing several spending and tax packages to stimulate the sagging economy. He has made it clear that job creation is his top priority.

The President-elect won huge pluralities throughout the nation's cities en route to narrow presidential victory, with key support from several of the mayors who gathered here today — especially Abraham Beame of New York, Coleman Young of Detroit and Henry Maier of Milwaukee.

"The $20-billion economic stimulus must be acted upon immediately to get the economy moving," said Newark Mayor Kenneth Gibson.

Electors Want End To System

By MIKE SHANAHAN
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Even as presidential electors confirmed Jimmy Carter's election to the presidency, some called for abolition of the Electoral College as a cumbersome mechanism that could thwart the will of the voters.

As if to dramatize their point, a maverick elector in the state of Washington cast his vote for ex-Calif. Gov. Ronald Reagan, who was not even on the ballot in the general election.

"A very curious institution," college professor Lawrence Longley said in describing the Electoral College before joining with 10 other Wisconsin electors who urged that it be dissolved before the next presidential election.

In Iowa, elector James Senior said, "The real electors are the people who vote on election day."

By a seven-to-one vote, the Iowa electors went on to recommend that Congress either abolish the system through constitutional amendment or change it to prevent some future presidential candidate from losing the popular vote but winning the White House in the Electoral College.

Their fears did not materialize this year.

On Monday, the electors gave 297 votes to Carter, 240 to his Republican opponent, President Ford, and one to Reagan. Carter needed a simple majority of 270 from the 538 electors to win.

Republicans in Ohio had charged voting irregularities and sued to halt the certification by the state's 23 electors. But a federal judge cleared the way for the ballots to be cast routinely.

While the electoral vote was being recorded in 50 state capitals and the District of Columbia, official popular vote figures showed Carter's winning margin in the Nov. 2 election was 1,801,135. Carter received 40,827,292 votes and carried 23 states and the District of Columbia to 39,146,157 and 27 states for Ford.

A record 81.52 million Americans voted in the election. The last act in the process of making the election official comes Jan. 6 when Vice President Nelson A. Rockefeller will formally announce the outcome to the surprise of no one, at a joint session of Congress.

There is nothing in the Constitution requiring the electors, mainly Republican or Democratic party regulars, to vote for any specific candidate. Taking advantage of that fact was Spokane lawyer Mike Padden, who was supposed to vote for Ford.

Padden decided to protest Ford's unwillingness to endorse a constitutional amendment to ban abortion, a position Reagan has endorsed, and he voted for the man whom Ford beat for the GOP nomination.

Give 'Em Praise, Too

NEW YORK (AP) — What do secretaries want most from employers?

International Management reports that in order of importance it's praise, attentiveness and small gifts, such as flowers and chocolates.

The magazine cites a survey taken of 153 secretaries in West Germany.

Michigan Goes For Ford

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — President Ford and Sen. Robert Dole won the votes of Michigan's electoral college members on Monday.

Ford carried his home state by a narrow popular-vote margin in last month's presidential election.

Although electoral college members are not bound to any candidate, Michigan's 21 delegates voted as expected.

The formal meeting in the Senate chambers took an hour to complete, with Gov. William Milliken, Lt. Gov. James Danman and state GOP Chairman William McLaughlin in attendance.

The liveliest part was when the electors — one from each congressional district and two at large — sang "Happy Birthday" to one of their members.

Each elector received a certificate from the governor and a picture of the presentation.

The last act in the process of making the election official comes Jan. 6 when Vice President Nelson A. Rockefeller was Spokane lawyer Mike Padden, who was supposed to vote for Ford.

Padden decided to protest Ford's unwillingness to endorse a constitutional amendment to ban abortion, a position Reagan has endorsed, and he voted for the man whom Ford beat for the GOP nomination.

Michigan Goes For Ford

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — President Ford and Sen. Robert Dole won the votes of Michigan's electoral college members on Monday.

Ford carried his home state by a narrow popular-vote margin in last month's presidential election.

Although electoral college members are not bound to any candidate, Michigan's 21 delegates voted as expected.

The formal meeting in the Senate chambers took an hour to complete, with Gov. William Milliken, Lt. Gov. James Damman and state GOP Chairman William McLaughlin in attendance.

The liveliest part was when the electors — one from each congressional district and two at large — sang "Happy Birthday" to one of their members.

Each elector received a certificate from the governor and a picture of the presentation.

Suspension, Building Rules OK'd In Covert

COVERT — Policies dealing with student suspensions and community use of school facilities won approval by the Covert school board last night.

Senior citizens groups, the PTO, and Boosters club will not be charged for using facilities under the new policy. Rates for other groups are $10 each for the cafeteria or a classroom, and $25 each for the high school auditorium, pool, and gym, and elementary school gym.

In addition, groups charged for use of facilities would have to pay an hourly custodial fee. Board member Carl Gregeriet voted against the policy, explaining that he felt it was unfair to charge religious and social groups when the community service organizations were not.

Voting for the policy were Harold Bracken, Alice Blair, Bernard Lucas, Donald Quinn, Jerry Foster, and the Rev. L.C. Berry.

Shortly after passing the policy, the board voted 6-1 to allow organizers of the Miss Covert Blossomtime contest to use the high school auditorium free of charge. Gregeriet again voted no, explaining that he had nothing against the contest, but felt that allowing free usage went contrary to the policy.

The suspension policy, approved on a 5-2 vote, allows the superintendent to suspend a student until the next regular board of education meeting, at which time the suspension would be reviewed. Only the board could expel a student under the policy.

Gregeriet said after the meeting he opposed the policy because it makes no provision for a student's parents being consulted before he is suspended.

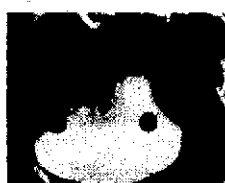

Later in the meeting, the board voted 6-1 to suspend a 17-year-old high school student until the end of the semester Jan. 21. Reasons given for the suspension were frequent inattentiveness of classes and other disciplinary problems.

The name of the student was not released. Gregeriet again voted no, citing his disagreement with the suspension policy.

In other areas, the board approved the purchase of a $650 lift truck from Kalamazoo Mill Supply; $1,746 to Ransom Brothers, South Haven, to paint two cafeteria walls and a corridor; and $142 to the McFadden Corporation for elementary seating equipment. All were low bids.

The board also approved spending $1,210 for science equipment, $125 for photography equipment, $475 for exterminating services, $190 to build a stairway to a storage area in the elementary school gym and $1,425 for library equipment.

Building Report Due In January At River Valley

THREE OAKS — A report on a structural study of River Valley school district's two 50-year-old middle school buildings will probably be ready in January. Supt. Charles Williams told the River Valley school board last night.

He said the Kalamazoo architectural firm of Kingscott Associates is scheduled to make the study over the Christmas vacation and have the report ready for a yet unscheduled public hearing after the first of the year.

The school district has ordered various studies of the middle school buildings at New Troy and Three Oaks at the request of parents. Two bond issues that would have financed middle school construction have been defeated.

Dr. Williams said the Berrien county health department inspected the buildings on Nov. 17 and health officials reported finding roof leaks, heating problems, a lack of emergency exits on upper floors, poor lighting, low water pressure, weak floors and poor water drainage in school yards.

He said fire chiefs from the New Troy and Three Oaks fire departments are expected to have their inspection reports prepared in time for a Jan. 11 school board meeting.

Dr. John Dooley, assistant superintendent, added that he reviewed heating problems at the two schools and found that it was costing from $3,500 to $4,000 yearly to keep heating units repaired.

In other areas, the board adopted a resolution praising the River Valley girls basketball team which went to the Class B girls state basketball championship before being defeated.

The board named its treasurer, Larry Mitchell, as its representative to Berrien county intermediate school district budget hearings.

Delaware To Pay Winners

WILMINGTON, Del. (AP) — Delaware lottery officials say they will pay winners of last weekend's canceled football lottery because the state attorney general advised them they had no right to call it off.

Peter M. Simmons, lottery director, said Monday the commission received the advice of Atty. Gen. Richard R. Wier, Jr. to rescind the cancellation order of the Touchdown II football lottery game.

Covert Board Hires Consultant To Seek A Development Grant

COVERT — The Covert township board last night voted to hire a consultant to seek a community development grant of up to $100,000 for township redevelopment.

If granted, the Department of Housing and Urban Development funds would be used to demolish sub-standard houses, relocate families and aid low income homeowners pay the costs of sewer hook-ups, according to Township Supervisor Jerry Sarno.

Hired was Leslie R. Cripps, of Berrien Springs, a private consultant for city planning and community development. He told the board that his $1,500 fee for preparing and filing the preapplication will have to be paid by local sources.

The application itself must be filed by Feb. 18, he said. Before filing the application, Cripps will meet with the township planning commission to decide what part of the township will be redeveloped.

A public hearing, scheduled for Jan. 18 at 7 p.m. at the township hall, will be held to determine the exact boundaries of the redevelopment area, the board decided.

Cripps' fee for fund administration would be about 10 percent of the value of the federal grant approved, he explained.

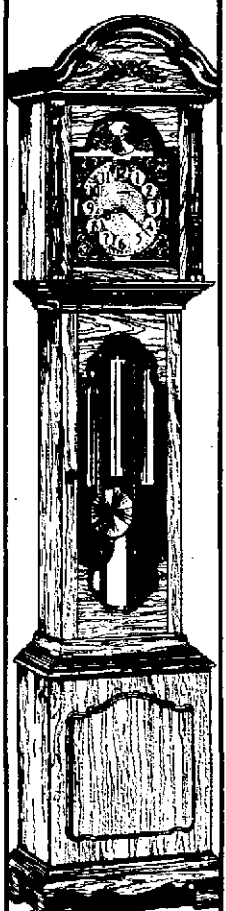

Also last night a handful of senior citizens complained about the lack of recreational programs and transportation in the Covert area. Sarno told the senior citizens that the township, by law, cannot enter into the transportation business now being provided on a once-a-week basis by the county.

Board members also voted to pay their own expenses to the annual convention of township officials, to be held Jan. 13-15 in Grand Rapids. The statewide convention will deal with budget management and other phases of township business, the board was told. All five board members indicated they will attend the meeting.

Coloma Offers City Parking Lot As Library Site

COLOMA — The Coloma city commission last night officially offered the Coloma Library board the city-owned parking lot as a site for a proposed new library.

The offer was made by city officials as a move to encourage library board members to construct the new facility inside the city limits rather than in Coloma township.

According to Mrs. Patricia Beezley, city clerk, the library is considering the construction of a new 8,000 square foot building on property adjacent to the new Hilltop Food Store in the township.

City officials are anxious to keep the library in the city, said Mrs. Beezley, because the city is centrally located for all library patrons and best serves the elderly and school children.

The library board earlier this year applied for a $300,000 federal public works employment act grant, with the money to be used to replace the present facility located on East Logan street.

The library board plans to construct an 8,000 square foot library costing an estimated $240,000, provided the grant is approved. If the grant is denied, the size of the new facility would be reduced to 6,000 square feet, according to Mrs. Beezley.

Bernard Finch, library board chairman, thanked the city for the land offer but did not indicate the site would be utilized.

In other areas, the commission approved a one-year service contract with two employees of the county equalization department to do assessing in

Coloma Schools Eyeing Alarms

COLOMA — A Coloma school administrator told Coloma school board members last night some thought is being given to installing a limited alarm system in the school building to curb a recent rash of break-ins.

Ronald Clark, assistant superintendent, told the board he will seek costs for installing some type of limited alarm system which will notify police that an entry has been made into a school building.

Clark's comments followed a report to the board about five break-ins at buildings in the school system since early October.

Clark said the break-ins have occurred at the high school, junior high, and three break-ins at the middle school.

According to Clark, the first break-in occurred Oct. 7 and 11 at the middle school where public address speakers were removed.

In the other break-ins, assorted change has been reported taken and glass doors or windows broken.

But Supt. William Barrett told the board that right now an alarm system would cost more than the break-ins.

According to Barrett the school insurance covers vandalism amounting to $1,000 or more, for each break-in, and for replacement of stolen items.

In 1974, school board members were considering the installation of complete alarm systems for the buildings but dropped the idea because of the installation and monthly operating costs.

In other areas, Clark announced the Coloma Band Boosters club has presented the school with a check for $8,794 for the cost of 110 new junior high hand uniforms. The money was collected through fund-raising activities.

Clark reported two bus bids awarded to Zerbel GMC last month have been withdrawn.

The bid from Zerbel did not meet all bid specifications, according to Clark. As a result, he said, only two, instead of four, bus chassis are being purchased from Zerbel at $10,065 each, with the two remaining being ordered from the second lowest bidder, Gersonde Equipment, at $10,170.

The board empowered a committee to purchase a new pickup truck. The committee is made

Hagar Board Votes To Join Area Sewage Treatment Study

The Hagar township board last night approved an agreement to participate with nine other local governments in the area in an engineering study of sewage treatment needs for the next 20 years.

The agreement approved was in the form of a resolution which affirmed the township's intent to participate.

Completion of the study is required by the state and federal governments before any more grant money can be released for sewage construction.

The state and federal governments will pay for 80 per cent of the cost of the engineering study, and the local governments will share the remainder of the cost on a prorated basis.

The other governmental units selected by the state department of natural resources to participate in the study are the cities of Benton Harbor and St. Joseph, the villages of Shoreham and Stevensville, and the townships of Benton, St. Joseph, Lincoln and Royallton.

Hagar township was the final governmental unit to enter into the agreement.

The resolution passed last night designates the board of commissioners of the Twin Cities sewage disposal plant as the agency to apply for funding for the study.

The offer was made by city officials as a move to encourage library board members to construct the new facility inside the city limits rather than in Coloma township.

According to Mrs. Patricia Beezley, city clerk, the library is considering the construction of a new 8,000 square foot building on property adjacent to the new Hilltop Food store in the township.

City officials are anxious to keep the library in the city, said Mrs. Beezley, because the city is centrally located for all library patrons and best serves the elderly and school children.

The library board earlier this year applied for a $300,000 federal public works employment act grant, with the money to be used to replace the present facility located on East Logan street.

The library board plans to construct an 8,000 square foot library costing an estimated $240,000, provided the grant is approved. If the grant is denied, the size of the new facility would be reduced to 6,000 square feet, according to Mrs. Beezley.

Bernard Finch, library board chairman, thanked the city for the land offer but did not indicate the site would be utilized. In other areas, the commission approved a one-year service contract with two employees of the county equalization department to do assessing in the city at a cost of $2,000.

Hired under the contract were Barbara Beatty and David Hart.

Prior to accepting the service contract, the commission accepted the resignation of present city assessor Marvin Taylor, effective Jan. 1.

The commission discussed possible legal action against a St. Joseph engineering firm which designed an ice skating rink in Randall Community park which city officials said has failed to hold water.

The problem last winter prevented the rink's use, with the same problem existing this year, even though the engineering firm said it had corrected the problem.

Coloma Schools Eyeing Alarms

COLOMA — A Coloma school administrator told Coloma school board members last night some thought is being given to installing a limited alarm system in the school building to curb a recent rash of break-ins.

Ronald Clark, assistant superintendent, told the board he will seek costs for installing some type of limited alarm system which will notify police that an entry has been made into a school building.

Clark's comments followed a report to the board about five break-ins at buildings in the school system since early October.

Clark said the break-ins have occurred at the high school, junior high, and three break-ins at the middle school.

According to Clark, the first break-ins occurred Oct. 7 and 11 at the middle school where public address speakers were removed.

In the other break-ins, assorted change has been reported taken and glass doors or windows broken.

But Supt. William Barrett told the board that right now an alarm system would cost more than the break-ins.

According to Barrett the school insurance covers vandalism amounting to $1,000 or more, for each break-in, and for replacement of stolen items.

In 1974, school board members were considering the installation of complete alarm systems for the buildings but dropped the idea because of the installation and monthly operating costs.

In other areas, Clark announced the Coloma Band Boosters club has presented the school with a check for $8,794 for the cost of 110 new junior high band uniforms. The money was collected through fund-raising activities.

Clark reported two bus bids awarded to Zerbel GMC last month have been withdrawn.

The bid from Zerbel did not meet all bid specifications, according to Clark. As a result, he said, only two, instead of four, bus chassis are being purchased from Zerbel at $10,065 each, with the two remaining being ordered from the second lowest bidder, Gersonde Equipment, at $10,170.

The board empowered a committee to purchase a new pickup truck. The committee is made

Hagar Board Votes To Join Area Sewage Treatment Study

The Hagar township board last night approved an agreement to participate with nine other local governments in the area in an engineering study of sewage treatment needs for the next 20 years.

The agreement approved was in the form of a resolution which affirmed the township's intent to participate.

Completion of the study is required by the state and federal governments before any more grant money can be released for sewage construction.

The state and federal governments will pay for 80 per cent of the cost of the engineering study, and the local governments will share the remainder of the cost on a prorated basis.

The other governmental units selected by the state department of natural resources to participate in the study are the cities of Benton Harbor and St. Joseph, the villages of Shoreham and Stevensville, and the townships of Benton, St. Joseph, Lincoln and Roylton.

Hagar township was the final governmental unit to enter into the agreement.

The resolution passed last night designates the board of commissioners of the Twin Cities sewage disposal plant as the agency to apply for funding for the study.

In other areas, Supervisor

Edward Broderick announced the township dump will have new hours beginning Saturday.

The dump, located on Coloma road, east of the I-196 overpass, will be open on Saturdays only from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m., through March 1.

The dump, however, will be open Friday, Dec. 24 and Sunday, Dec. 26, from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m., both days for disposal of holiday wrappings, said Broderick.

The board accepted an overall sketch plan prepared by the township and county planning commissions, outlining the township's predicted growth pattern for the next 20 years.

Stay Of Execution Lifted

Utah's capital punishment law was constitutional and that Gilmore's own desire to face the firing squad makes no difference. The fourth, Justice Thurgood Marshall, said he disagreed specifically with Chief Justice Warren Burger's view "that Gilmore has competently, knowingly and intelligently decided to let himself be killed."

Stanger, who visited Gilmore Monday night, said his client was "very happy" the high court acted quickly.

Mrs. Gilmore's attorneys, Stanford law professor Anthony Amsterdam and Salt Lake City lawyer Richard Glasque, declined comment.

Stanger said Gilmore, who has lost 38 of his 178 pounds since starting a hunger strike Nov. 19, did not express "a desire to die as such" when he saw him Monday night. But Stanger said Gilmore instructed him to enter "no delaying tactic whatsoever. It's Gary's desire that the justice system act quickly and effectively."

He described Gilmore as "somber and reflective of his feelings."

Opponents of capital punishment said they would try to get another stay even though Gilmore doesn't want it.

"We're not going to give up at this point," said Jinks Dabney, an attorney for the Utah branch of the American Civil Liberties Union.

Efforts to prevent the execution also were expected from lawyers for other death-row inmates who fear Gilmore's death could hasten their own.

It was uncertain what the state's next move would be, although one attorney said Gilmore probably would face District Court Judge J. Robert Bullock for another execution date.

Even if Gilmore won his point about the time limit, he faces another first-degree murder trial in the slaying of a gas station attendant one night before he killed the motel clerk.

The Supreme Court majority, led by Burger, refused to accept the appeal on grounds that Gilmore himself "knowingly and intelligently" waived his right to appeal his conviction.

Burger quoted Gilmore's own words that he did not "care to languish in prison for another day."

Justice Byron R. White said in dissent that Gilmore's own desire to be killed is not the deciding point. White said the Supreme Court should not stand aside and let the death penalty be imposed when Utah courts have not yet ruled specifically whether death is a cruel and unusual punishment.

Burger said the decision was purely a jurisdictional one, and the U.S. Supreme Court could accept the appeal from Gilmore's mother only if there was some evidence that he was incompetent or unable to act on his own.

Unions May Aid Carter

WASHINGTON (AP) — A heavy year of labor negotiations looms ahead, and forecasters say unions are likely to help President-elect Carter's anti-inflation efforts by keeping wage increases moderate.

The help is more likely to result from economic circumstances rather than any effort on labor's part to kowtow to the new administration.

About five million workers will be affected in major contract talks next year, about the same number as in 1976, which had the heaviest bargaining calendar in three years. A number of key industries will be affected: steel, coal, longshoring, telephone communications, aerospace manufacturing, railroad and construction.

and said that when he tried for a transfer earlier it was blocked. He told The Associated Press he then learned that while his supervisors were telling him he was doing a good job, they were secretly writing evaluations downgrading his performance because, in his view, he raised unwanted safety questions about the Clinch River Breeder Reactor, a project to demonstrate a "next-generation" type of nuclear power plant.

"It was happening to everybody," Basdekas said, referring to other engineers who posed safety questions.

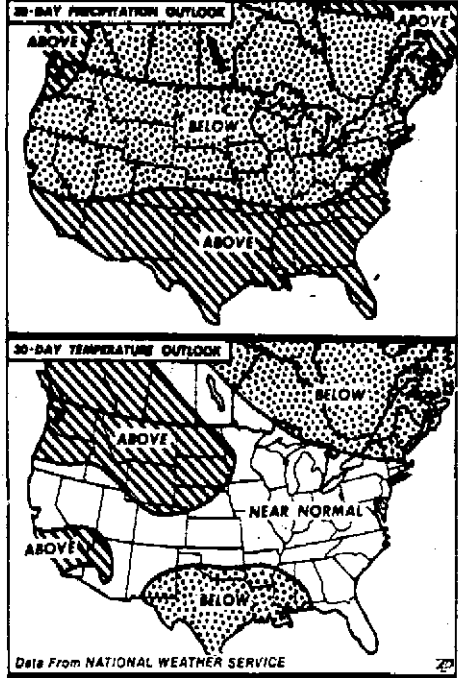

"There were secret evaluations and blackballing."

"We had asked for transfers earlier, but once we found out what was happening, we said, 'This is dirty pool, we have to fight back.'"

Basdekas charged that his sudden transfer now, out of power plant review, "was designed to intimidate others and to put me down. They hoped I would get cold feet and be afraid to talk."

He said he had NRC documents to support his charges and would provide them to Glenn.

Testifying about alleged NRC mismanagement, in addition to Basdekas and Marinos, were nuclear engineers Don R. Lasher and Jose Calvo and former NRC engineer Ron Fleuge, whose resignation and public criticism of the agency last October prompted Glenn's hearings.

Welfare Report Suggests Possible Probe Coverup

DETROIT (AP) — Michigan's social services director is probing reports that some Wayne County welfare officials may have attempted to cover up conditions at a county youth home.

Employees said they were pressured to say "as little as possible" to a welfare department task force investigating the home's condition, says the task force's confidential report. A copy of the report was obtained by the Detroit Free Press.

The probe is also considering the failure of Wayne County welfare director R.B. Shelton to reveal the existence of the damaging task force report to Dempsey's office.

Sources told the Free Press Shelton apparently kept the report secret for five months until social services Director John Dempsey found out about it in late October and demanded a copy.

Dempsey, chief administrator of the welfare agencies in each of the state's 83 counties, said Monday the information available to him indicates a coverup attempt may have been made.

"I am puzzled by the fact that no one told me that the (task force report) was done for five months," Dempsey said.

He said he was also surprised the report did not identify three officials who allegedly threatened and intimidated employees in an effort to keep the home's condition a secret.

The subject of the task force report is the closing last May of the Jefferson Intake Center in Detroit. The state-run home for delinquents and abused or neglected children was closed

Teron Waives Extradition

BY TOM SAWYER Staff Writer

Gregory J. Teron, Jr., charged in an open murder warrant in the death of Mrs. Norma Granzow Masham, is scheduled to be returned tomorrow from Miami, Fla., where he waived extradition after his arrest last Friday, according to Berrien Sheriff Forrest (Nick) Jewell.

Sheriff Jewell said Chief Berrien Deputy Don Jewell and Greg Duerr, St. Joseph township police officer, left this morning to pick up Teron.

Teron was the object of a nation-wide search after the body of Mrs. Masham was found nude and bound in her home at 232 Bradford drive, Fairplain, Oct. 24.

Teron was arrested at a service station in Miami by agents of the FBI after they received a tip, according to John Smietanka, Berrien county prosecutor.

Sheriff Jewell said a twin-engine plane was chartered to bring Teron back because of airline regulations concerning transporting persons charged with "serious" felonies.

He said Don Jewell and Randall Arnt, chief investigator for the prosecutor's office would return with Teron in the plane. Arnt went to Miami after Teron was arrested.

Jewell said Duerr would return Mrs. Masham's car which was also found when Teron was arrested.

Teron was arrested by the FBI on a federal warrant charging unlawful flight to avoid prosecution on a state charge of receiving and concealing stolen property (a 1976 Ford Mustang allegedly stolen in California and left at the home of Mrs. Masham).

A state warrant charging open murder was issued in Berrien county Monday after Teron's arrest in Miami.

He said the free-of-charge workshops are open to the public.

Seven Vie For Lottery Prize

ANSING, Mich. (AP) — A Bay City auto parts store manager will try to win another $100,000 as he defends his crown as "super player" in the Michigan Lottery's Michigan game on Thursday. Louis Sylvester, 54, who won $105,000 last week, will face six challengers. Each is guaranteed to win at least $5,000 in the televised drawing in Detroit. The 7:30 p.m. lottery show will also produce the winning numbers for the second week of the Winter Wonderland game. Challenging Sylvester for the $100,000 prize will be Peter Adams, 64, a retiree from Onaway; Martha Buhnerkemper, 42, a Detroit homemaker; Richard Geiser, 52, an accountant from Grosse Ile; Maxine Giesmick, 51, a clerk from Ohio; Earl Lodge, 54, of Livonia, a customer service representative for a utility company; and Robert Schumaker, 49, an auto mechanic from Comstock Park.

Permanent Trooper Post

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Downtown Detroit will get its first permanent State Police post in late January, Gov. William Milliken said. Some 130 troopers plus civilian aides will be assigned to the Detroit post. It will be located on the first floor of the Michigan Plaza Building, according to State Police Director Col. George Halverson. Halverson said he and Milliken have been working out details of the new post for several weeks. Renovation of the north wing ground floor of the building will cost about $75,000 and open up some 10,000 square feet of space for the post, Halverson said. He said the new post will "improve State Police operations on the Detroit freeways by providing a central location for State Police command and communications personnel."

$3.4 Million Jury Award

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich. (AP) — A federal court jury has awarded the Upjohn Co. more than $3.4 million in damages because the drug firm had to recall nearly 14 million pills in 1971. The U.S. District Court award was made by a jury that spent three days deliberating after hearing 10 days of testimony. Roger Clark, an attorney for the Kalamazoo-based drug firm, said the award was made against Rachel Laboratories and its parent concern, International Rectifier. Both are based in Long Beach, Calif. Clark said the award covers recall expenses, sales value of pills already sold, plus damages for breach of contract. The suit filed in November 1971 contended that the new pills for urinary problems had to be recalled because of an odor which developed when the pills were stored.

Recount Ruled Out

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — The state does not have to recount last month's results of the 2nd Congressional District election, the Michigan Court of Appeals has ruled. The appeals court turned down a request by Ann Arbor physician Edward Pierce to direct the Board of State Canvassers to conduct a recount in the close race. Pierce, a Democrat, lost the race to state Sen. Carl Pursell, R-Plymouth, by 344 votes. The state elections division last month refused Pierce's request for a recount. Atty. Gen. Frank Kelley said the state had no authority to conduct recounts in congressional races. He said Congress alone can judge the qualifications of its members and move for a recount. Pierce then filed a lawsuit in the Court of Appeals asking it to direct the state to conduct the recount. But the court said there was no merit to Pierce's request.

Seafarer Veto Sought

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

In the wake of a new environmental report, U.S. Rep. Philip Ruppe has called on Gov. William Milliken again to veto possible construction of the Navy's Project Seafarer in Michigan. The Navy delivered a National Academy of Sciences report last week portraying Seafarer, a massive underground communications grid, as presenting no substantial hazard to the health and safety of people, plants or animals. But it said further study was also needed on the electrical effects that would be produced. Ruppe, a Doughton Republican, called on Milliken to exercise the veto power granted him by the federal government and end discussion of pinning the giant grid in the Upper Peninsula. Ruppe cited several referenda in U.P. counties which have demonstrated strong resident opposition to the underground communications system.

Probing 12,000 Barrels

PONTIAC, Mich. (AP) — City and state investigators are touring a closed plant today to investigate the danger to buildings in the area from 12,000 barrels of liquid chemicals stored there. The industrial waste liquids have been stored in the shutdown plant in this city north of Detroit since Anderson Resource Systems, Inc., stopped operating there in 1974. Pontiac Fire Marshal Bobby Cone said the safety of people living and working in the area would be endangered if there were a fire or explosion at the empty plant. The state Department of Natural Resources was sending a team of environmentalists to inspect the chemicals. A spokesman said the barrels pose a potentially serious problem. "Some of the barrels are rupturing," said Charles J. Guenther, the DNR's chief of legislative and legal services.

Single Men Can Stay

GROSSE POINTE PARK, Mich. (AP) — Two men, ordered to leave their rented home after neighbors complained about the single men living together, can stay, the city council has ruled. The council voted unanimously to exempt Donald Mazzola and Richard Groman from a city ordinance forbidding persons not related by blood, marriage or adoption from living together in a single-family home. Mazzola, 28, a divorced father of two, and Groman, 30, who is single, rented the home in this Detroit suburb in September. The council had ordered them to leave by Nov. 30 because of neighbors' objections. Sheridan Holzman, an attorney for the American Civil Liberties Union, argued that the men should be allowed to stay. "Their values in life, I think, are comparable to those of most people in this community," Holzman said. "This is the kind of place they want to live in."

He told The Associated Press he then learned that while his supervisors were telling him he was doing a good job, they were secretly writing evaluations downgrading his performance because, in his view, he raised unwanted safety questions about the Clinch River Breeder Reactor, a project to demonstrate a "next-generation" type of nuclear power plant.

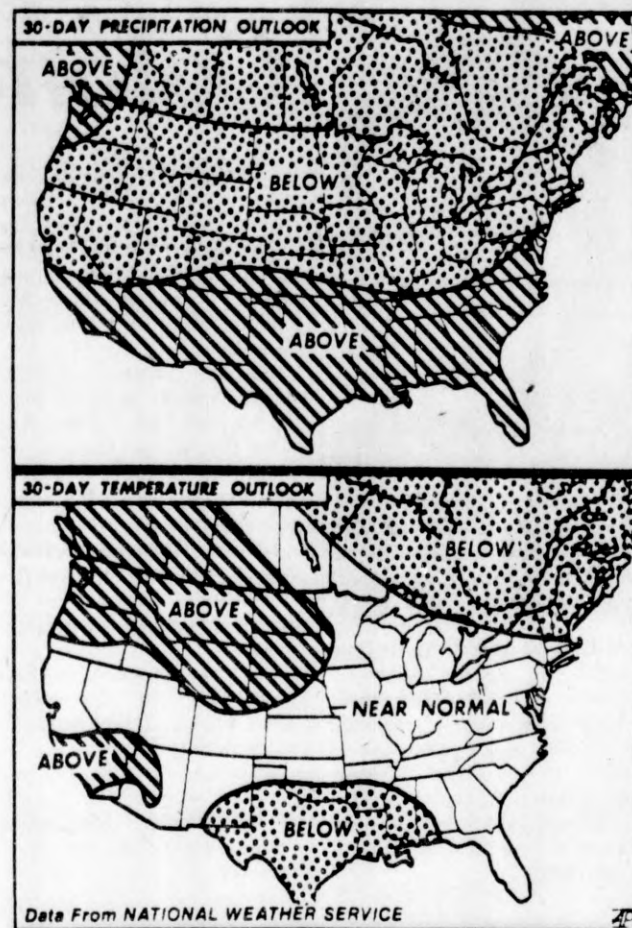

"It was happening to everybody," Basdekas said, referring to other engineers who posed safety questions.

"There were secret evaluations and blackballing. 'We had asked for transfers earlier, but once we found out what was happening, we said, 'This is dirty pool, we have to fight back.'"

Basdekas charged that his sudden transfer now, out of power plant review, "was designed to intimidate others and to put me down. They hoped I would get cold feet and be afraid to talk."

He said he had NRC documents to support his charges and would provide them to Glenn.

Testifying about alleged NRC mismanagement, in addition to Basdekas and Marinov, were nuclear engineers Don R. Lasher and Jose Calvo and former NRC engineer Ron Fluegge, whose resignation and public criticism of the agency

DETROIT (AP) — Michigan's social services director is probing reports that some Wayne County welfare officials may have attempted to cover up conditions at a county youth home.

Employees said they were pressured to say "as little as possible" to a welfare department task force investigating the home's condition, says the task force's confidential report. A copy of the report was obtained by the Detroit Free Press.

The probe is also considering the failure of Wayne County welfare director R.B. Shelton to reveal the existence of the damaging task force report to Dempsey's office.

Sources told the Free Press Shelton apparently kept the report secret for five months until social services Director John Dempsey found out about it in late October and demanded a copy.

Dempsey, chief administrator of the welfare agencies in each of the state's 83 counties, said Monday the information available to him indicates a coverup attempt may have been made.

"I am puzzled by the fact that no one told me that (the task force report) was done for five months," Dempsey said.

He said he was also surprised the report did not identify three officials who allegedly threatened and intimidated employees in an effort to keep the home's condition a secret.

The subject of the task force report is the closing last May of the Jefferson Intake Center in Detroit. The state-run home for delinquents and abused or neglected children was closed

Teron Waives Extradition

BY TOM SAWYER
Staff Writer

Gregory J. Teron, Jr., charged in an open murder warrant in the death of Mrs. Norma Granzow Maxham, is scheduled to be returned tomorrow from Miami, Fla. where he waived extradition after his arrest last Friday, according to Berrien Sheriff Forrest (Nick) Jewell.

Sheriff Jewell said Chief Berrien Deputy Don Jewell and Greg Duerr, St. Joseph township police officer, left this morning to pick up Teron.

Teron was the object of a nation-wide search after the body of Mrs. Maxham was found nude and bound in her home at 232 Bradford drive, Fairplain, Oct. 24.

Teron was arrested at a service station in Miami by agents of the FBI after they received a tip, according to John Smietanka, Berrien county prosecutor.

Sheriff Jewell said a twin-engine plane was chartered to bring Teron back because of airline regulations concerning transporting persons charged with "serious" felonies.

He said Don Jewell and Randall Arnt, chief investigator for the prosecutor's office would return with Teron in the plane. Arnt went to Miami after Teron was arrested.

Jewell said Duerr would return Mrs. Maxham's car which was also found when Teron was arrested.

Teron was arrested by the FBI on a federal warrant charging unlawful flight to avoid prosecution on a state charge of receiving and concealing stolen property (a 1976 Ford Mustang allegedly stolen in California and left at the home of Mrs. Maxham).

A state warrant charging open murder was issued in Berrien county Monday after Teron's arrest in Miami.

Seven Vie For Lottery Prize

ANSING, Mich. (AP) — A Bay City auto parts store manager will try to win another $100,000 as he defends his crown as "super player" in the Michigan Lottery's Michigame on Thursday. Louis Sylvester, 54, who won $105,000 last week, will face six challengers. Each is guaranteed to win at least $5,000 in the televised drawing in Detroit. The 7:30 p.m. lottery show will also produce the winning numbers for the second week of the Winter Wonderland game. Challenging Sylvester for the $100,000 prize will be Peter Adams, 64, a retiree from Onaway; Martha Buhnerkenper, 42, a Detroit homemaker; Richard Geiser, 52, an accountant from Grosse Ile; Maxine Gosciak, 51, a clerk for Chio; Earl Lodge, 54, of Livonia, a customer service representative for a utility company; and Robert Schumaker, 49, an auto mechanic from Comstock Park.

Permanent Trooper Post

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Downtown Detroit will get its first permanent State Police post in late January, Gov. William Milliken said. Some 130 troopers plus civilian aides will be assigned to the Detroit post. It will be located on the first floor of the Michigan Plaza Building, according to State Police Director Col. George Halverson. Halverson said he and Milliken have been working out details of the new post for several weeks. Renovation of the north wing ground floor of the building will cost about $75,000 and open up some 10,000 square feet of space for the post, Halverson said. He said the new post will "improve State Police operations on the Detroit freeways by providing a central location for State Police command and communications personnel."

$3.4 Million Jury Award

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich. (AP) — A federal court jury has awarded the Upjohn Co. more than $3.4 million in damages because the drug firm had to recall nearly 14 million pills in 1971. The U.S. District Court award was made by a jury that spent three days deliberating after hearing 16 days of testimony. Roger Clark, an attorney for the Kalamazoo-based drug firm, said the award was made against Rachele Laboratories and its parent concern, International Rectifier. Both are based in Long Beach, Calif. Clark said the award covers recall expenses, sales value of pills already sold, plus damages for breach of contract. The suit filed in November 1971 contended that the new pills for urinary problems had to be recalled because of an odor which developed when the pills were stored.

Recount Ruled Out

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — The state does not have to recount last month's results of the 2nd Congressional District election, the Michigan Court of Appeals has ruled. The appeals court turned down a request by Ann Arbor physician Edward Pierce to direct the Board of State Canvassers to conduct a recount in the close race. Pierce, a Democrat, lost the race to state Sen. Carl Pursell, R-Plymouth, by 344 votes. The state elections division last month refused Pierce's request for a recount. Atty. Gen. Frank Kelley said the state had no authority to conduct recounts in congressional races. He said Congress alone can judge the qualifications of its members and move for a recount. Pierce then filed a lawsuit in the Court of Appeals asking it to direct the state to conduct the recount. But the court said there was no merit to Pierce's request.

Seafarer Veto Sought

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

In the wake of a new environmental report, U.S. Rep. Philip Ruppe has called on Gov. William Milliken again to veto possible construction of the Navy's Project Seafarer in Michigan. The Navy delivered a National Academy of Sciences report last week portraying Seafarer, a massive underground communications grid, as presenting no substantial hazard to the health and safety of people, plants or animals. But it said further study was also needed on the electrical effects that would be produced. Ruppe, a Houghton Republican, called on Milliken to exercise the veto power granted him by the federal government and end discussion of placing the giant grid in the Upper Peninsula. Ruppe cited several referenda in U.P. counties which have demonstrated strong resident opposition to the underground communications system.

Probing 12,000 Barrels

PONTIAC, Mich. (AP) — City and state investigators are touring a closed plant today to investigate the danger to buildings in the area from 12,000 barrels of liquid chemicals stores there. The industrial waste liquids have been stored in the shutdown plant in this city north of Detroit since Ankersen Resource Systems, Inc., stopped operating there in 1974. Pontiac Fire Marshal Bobby Cone said the safety of people living and working in the area would be endangered if there were a fire or explosion at the empty plant. The state Department of Natural Resources was sending a team of environmentalists to inspect the chemicals. A spokesman said the barrels pose a potentially serious problem. "Some of the barrels are rupturing," said Charles J. Guenther, the DNR's chief of legislative and legal services.

Single Men Can Stay

GROSSE POINTE PARK, Mich. (AP) — Two men, ordered to leave their rented home after neighbors complained about the single men living together, can stay, the city council has ruled. The council voted unanimously to exempt Donald Mazzola and Richard Gronan from a city ordinance forbidding persons not related by blood, marriage or adoption from living together in a single-family home. Mazzola, 28, a divorced father of two, and Gronan, 30, who is single, rented the home in this Detroit suburb in September. The council had ordered them to leave by Nov. 30 because of neighbors' objections. Sheridan Holzman, an attorney for the American Civil Liberties Union, argued that the men should be allowed to stay. "Their values in life, I think, are comparable to those of most people in this community," Holzman said. "This is the kind of place they want to live in."

Fired Covert Teacher Granted $8,500 Settlement

BY DENNIS COGSWELL
Paw Paw Bureau

COVERT — The Covert school board voted 5-2 last night to approve an out of court settlement which will pay $8,500 to a teacher it fired in 1974 after the teacher was arrested on criminal charges. In return, former Covert teacher Ernest Ferrell will agree not to seek any further back pay or reinstatement to his teaching position, according to Donald Quinn, board president.

Board member Carl Gregeriet, who cast one of the dissenting votes, said he did not believe anyone should be paid for work he did not do. Harold Bracken, who also voted against the motion, said after the meeting that he did not feel he had been supplied with enough information on the settlement. Voting in favor were Quinn, Alice Blair, Bernard Lucas, Jerry Foster, and the Rev. L.C. Berry.

Ferrell was charged with larceny in a building in connection with the July, 1974 theft of a 10-speed bicycle in South Haven, and subsequently pleaded innocent in Van Buren circuit court. The board voted on Oct. 14, 1974 to file charges against him under the state teacher tenure act. The charges were based on the criminal charge.

Following a series of hearings, Ferrell was fired by the board on Dec. 9, 1974. The larceny charge was remanded to Seventh district court where Ferrell pleaded guilty to a reduced charge of conspiracy to commit simple larceny. On March 13, 1975, he was assessed fine and costs of $154. He later appealed his firing, and on Nov. 10, 1975, the tenure commission ordered he be rehired with full back pay. The commission based its ruling on the fact that the school board had not posted public notice of Ferrell's tenure hearings as required by law, even though he had asked that they be private.

The school board appealed to Van Buren circuit court, where earlier this year Judge Meyer Warshawsky ordered the case remanded back to the tenure commission. The judge said the commission should rule on the merit of whether there was reasonable cause for the firing, rather than on the technicality, according to Quinn.

Quinn said last night the majority of the board felt it was wiser to make an out of court settlement, than run the risk and subsequent costs of having the case drag on. The $8,500 figure, he said, represented what Ferrell would have made during the 1974-75 school year, less what he had already been paid for the year.

Hartford Council Told Of Shortage In City Tax Fund

HARTFORD — A report by the state treasury department alleges that some $2,330 was missing from a city fund for more than a year before most of the shortage was made up by an elected city official.

The report alleges that Hartford Clerk Jewell Story deposited $2,222 into the account June 8, 1976, to make up what she thought was the total amount of the shortage.

According to the report, Mrs. Story and Hartford Treasurer Lucille Mann were in charge of the fund which consisted of 1974 winter property taxes collected in the city.

The report does not specifically charge anyone with being responsible for the shortage.

The report showed that a total of $231,048 had been collected during the tax period, but only $228,719 had been deposited into the tax collection bank account. That left a deposit shortage of $2,330, the report said.

The report was disclosed last night by Hartford Mayor Wayne D. Nelson who read it aloud during the city council meeting.

Nelson said the treasury department has turned the report over to state Atty. General Frank Kelley who will determine if any criminal charges are to be filed.

Contacted this morning, Mrs. Story said she did not know what caused the shortage. She said when it was discovered money was missing, she and Mrs. Mann "just searched everywhere."

Mrs. Story said it is possible one day's tax collections may have disappeared or may have been stolen from city offices.

She said she decided to repay the money because she did not want a shortage to occur while she was in office.

She said the $2,222 she deposited on June 8 was the amount the city auditor had told her was needed to reimburse the fund. The treasury department audit said the fund remained short $108 as of June 18.

The report said treasury department auditors were sent to Hartford after the city's certified public accountant, Clinton Maki, of St. Joseph, reported to state officials that he had uncovered a suspected shortage during his annual review of city books.

The report was signed by state Treasurer Allison Green and dated July 29.

Nelson said last night the council did not receive a copy of that report until just a few days ago when City Atty. Douglas Mackinder obtained a copy while checking on the status of the investigation.

Nelson said the original copy has disappeared. He said the report was addressed to the city's post office box number. Nelson said it was Mrs. Story's duty to pick up the mail each day, but it is not known if she ever picked up an envelope containing the report or if the report was even mailed to the city.

Mrs. Story said today she had never received the report and would have turned it over to the council if she had.

Mrs. Story, 41, who steps down from the clerk's post this month after seven years in office, was not present at last night's meeting. She did not seek re-election in the annual city election last month.

Mrs. Mann, 47, who was re-elected to another term as treasurer last month, did attend last night's meeting and denied all wrongdoing.

"I have nothing to hide," Mrs. Mann said. She said she has never reimbursed any city fund with her own money.

Mrs. Mann said it was Mrs. Story's duty to reconcile the monthly bank statements for the various funds.

She said she had never done the reconciliation.

Mrs. Story said today it had always been her job to reconcile the bank statements, and she continued doing it even after Mrs. Mann became treasurer. Mrs. Mann's duty was to post receipts in the ledger, Mrs. Story said.

Nelson said last night the Treasury department had also investigated Hartford financial records in January, 1976, at his own request.

Nelson said he called in the Treasury department then after some $1,300 in personal checks — which Mrs. Story said today she had written — bounced when deposited in the city's general fund. He said a report of that investigation showed Mrs. Story had reimbursed the general fund for the entire amount.

Mrs. Story today said she had written the checks and cashed them in the city till. When they bounced, she immediately reimbursed the city, she said.

She claimed Nelson's request for an investigation in January was "politics."

Nelson said that report has also been turned over to the state attorney general.

Nelson said the city charter prevents the council from taking any action against other elected officials.

However, the council earlier this fall adopted several financial control policies, including one that prohibits city officials from using city funds to cash personal checks.

He said the council will consider at its Dec. 27 meeting creating a new post of chief financial officer for the city. Salaries of present officials would be reduced, he said.

Councilman Milton Wehmeier said the council will make whatever changes are necessary on financial matters. "There has to be more control by the council," he said.

In a related matter, the council voted last night to hire Maki to perform an audit of city books for 1976.

In other action, the council appointed Eugene E. Kirsch, 38, to serve on the council as a replacement for Harold Jackson who resigned last month.

Kirsch and his wife Marge live behind the health food store they have operated for the past five years at 211 North Center street.

He will serve out the remainder of Jackson's term which expires in December, 1978.

The council appointed Claude Unrath, Hartford, to serve as the city's certified assessor in 1977 at a salary of $1,500. The city's elected assessor, Robert Beatty, does not hold a state assessor's certificate and can not assess, councilmen said.

The board scheduled a special meeting tonight at 7:30 to discuss the 1977 fire and ambulance budget with township and fire board officials.

Bridgman Board Amends Policy For Public Access

By JOHN DYE
South Berrien Bureau

BRIDGMAN — Acting on citizen requests, the Bridgman school board last night named the school board president as a second avenue through which the public can get permission to address the board at public meetings.

The board president joins the superintendent as the only two men who can grant citizens the right to address the board at public sessions.

But the amended policy requires that requests to get on the board's agenda be submitted to either official in writing, 10 days in advance of a board meeting.

Also last night, the board asked for a study of school janitorial costs. Opportunities to address the board in public session, and janitorial costs, are both subjects of controversy that have come before the board in past meetings.

Prior to last night's meeting, the superintendent controlled who would have access to the agenda.

The amendment to the agenda policy comes after John Wilk of Bridgman during the board's Nov. 8 meeting said he felt there should be another way to be listed on the agenda beside going through the superintendent.

Specifically, the amended policy states all matters to be submitted to the board will first be brought before the superintendent and/or board president "for investigation." If they determine the matter requires board action, the matter will be presented to the board.

The policy also states the board will consider only matters related to school policy, and personal statements or questions "affecting the character or reputation of any person will not be reviewed in a public meeting."

A review of cleaning costs was asked by Robert Roth, board president. Supt. David Lechner said he would begin a study of the costs of cleaning the district's schools. Roth said he wished the study to be completed by March.

Both Dr. Lechner and Roth said the study would give detailed consideration of present cleaning services and the possibility of alternative methods, including hiring more school employees to do the work instead of contracting an outside firm to do it.

Controversy over the $39,865 the school board said it would pay for contract cleaning this year first arose at the board's October meeting. At that time, Donald Reed, a Benton Harbor school district principal, Bridgman resident and the son of a former Bridgman superintendent, the late Fred C. Reed, raised a question of whether Lechner had a financial interest in the contracting firm, Ross Cleaning Services, St. Joseph.

In a letter to Reed last month, the board expressed its confidence in Lechner and said it found no conflict of interest.

In addition, Dr. Lechner denied ever having any financial interest in the cleaning firm and said he intended to file suit against Reed for personal damages.

The superintendent also said he would resign his position if an interest in the firm was verified.

But controversy continued to dog the board last night when Wilk rose to speak after minutes were read of the Nov. 8 board session. He asked why his request that the board make a public apology to Benton Harbor administrators for a statement made by Lechner in this newspaper was not included in the minutes.

Lechner, in an interview with the Herald-Palladium after Reed's appearance before the board in October, said Benton Harbor has "incompetent administrators."

Wilk said the question was also raised in a letter sent to the board dated Nov. 26, in which he again asked for the apology. Roth, who said he considered

"the matter closed," said he considered the remark "inappropriate," but would not demand that Lechner apologize.

The board president last night also responded to another question raised in Wilk's letter about operating costs of the Bridgman school system. Wilk claimed the expenses for two nearby school systems with similar enrollments were lower.

Roth said that programs offered by the three districts were different and a comparison of their costs would be "inappropriate."

In other areas, the board approved preliminary plans for the new $2.6 million middle school, as submitted by architects Davenport and Associates, Grand Rapids. Lechner said final plans are tentatively scheduled to be submitted for board approval in March, with bids to be let in April or May and completion of the school by the beginning of the 1978 school year.

In two related moves, the board approved payment of $1,690 to the state in order that bonds for the project be certified, and instructed Lechner to investigate removal of a house, barn and other outbuildings on the new school property.

Purchase of shop equipment for the middle school from low bidders will be purchased from Broadhead Garrett, representing regionally in Kalamazoo, at a total cost of $1,536. Twenty-four desks, at a cost of $948, and 24 shop stools, at a cost of $245, will be purchased from Brammell Supply, Benton Harbor.

The board also:

— Approved purchase of a 1977, one-ton pickup truck from low bidder Lettow Chevrolet Sales, Inc., Bridgman, at $6,839.

— Approved sale of a 1972 pickup truck to high bidder Kenneth Coon, Hartford, at $2,155.

— Approved rules for the boys' high school basketball and wrestling teams that the students help draft.

— Reduced the at-gate ticket price for children through the fourth grade for athletic events from $1.50 to $1.

— Named Trustee Lillian Svitt as the board representative to a committee reviewing the Berrien county intermediate school district budget.

— Passed a resolution honoring the Bridgman area Bicentennial committee for installation of a Bicentennial memorial on the high school campus.

— Was informed by the state board of education that it will hear an appeal Dec. 16 by Donald Blankenship, route 1, Bridgman, to transfer his property to the Bridgman district from the River Valley district.

Dowagiac Osteopath Elected

DOWAGIAC — Lee Memorial hospital here announced that Dr. Charles Koudele, D.O., a hospital staff member for the past six years, has recently been elected president of the American Academy of Sclerotherapy during a convention of the American Osteopathic association in San Francisco. Sclerotherapy is a method of treating chronic lower back pain with injections aimed at strengthening ligaments, the hospital said.

Gobles Supper To Aid Band

GOBLES — The Gobles band boosters club announced it is sponsoring a chili supper at the Gobles elementary school Friday, Dec. 17, beginning at 5:30 p.m. to help raise funds for the purchase of 31 new high school band uniforms. The new blue and gold uniforms, which have already been ordered, will cost over $5,000, the club said.

Woman Will Head Athletics In Galien

GALIEN — The Galien school district became the first school system in southwestern Michigan to name a woman athletic director when the school board appointed Maxine O'Chap to the post last night.

Miss O'Chap, 28, in her second year at Galien, will assume her new duties as athletic director at the beginning of the second semester in late January, the board said.

The board approved paying Miss O'Chap $425 for the athletic director's job, above her regular salary as a girls physical education teacher.

Dr. Robert Tilmann, superintendent, said Miss O'Chap will be responsible for the supervision and direction of the school district's entire athletic program and coaches. She will also be responsible for scheduling athletic events, he said.

Miss O'Chap earned bachelor's and master's degrees from Western Michigan university. She was girls athletic director and a coach at Gull Lake before moving to Galien. She has been girls basketball and softball coach at Galien.

Tilmann said she will replace Wyman Miller, who resigned the post after one and one-half years for personal reasons. Miller will continue his teaching job at Galien, he added.

Vern Norris, associate director of the Michigan High School Athletic association, said today there are about 30 women athletic directors in the state.

In other areas, the board approved a new attendance policy.

Tardiness will be made up at a rate of three hours for each hour missed, the board said. Parents are asked to contact the school before noon if their child will be absent.

In other areas, the board also approved a revised budget for the 1976-77 school year. The revised budget now estimates income at $1,162,773, an increase of $4,760 over the original budget okayed by the

Fired Covert Teacher Granted $8,500 Settlement

Paw Paw Bureau

COVERT — The Covert school board voted 5-2 last night to approve an out of court settlement which will pay $8,500 to a teacher it fired in 1974 after the teacher was arrested on criminal charges. In return, the former Covert teacher Ernest Ferrell will agree not to seek any further back pay or reinstatement to his teaching position, according to Donald Quinn, board president.

Board member Carl Gregeriet, who cast one of the dissenting votes, said he did not believe anyone should be paid for work he did not do. Harold Bracken, who also voted against the motion, said after the meeting that he did not feel he had been supplied with enough information on the settlement. Voting in favor were Quinn, Alice Blair, Bernard Lucas, Jerry Foster, and the Rev. L.C. Berry.

Ferrell was charged with larceny in a building in connection with the July, 1974 theft of a 10-speed bicycle in South Haven, and subsequently pleaded innocent in Van Buren circuit court. The board voted on Oct. 14, 1974 to file charges against him under the state teacher tenure act. The charges were based on the criminal charge.

Following a series of hearings, Ferrell was fired by the board on Dec. 9, 1974. The larceny charge was remanded to Seventh district court where Ferrell pleaded guilty to a reduced charge of conspiracy to commit simple larceny. On March 13, 1975, he was assessed fine and costs of $154. He later appealed his firing, and on Nov. 10, 1975, the tenure commission ordered he be rehired with full back pay. The commission based its ruling on the fact that the school board had not posted public notice of Ferrell's tenure hearings as required by law, even though he had asked that they be private.

The school board appealed to Van Buren circuit court, where earlier this year Judge Meyer Warshawsky ordered the case remanded back to the tenure commission. The judge said the commission should rule on the merit of whether there was reasonable cause for the firing, rather than on the technicality, according to Quinn.

Quinn said last night the majority of the board felt it was wiser to make an out of court settlement, than run the risk and subsequent costs of having the case drag on. The $8,500 figure, he said, represented what Ferrell would have made during the 1974-75 school year, less what he had already been paid for the year.

Hartford Council Told Of Shortage In City Tax Fund

HARTFORD — A report by the state treasury department alleges that some $2,330 was missing from a city fund for more than a year before most of the shortage was made up by an elected city official.

The report alleges that Hartford Clerk Jewell Story deposited $2,222 into the account June 8, 1976, to make up what she thought was the total amount of the shortage.

According to the report, Mrs. Story and Hartford Treasurer Lucille Mann were in charge of the fund which consisted of 1974 winter property taxes collected in the city.

The report does not specifically charge anyone with being responsible for the shortage.

The report showed that a total of $231,049 had been collected during the tax period, but only $228,719 had been deposited into the tax collection bank account. That left a deposit shortage of $2,330, the report said.

The report was disclosed last night by Hartford Mayor Wayne D. Nelson who read it aloud during the city council meeting.

Nelson said the treasury department has turned the report over to state Atty. General Frank Kelley who will determine if any criminal charges are to be filed.

Contacted this morning, Mrs. Story said she did not know what caused the shortage. She said when it was discovered money was missing, she and Mrs. Mann "just searched everywhere."

Mrs. Story said it is possible one day's tax collections may have disappeared or may have been stolen from city offices.

She said she decided to repay the money because she did not want a shortage to occur while she was in office.

She said the $2,222 she deposited on June 8 was the amount the city auditor had told her was needed to reimburse the fund. The treasury department audit said the fund remained short $108 as of June 18.

The report said treasury department auditors were sent to Hartford after the city's certified public accountant, Clinton Maki, of St. Joseph, reported to state officials that he had uncovered a suspected shortage during his annual review of city books.

The report was signed by state Treasurer Allison Green and dated July 29.

Nelson said last night the council did not receive a copy of that report until just a few days ago when City Atty. Douglas MacKinder obtained a copy while checking on the status of the investigation.

Nelson said the original copy has disappeared. He said the report was addressed to the city's post office box number. Nelson said it was Mrs. Story's duty to pick up the mail each day, but it is not known if she ever picked up an envelope containing the report or if the report was even mailed to the city.

Mrs. Story said today she had never received the report and would have turned it over to the council if she had.

Mrs. Story, 44, who steps down from the clerk's post this month after seven years in office, was not present at last night's meeting. She did not seek re-election in the annual city election last month.

Mrs. Mann, 47, who was re-elected to another term as treasurer last month, did attend last night's meeting and denied all wrongdoing.

"I have nothing to hide," Mrs. Mann said. She said she has never reimbursed any city fund with her own money.

Mrs. Mann said it was Mrs. Story's duty to reconcile the monthly bank statements for the various funds.

She said she had never done the reconciliation.

Mrs. Story said today it had always been her job to reconcile the bank statements, and she continued doing it even after Mrs. Mann became treasurer. Mrs. Mann's duty was to post receipts in the ledger, Mrs. Story said.

Nelson said last night the Treasury department had also investigated Hartford financial records in January, 1976, at his own request.

Nelson said he called in the Treasury department then after some $1,300 in personal checks — which Mrs. Story said today she had written — bounced when deposited in the city's general fund. He said a report of that investigation showed Mrs. Story had reimbursed the general fund for the entire amount.

Mrs. Story today said she had written the checks and cashed them in the city till. When they bounced, she immediately reimbursed the city, she said.

She claimed Nelson's request for an investigation in January was "politics."

Nelson said that report has also been turned over to the state attorney general.

Nelson said the city charter prevents the council from taking any action against other elected officials.

However, the council earlier this fall adopted several financial control policies, including one that prohibits city officials from using city funds to cash personal checks.

He said the council will consider at its Dec. 27 meeting creating a new post of chief financial officer for the city. Salaries of present officials would be reduced, he said.

Councilman Milton Wehmeier said the council will make whatever changes are necessary on financial matters. "There has to be more control by the council," he said.

In a related matter, the council voted last night to hire Maki to perform an audit of city books for 1976.

In other action, the council appointed Eugene E. Kirsch, 38, to serve on the council as a replacement for Harold Jackson who resigned last month.

Kirsch and his wife Marge live behind the health food store they have operated for the past five years at 211 North Center street.

He will serve out the remainder of Jackson's term which expires in December, 1978.

The council appointed Claude Unrath, Hartford, to serve as the city's certified assessor in 1977 at a salary of $1,500. The city's elected assessor, Robert Beatty, does not hold a state assessor's certificate and can not assess, councilmen said.

The board scheduled a special meeting tonight at 7:30 to discuss the 1977 fire and ambulance budget with township and fire board officials.

Bridgman Board Amends Policy For Public Access

By JOHN DYE
South Berrien Bureau

BRIDGMAN — Acting on citizen requests, the Bridgman school board last night named the school board president as a second avenue through which the public can get permission to address the board at public meetings.

The board president joins the superintendent as the only two men who can grant citizens the right to address the board at public sessions.

But the amended policy requires that requests to get on the board's agenda be submitted to either official in writing, 10 days in advance of a board meeting.

Also last night, the board asked for a study of school janitorial costs. Opportunities to address the board in public session, and janitorial costs, are both subjects of controversy that have come before the board in past meetings.

Prior to last night's meeting, the superintendent controlled who would have access to the agenda.

The amendment to the agenda policy comes after John Wilk of Bridgman during the board's Nov. 8 meeting said he felt there should be another way to be listed on the agenda beside going through the superintendent.

Specifically, the amended policy states all matters to be submitted to the board will first be brought before the superintendent and/or board president "for investigation." If they determine the matter requires board action, the matter will be presented to the board.

The policy also states the board will consider only matters related to school policy, and personal statements or questions "affecting the character or reputation of any person will not be reviewed in a public meeting."

A review of cleaning costs was asked by Robert Roth, board president. Supt David Lechner said he would begin a study of the costs of cleaning the district's schools. Roth said he wished the study to be completed by March.

Both Dr. Lechner and Roth said the study would give detailed consideration of present cleaning services and the possibility of alternative methods, including hiring more school employees to do the work instead of contracting an outside firm to do it.

Controversy over the $39,865 the school board said it would pay for contract cleaning this year first arose at the board's October meeting. At that time, Donald Reed, a Benton Harbor school district principal, Bridgman resident and the son of a former Bridgman superintendent, the late Fred C. Reed, raised a question of whether Lechner had a financial interest in the contracting firm, Ross Cleaning Services, St. Joseph.

In a letter to Reed last month, the board expressed its confidence in Lechner and said it found no conflict of interest.

In addition, Dr. Lechner denied ever having any financial interest in the cleaning firm and said he intended to file suit against Reed for personal damages.

The superintendent also said he would resign his position if an interest in the firm was verified.

But controversy continued to dog the board last night when Wilk rose to speak after minutes were read of the Nov. 8 board session. He asked why his request that the board make a public apology to Benton Harbor administrators for a statement made by Lechner to this newspaper was not included in the minutes.

Lechner, in an interview with the Herald-Palladium after Reed's appearance before the board in October, said Benton Harbor has "incompetent administrators."

Wilk said the question was also raised in a letter sent to the board dated Nov. 26, in which he again asked for the apology.

Roth, who said he considered

"the matter closed," said he considered the remark "inappropriate," but would not demand that Lechner apologize.

The board president last night also responded to another question raised in Wilk's letter about operating costs of the Bridgman school system. Wilk claimed the expenses for two nearby school systems with similar enrollments were lower.

Roth said that programs offered by the three districts were different and a comparison of their costs would be "inappropriate."

In other areas, the board approved preliminary plans for the new $2.6 million middle school, as submitted by architects Daverman and Associates, Grand Rapids. Lechner said final plans are tentatively scheduled to be submitted for board approval in March, with bids to be let in April or May and completion of the school by the beginning of the 1978 school year.

In two related moves, the board approved payment of $1,680 to the state in order that bonds for the project be certified, and instructed Lechner to investigate removal of a house, barn and other outbuildings on the new school property.

Purchase of shop equipment for the middle school from low bidders was approved. Six work benches will be purchased from Broadhead Garrett, representing regionally in Kalamazoo, at a total cost of $1,536. Twenty-four vices, at a cost of $948, and 24 shop stools, at a cost of $245, will be purchased from Bramhall Supply, Benton Harbor.

The board also: — Approved purchase of a 1977, one-ton pickup truck from low bidder Lettow Chevrolet Sales, Inc., Bridgman, at $8,639.

— Approved sale of a 1972 pickup truck to high bidder Kenneth Coon, Hartford, at $2,155.

— Approved rules for the boys' high school basketball and wrestling teams that the students help draft.

— Reduced the at-gate ticket price for children through the fourth grade for athletic events from $1.50 to $1.

— Named Trustee Lillian Svitol as the board representative to a committee reviewing the Berrien county Intermediate school district budget.

— Passed a resolution honoring the Bridgman area Bicentennial committee for installation of a Bicentennial memorial on the high school campus.

— Was informed by the state board of education that it will hear an appeal Dec. 16 by Donald Blankenship, route 1, Bridgman, to transfer his property to the Bridgman district from the River Valley district.

Dowagiac Osteopath Elected

The new blue and gold uniforms, which have already been ordered, will cost over $5,000, the club said.

Woman Will Head Athletics In Galien

GALIEN — The Galien school district became the first school system in southwestern Michigan to name a woman athletic director when the school board appointed Maxine O'Chap to the post last night.

Miss O'Chap, 29, in her second year at Galien, will assume her new duties as athletic director at the beginning of the second semester in late January, the board said.

The board approved paying Miss O'Chap $425 for the athletic director's job, above her regular salary as a girls physical education teacher.

Dr. Robert Tilmann, superintendent, said Miss O'Chap will be responsible for the supervision and direction of the school district's entire athletic program and coaches. She will also be responsible for scheduling athletic events, he said.

Miss O'Chap earned bachelor's and master's degrees from Western Michigan university. She was girls athletic director and a coach at Gull Lake before moving to Galien. She has been girls basketball and softball coach at Galien.

Tilmann said she will replace Wyman Miller, who resigned the post after one and one-half years for personal reasons. Miller will continue his teaching job at Galien, he added.

Vern Norris, associate director of the Michigan High School Athletic association, said today there are about 30 women athletic directors in the state.

In other areas, the board approved a new attendance policy.

Ford Plans Housecleaning Lions' Landry Out?

PONTIAC, Mich. (AP) — Detroit Lions owner William Clay Ford says the National Football League team may trade its quarterback, Greg Landry.

"I think we need a change at quarterback," Ford said after the Lions' loss to the Los Angeles Rams in Saturday's season finale.

Ford added that Houston veteran Dan Pastorini, who has asked the Oilers to trade him, is being considered by the Lions.

Coach Tommy Hudspeeth, who led Detroit to five wins and five losses on its way to an overall 6-8 record this season, is still the top candidate for the coaching job next season, Ford said.

Hudspeeth, formerly the team's head scout, replaced Rick Forzano, who resigned as coach after four games.

"I give Tommy credit for at least getting the team back mentally this year," Ford said. But he added that he intends to speak with Hudspeeth about the team's philosophy.

"If he doesn't see it my way, I'll probably go elsewhere," Ford said. "As long as I own the team and get the raps for losing, we might as well lose my way."

Ford said he intends to become more active than ever in the team's operation, acting as general manager in matters of hiring coaches and acquiring players. He also said he will exercise game-situation control over the coach.

The owner said housecleaning plans include bidding on other pros who have played out their options and will become free agents.

Meanwhile, the Lions announced Monday that pass receiver Ray Jarvis and linebacker Charlie Weaver have been named by their teammates as the club's most valuable players.

Jarvis was voted most valuable offensive player two years after coming to the Lions as an unknown waiver acquisition, and became a starter last season. He led the team in receiving with 39 catches for 822 yards (a 21.1-yard average) and five touchdowns.

Weaver, voted most valuable defensive player, was a highly regarded second-round draft choice who took over as a starter in his third season. Weaver led in tackles with 114 and paced the defense with seven of the team's 28 quarterback sacks.

CHRIS EVERT
Sportsman Of Year

Evert Top SI Athlete

NEW YORK (AP) — As Chris Evert says, someone always comes out of the woodwork in an Olympic year, sweeping national media awards for their prowess on the professional.

This was an Olympic year, but Chris Evert beat the Olympians in being named Sports Illustrated's 1978 athlete of the year.

The award was announced Monday as Sports Illustrated's Year, but Miss Evert beat out all of the men, too — amateurs and professionals. In fact, no man was in the final seven considered by SI's editors.

"Women are taking over the world," Miss Evert said. She is the first woman to own the honor outright since it was instituted in 1954. And she and Billie Jean King, who shared the award with UCLA basketball Coach John Wooden in 1972, are the only tennis players to be named.

"I think it's great," said Miss Evert. "It's great for tennis, and it's great for women. It shows we're appreciated by the press and the public."

Miss Evert, just a week shy of 22, has been in the forefront of international tennis since she was 16. For the last three years, she has been the top-ranked player in the world, winning Wimbledon, the United States, French and Italian opens twice each and the Virginia Slims championships three times. She also earned about $375,000 in tournaments, plus whatever the tide from World Team Tennis and endorsements might be.

"It was my best year," Miss Evert said.

USC Coach Respects 'M'

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Southern California Trojans Coach John Robinson says he has a great deal of respect for Michigan Coach Bo Schembechler and for his Wolverines football team.

"I've met Bo once or twice," the Trojans' first-year coach said Monday as his team opened drills for its Rose Bowl date against Michigan. "I was an assistant then. He probably doesn't remember me. I think he's a great coach."

On the subject of Schembechler's team, Robinson said he's not seen better in years.

"This is one of the best teams I've seen in college football since the 1972 USC team," he remarked. "They're No. 1 in scoring. No. 1 in scoring defense. No. 1 in total offense and very high in total defense.

"The Ohio State-Michigan game has been close and very dramatic the last several years," Robinson continued. "But this year it was neither close nor dramatic. Michigan blitzed them."

Despite his high regard for the Wolverines, Robinson isn't selling his Trojans short.

"I think it's a tossup," he said of the Jan. 1 match in Pasadena. "I don't think the 8-point odds (Michigan favored) affect Michigan or affect us. I think everybody on Michigan's team expects to win, and I think everybody on our team expects to win."

Moeller Returns For 'M' Bowl Bid

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP) — The Michigan Wolverines braved sub-freezing temperatures Monday to begin practicing for their New Year's Day Rose Bowl battle against Southern California in balmy Pasadena.

It was the first football practice for the Wolverines since they won the right to represent the Big Ten by beating Ohio State in Columbus Nov. 22.

And Gary Moeller, a former assistant football coach at U-M who was named head coach at Illinois a few weeks ago, was back at his old job Monday to coordinate defense for Michigan.

"It's a little bit unusual," Moeller said of his temporary return to Ann Arbor. "I'm looking at this kind of like a senior — this is going to be my last game and I want to make sure it's a damn good one."

"When you get here and get this opportunity — I want to do it. I want to see this team through... I'm fired up about that," he added.

Michigan head coach Bo Schembechler said Moeller himself made the decision to help the Wolverines prepare for the bowl game.

"When Gary came in (after getting the Illinois job), I said, 'I'm not forcing you to go to the Rose Bowl,'" Schembechler said.

"But he said, 'What the heck. I want that national championship as much as you do. I'll give you a heck of an effort,'"

the head coach said.

Schembechler said Monday's workout was the first of six before the team flies to Pasadena Dec. 20. They are allowed a total of 16 practice days for the Rose Bowl game.

"We're just going to try to get back to our fundamentals — blocking, ball-handling, tackling," Schembechler said Monday.

Moeller noted they would "start making some adjustments" right away to be prepared for Ricky Bell and the USC team.

Schembechler said timing is a big problem in the option attack. "I think that's the biggest problem we'll face. I think our guys stayed in pretty good physical condition."

"We're better than I thought. I've underestimated them and they've given me a pleasant surprise," Kentucky's Joe Hall said after his third-ranked Wildcats buried South Carolina 98-67.

"I have felt all along Kentucky will be ranked No. 1 before the season is over. They certainly looked the part tonight," said South Carolina's Frank McGuire, who isn't used to being treated so badly, and certainly not on his home court.

The only other member of The Associated Press' Top Twenty to see action was No. 13 Syracuse, which trounced Penn State 101-63 behind little Jimmy Williams' 20 points.

Kentucky, 5-0, jumped to a

10-0 lead and South Carolina was never able to recover. At the half it was 52-34 and at one point in the second half the Wildcats led by a whopping 35 points. Jack Givens paced Kentucky with 28 points and Mike Phillips added 23.

"This group of juniors has been playing together for the third year now and they're matured," Hall said. "We've been dominating some very good teams."

Jackie Gilloen topped 1-3 South Carolina with 17 points and freshman center Jim Graziano had 16.

The victory extended Kentucky's winning streak to 15, longest of any major college in the nation. The loss was the worst for the Gamecocks on their home court since they moved into the Carolina Coliseum eight years ago. The greatest margin of defeat previously was seven points.

Williams enabled 7-1 Syracuse to pull away from Penn State with an eight-point burst midway through the first half.

—Suffolk State Carl McPhee

scored 23 points as Nebraska walloped Northwest Missouri 88-53.

—Houston, which beat Lamar by 10 points earlier in the season, doubled its pleasure and downed the Cardinals 103-83 although Otis Birdsong, one of the nation's scoring leaders with a 33.3 average, managed only 17 on 6-for-21 shooting.

Ali-Foreman Rematch Looks Certain

NEW YORK (AP) — Don King, who promoted world heavyweight champion Muhammad Ali's first fight with George Foreman, says he's been offered a chance to handle a rematch.

King, in a telephone call from the Los Angeles office of attorney Norman Kaplan, told The Associated Press Monday night that Herbert Muhammad, Ali's manager, had given King 90 days to raise the money for the fight.

Details were incomplete, and it was not known where or when such a fight would be held or how much money would be involved.

But Kaplan, who represents World Boxing Association President Dr. Elias Cordoba of Panama, said: "Ali told the doctor he is going to send him a telegram today (Monday) to confirm it."

King said he met with Cordoba Monday at Kaplan's office and also had talked with Ali by phone in Chicago.

"We got to get the money together, but he (Ali) has agreed to forego any other bouts and fight Foreman," King said.

Earlier, Ali had signed a contract with Madison Square Garden to fight challenger Duane Bobick, but Bobick finally signed to meet Ken Norton after Ali's on-again, off-again retirement fouled plans for the Ali-Bobick fight. Ali reportedly will return an advance on that contract.

It also had been reported that Ali would fight either Earnie Shavers, who stopped Roy Williams on national television Saturday, in March, or South African Mike Schutte. Ali said Friday in Louisville that he would fight Schutte.

However, King said that an Ali-Schutte fight, which had been in the works, now would be bypassed.

Kaplan, in a telephone interview, said there would be a joint announcement on Friday concerning the fight by Cordoba and Jose Sulaiman of Mexico, president of the World Boxing Council.

The WBC announced at its convention in Las Vegas Saturday that Ali could fight someone other than Foreman, as long as he fought Foreman by the end of May.

Ali won the title by knocking out Foreman in the eighth round Oct. 30, 1974 in Africa.

Namath May Have Played Final Game

NEW YORK (AP) — Will Joe Namath of the New York Jets is giving his regards to Broadway from another National Football League town in the future.

"The owners are pretty unanimous about not wanting him back," The New York Daily News said in today's editions, quoting "a source close to the team."

The Jets and Namath would play a miserable National Football League season Sunday, losing to the Cincinnati Bengals 42-3. The Jets' 3-11 record matched the worst mark in the club's history while Namath completed just 4 of 15 passes for a meager 20 yards and was intercepted four times.

"Even if I decide I want to play, it's not up to me, it's up to the Jets' management," said Namath, who had asked to be traded to the Los Angeles Rams before the season. "If this was my last game, I'm sorry to see it end this way. We've lost too many games too often. The people deserve better. I wish I'd be around whenever it got here."

Phil Iselin, president of the Jets, said "no decision will be reached about Namath until a new coach is named."

Ford Plans Housecleaning Lions' Landry Out?

PONTIAC, Mich. (AP) — Detroit Lions owner William Clay Ford says the National Football League team may trade its quarterback, Greg Landry.

"I think we need a change at quarterback," Ford said after the Lions' loss to the Los Angeles Rams in Saturday's season finale.

Ford added that Houston veteran Dan Pastorini, who has asked the Oilers to trade him, is being considered by the Lions.

Coach Tommy Hudspeth, who led Detroit to five wins and five losses on its way to an overall 6-8 record this season, is still the top candidate for the coaching job next season, Ford said.

Hudspeth, formerly the team's head scout, replaced Rick Forzano, who resigned as coach after four games.

"I give Tommy credit for at least getting the team back mentally this year," Ford said. But he added that he intends to speak with Hudspeth about the team's philosophy.

"If he doesn't see it my way, I'll probably go elsewhere," Ford said. "As long as I own the team and get the raps for losing, we might as well lose my way."

Ford said he intends to become more active than ever in the team's operation, acting as general manager in matters of hiring coaches and acquiring players. He also said he will exercise game-situation control over the coach.

The owner said housecleaning plans include bidding on other pros who have played out their options and will become free agents.

Meanwhile, the Lions announced Monday that pass receiver Ray Jarvis and linebacker Charlie Weaver have been named by their teammates as the club's most valuable players.

Jarvis was voted most valuable offensive player two years after coming to the Lions as an unknown waiver acquisition, and became a starter last season. He led the team in receiving with 39 catches for 822 yards (a 21.1-yard average) and five touchdowns.

Weaver, voted most valuable defensive player, was a highly regarded second-round draft choice who took over as a starter in his third season. Weaver led in tackles with 114 and paced the defense with seven of the team's 28 quarterback sacks.

CHRIS EVERT
Sportswoman Of Year

Evert Top SI Athlete

NEW YORK (AP) — As Chris Evert says, someone always comes out of the woodwork in an Olympic year, sweeping national media awards for their prowess from the professionals.

This was an Olympic year, but Chris Evert beat the Olympians in being named Sports Illustrated's 1976 athlete of the year.

The award was announced Monday as Sports Illustrated's Athlete of the Year, but Miss Evert beat out all of the men, too — amateurs and professionals. In fact, no man was in the final seven considered by SI's editors.

"Women are taking over the world," Miss Evert said.

She is the first woman to own the honor outright since it was instituted in 1954. And she and Billie Jean King, who shared the award with UCLA basketball Coach John Wooden in 1972, are the only tennis players to be named.

"I think it's great," said Miss Evert. "It's great for tennis, and it's great for women. It shows we're appreciated by the press and the public."

Miss Evert, just a week shy of 22, has been in the forefront of international tennis since she was 16. For the last three years, she has been the top-ranked player in the world, winning Wimbledon, the United States, French and Italian opens twice each and the Virginia Slims championships three times. She also earned about $375,000 in tournaments, plus whatever the lode from World Team Tennis and endorsements might be.

"It was my best year," Miss Evert said.

USC Coach Respects 'M'

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Southern California Trojans Coach John Robinson says he has a great deal of respect for Michigan Coach Bo Schembechler and for his Wolverines football team.

"I've met Bo once or twice," the Trojans' first-year coach said Monday as his team opened drills for its Rose Bowl date against Michigan. "I was an assistant then. He probably doesn't remember me. I think he's a great coach."

On the subject of Schembechler's team, Robinson said he's not been better in years.

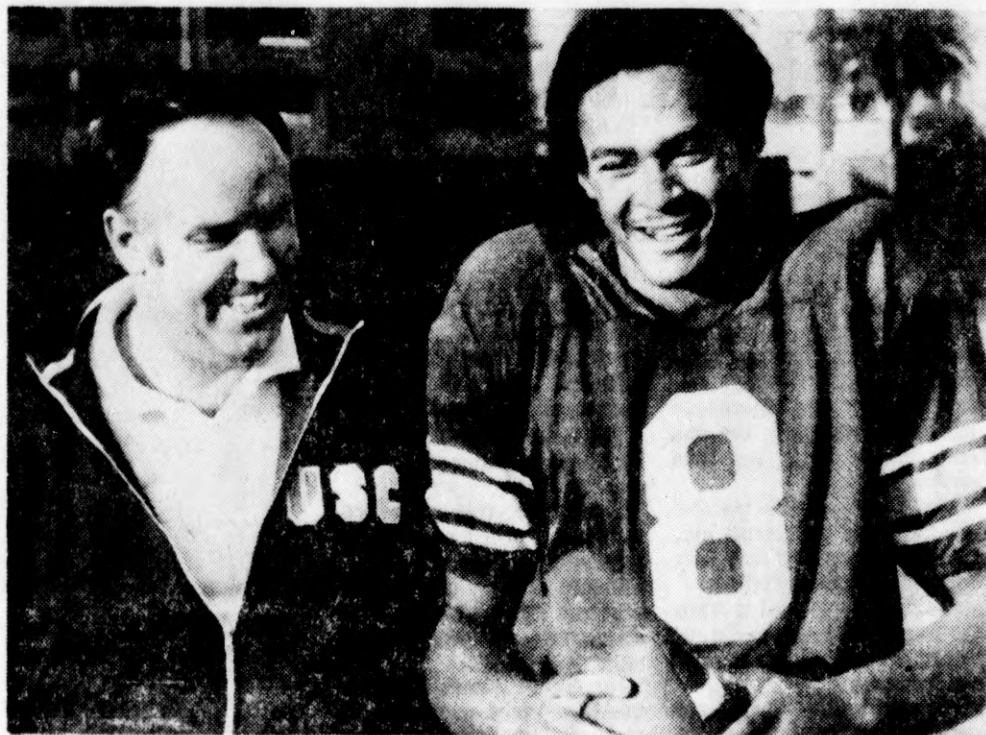

"This is one of the best teams I've seen in college football since the 1972 USC team," he remarked. "They're No. 1 in scoring, No. 1 in scoring defense, No. 1 in total offense and very high in total defense.

"The Ohio State-Michigan game has been close and very dramatic the last several years," Robinson continued. "But this year it was neither close nor dramatic. Michigan blitzed them."

Despite his high regard for the Wolverines, Robinson isn't selling his Trojans short.

"I think it's a tossup," he said of the Jan. 1 match in Pasadena. "I don't think the 6-point odds (Michigan favored) affect Michigan or affect us. I think everybody on Michigan's team expects to win, and I think everybody on our team expects to win."

Moeller Returns For 'M' Bowl Bid

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP) — The Michigan Wolverines braved sub-freezing temperatures Monday to begin practicing for their New Year's Day Rose Bowl battle against Southern California in balmy Pasadena.

It was the first football practice for the Wolverines since they won the right to represent the Big Ten by beating Ohio State in Columbus Nov. 22.

And Gary Moeller, a former assistant football coach at U-M who was named head coach at Illinois a few weeks ago, was back at his old job Monday to coordinate defense for Michigan.

"It's a little bit unusual," Moeller said of his temporary return to Ann Arbor. "I'm looking at this kind of like a senior — this is going to be my last game and I want to make sure it's a damn good one.

"When you get here and get this opportunity — I want to do it. I want to see this team through.... I'm fired up about that," he added.

Michigan head coach Bo Schembechler said Moeller himself made the decision to help the Wolverines prepare for the bowl game.

"When Gary came in (after getting the Illinois job), I said, 'I'm not forcing you to go to the Rose Bowl,'" Schembechler said.

"But he said, 'What the heck. I want that national championship as much as you do. I'll give you a heck of an effort,'"

the head coach said.

Schembechler said Monday's workout was the first of six before the team flies to Pasadena Dec. 20. They are allowed a total of 16 practice days for the Rose Bowl game.

"We're just going to try to get back to our fundamentals — blocking, ball-handling, tackling," Schembechler said Monday.

Moeller noted they would "start making some adjustments" right away to be prepared for Ricky Bell and the USC team.

Schembechler said timing is a big problem in the option attack. "I think that's the biggest problem we'll face. I think our guys stayed in pretty good physical condition."

winning coach who was surprised.

"We're better than I thought. I've underestimated them and they've given me a pleasant surprise," Kentucky's Joe Hall said after his third-ranked Wildcats buried South Carolina 98-67.

"I have felt all along Kentucky will be ranked No. 1 before the season is over. They certainly looked the part tonight," said South Carolina's Frank McGuire, who isn't used to being treated so badly, and certainly not on his home court.

The only other member of The Associated Press' Top Twenty to see action was No. 15

Syracuse, which trounced Penn State 101-63 behind little Jimmy Williams' 20 points.

Kentucky, 5-0, jumped to a

10-0 lead and South Carolina was never able to recover. At the half it was 32-34 and at one point in the second half the Wildcats led by a whopping 35 points. Jack Givens paced Kentucky with 28 points and Mike Phillips added 23.

"This group of juniors has been playing together for the third year now and they've matured," Hall said. "We've been dominating some very good teams."

Jackie Gilloon topped 1-3 South Carolina with 17 points and freshman center Jim Graziano had 16.

The victory extended Kentucky's winning streak to 15, longest of any major college in the nation. The loss was the worst for the Gamecocks on their home court since they moved into the Carolina Coliseum eight years ago. The greatest margin of defeat previously was seven points.

Williams enabled 7-1 Syracuse to pull away from Penn State with an eight-point burst midway through the first half.

Elsewhere:

—Army boosted its record to 6-0, its best start in eight years, by routing Kings Point 76-52.

—Unbeaten Dayton placed four men in double figures and turned back New Orleans 82-68.

—Wichita State held off Long Beach State 83-78 behind Bob Elmore's 22 points.

—Freshman Dean Uthoff scored 22 points and grabbed 19 rebounds as Iowa State downed California 78-70.

scored 25 points as Nebraska walloped Northwest Missouri 88-53.

—Houston, which beat Lamar by 10 points earlier in the season, doubled its pleasure and downed the Cardinals 103-83 although Otis Birdsong, one of the nation's scoring leaders with a 33.3 average, managed only 17 on 6-for-21 shooting.

—Matt Hicks scored 26 points to lead Northern Illinois over Wisconsin 81-57.

—Jim Wood's lay-up with 18 seconds left enabled Georgia Tech to nip St. Francis, Pa., 74-72.

—Unbeaten Rice won its sixth straight, trimming Northern Colorado 76-57 as Frank Thomas and Elbert Darden split 42 points.

Ali-Foreman Rematch Looks Certain

NEW YORK (AP) — Don King, who promoted world heavyweight champion Muhammad Ali's first fight with George Foreman, says he's been offered a chance to handle a rematch.

King, in a telephone call from the Los Angeles office of attorney Norman Kaplan, told The Associated Press Monday night that Herbert Muhammad, Ali's manager, had given King 90 days to raise the money for the fight.

Details were incomplete, and it was not known where or when such a fight would be held or how much money would be involved.

But Kaplan, who represents World Boxing Association President Dr. Elias Cordoba of Panama, said: "Ali told the doctor he is going to send him a telegram today (Monday) to confirm it."

King said he met with Cordoba Monday at Kaplan's office and also had talked with Ali by phone in Chicago.

"We got to get the money together, but he (Ali) has agreed to forego any other bouts and fight Foreman," King said.

Earlier, Ali had signed a contract with Madison Square Garden to fight challenger Duane Bobick, but Bobick finally signed to meet Ken Norton after Ali's on-again, off-again retirement fouled plans for the Ali-Bobick fight. Ali reportedly will return an advance on that contract.

It also had been reported that Ali would fight either Earnie Shavers, who stopped Roy Williams on national television Saturday, in March, or South African Mike Schutte. Ali said Friday in Louisville that he would fight Schutte.

However, King said that an Ali-Schutte fight, which had been in the works, now would be bypassed.

Kaplan, in a telephone interview, said there would be a joint announcement on Friday concerning the fight by Cordoba and Jose Sulaiman of Mexico, president of the World Boxing Council.

The WBC announced at its convention in Las Vegas Saturday that Ali could fight someone other than Foreman, as long as he fought Foreman by the end of May.

Ali won the title by knocking out Foreman in the eighth round Oct. 30, 1974 in Africa

Namath May Have Played Final Game

NEW YORK (AP) — Will Joe Namath of the New York Jets is giving his regards to Broadway from another National Football League town in the future?

"The owners are pretty unanimous about not wanting him back," The New York Daily News said in today's editions, quoting "a source close to the team."

The Jets and Namath wound up a miserable National Football League season Sunday, losing to the Cincinnati Bengals 42-3. The Jets' 3-11 record matched the worst mark in the club's history while Namath completed just 4 of 15 passes for a meager 20 yards and was intercepted four times.

"Even if I decide I want to play, it's not up to me, it's up to the Jets' management," said Namath, who had asked to be traded to the Los Angeles Rams before the season. "If this was my last game, I'm sorry to see it end this way. We've lost too many games too often. The people deserve better. I wish I'd be around whenever it got here."

Phil Iselin, president of the Jets, said "no decision will be reached about Namath until a new coach is named."

The Associated Press reported Monday that defensive coordinator Walt Michaels would be named to succeed Coach Lou Holtz, who resigned last week.

Meet Tonight In Big Bud Battle

Key Week For Lancers, Bucks

Contender or pretender? Lakeshore and Buchanan will both find out which role they're going to play in the Blossomland conference race this week.

The two collide Tuesday night at Buchanan and then each takes to the road Friday, the Lancers traveling to River Valley and the Bucks to Cassopolis.

In other Blossomland action Tuesday, unbeaten Brandywine (2-0) hosts Edwardsburg (1-1), Colonia (0-2) travels to Cassopolis (2-0) and River Valley (1-1) battles Dowagiac (0-2).

Among other top games Tuesday, Decatur treks over to Watervliet to face the unbeaten Panthers, South Haven travels to Allegan and Norm Johnson will go after his 150th coaching victory when Banger hosts Bloomingdale.

Unbeaten Niles hosts South Bend St. Joseph in a rare Wednesday night contest.

Both Lakeshore and Buchanan take 1-1 records into Tuesday's duel and Lancer coach Lloyd MacTavish believes that neither team can afford to lose.

"It's a crucial week for us," he says. "Looking at the Blossomland, if any team manages just one loss they'll win the league outright. Teams with two losses will probably share the title, but three losses will be out of it.

"If we lose both games this week it's going to seal our fate as far as being a contender. We have to come out of this week with no worse than a split."

Buchanan coach Jon Bohannon feels the same way as MacTavish.

"We can't lose any of these games coming up if we're going to be a contender," he says.

Both the Lancers and Bucks are coming off strong weekend performances. Lakeshore bombed Dowagiac 83-47 and narrowly lost to Wolverine power South Haven 68-66.

Buchanan blasted Colonia 90-55. MacTavish is hoping the Lancers have finally come around.

"We're executing better both offensively and defensively," he explains. "We're beginning to get our basketball skills now and our shooting charts are beginning to reflect that."

Lakeshore, which hit just 42 per cent from the floor in its first two games, found the range on almost 50 per cent in both weekend contests.

Buchanan also got off to a slow start this season, losing to Niles and River Valley. But the Bucks put it together against Colonia, placing all five starters in double figures.

MacTavish is most worried about the speed and rebounding power of the Bucks, who have outbounded their last two opponents at better than a 2-1 ratio.

"People picked Buchanan to repeat as our conference champions and I can see why," he says. "They have a potent offense and terrific board play. We're going to have to slow down their fast break and eliminate second efforts on the boards."

"We also have to execute our offense and get the good percentage shot. That may mean a game of keep away. Controlling the tempo of the game will be important to us. We have to be more patient on offense."

Buchanan, which has beaten the Lancers four straight times, boasts four regulars in double figures. Center Gerald Busby heads the list with a 16.3 scoring mark, followed by forwards Greg Frazier (14.3) and Mo Kyles (13.0) and guard Kevin Vanderbush (10.4).

Lakeshore counters with 6-5 center Tom Jager (18.0). Guard Odell Brister is the other Lancer in double digits with a 13.8 scoring mark.

Watervliet is off to its best start since the 1954-55 season, but faces a rugged week. The Panthers face Berrien Springs Friday in addition to the Decatur contest.

"We haven't played the powerful teams yet," Watervliet coach Gene Bednarowski notes. "This week will be our first real tests."

Bednarowski has been especially pleased with his team's aggressive play and balanced scoring so far. Center Jim Weaver leads the way with a 17.8 scoring mark. He is followed by guards Chuck Brock (14.6) and Pat Curtis (10.8) and forwards Tom Hutchinson (9.6) and Jon Hinkelman (8.0).

Decatur is paced by guard Kurt Wiese, who is nearing the 1,000-point plateau with his 28.0 average.

"You can't ask too much more of Kurt," Decatur coach Tom Gibson says. "He's probably capable of scoring more points, but we also need him for his floor game."

Wiese dishes out almost 10 assists a game in addition to his point total.

South Haven has beaten Allegan 10 straight times and needs to make it 11 if the Rams are to remain strong Wolverine conference contenders. Forwards Mike Grimes and William Gamble head the South Haven scoring list with 16.8 and 15.8 scoring marks, respectively.

Bees, Bulldogs Among 'D' Powers

Behind some less-than-glittering basketball records may lurk this season's Class D tournament gold.

Watch for the Detroit duo of defending state champion St. Martin dePorres and East Catholic, although their records may not be of interest to Guinness, to put on a stampee once tournament action commences.

Both are again well-stocked with talent — and saddled with murderous schedules that include a horde of Class A and B teams.

DePorres, which lost All-Stater Tony Fuller and most of his accomplices by graduation, is off to a 3-0 start nevertheless. Eric Duhart returns and he has a solid front-line mate in 6-foot-6 sophomore Mike Taylor.

Catholic, also 3-0, pins its hopes on a pair of 6-foot-6 seniors — Terry Tripplett, and Ted Anderson. "We have good depth, like to run a lot and have the potential to be a pretty good team," admits Coach Dave Soules.

Another that will run the gauntlet of a Class A and B schedule is Muskegon Christian. The Warriors, coached by Elmer Walcott and possessing a strong tournament tradition, dropped in enrollment from Class C to D this season.

There are many smaller enrollment schools who are going to dispute — on the court — Detroit's claim to Class D supremacy when March Mac-nets in.

Ann Arbor St. Thomas, for instance, second-ranked in the regular season by the Associated Press last year, has won its first four games.

And third-rated Harbor Springs has its well-oiled scoring machine functioning, averaging over 100 points in three lopsided victories. Dave Rhine, 6-foot-5 center, and guard Ed Kelbel, again make the Rams the scourge of the Northland.

Harbor Springs, it might be remembered, lost out to dePorres in the finals last March.

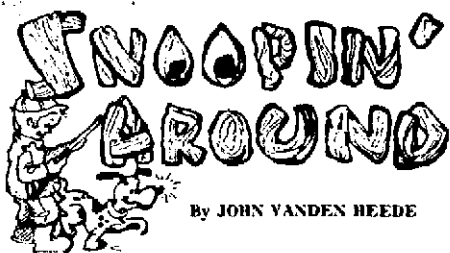

Two Benton Harbor area powers — Bridgman and Covert — are also making loud noises. Bridgman, featuring the towering trio of Bob Linke, 6-foot-5 Howie Mutz and 6-foot-6 Wolfgang Wolf, has rolled over four foes by impressive margins.

Covert, state champion in 1971, again features a band of leapers led by Robert Maggard and soph whiz James DeBoe. The Bulldogs, who will tangle with Bridgman Feb. 12, are off to a 6-0 start.

Mio's 6-foot-5 Jay Smith has been the most impressive sophomore in Class D this far, however. Smith is averaging 35 points in Mio's first four wins.

Michigan's plan to more than double its input of trout and salmon fingerlings into Great Lakes waters is drawing mixed reactions from sport fishermen.

Michigan Steelheaders went on record in favor of the Department of Natural Resources goal at last week's Natural Resources Commission meeting in Lansing. But Trout Unlimited and other fly fishing groups and individuals voiced opposition.

Because the DNR objective is controversial, commission members decided to wait a few months before acting on the program, which was presented by new fisheries chief John Scott. The NRC wants to get more reactions from the public before making its decision.

To reach a goal of 40 million fish would require a significant increase in natural reproduction, and that would mean opening up more streams to spawning fish.

Expanding areas which salmon and steelhead can reach means more fish ladders, more snagging areas, more law-enforcement headaches, additional litter and further encroachment on the territory of fly fishermen. So, naturally, that segment of the fishing fraternity is concerned.

Steelheaders have accepted the snag fisherman, and they generally feel the other problems could be handled with proper management. They conclude that the expanded fishery would bring more benefits than detriments.

Speaking in favor of the DNR program at last week's Commission meeting were Judge Donald Goodwillie of South Haven and Dick McNellis of South Haven. Both are active Steelheaders.

Existing hatcheries produce about 12 million fish of Michigan Great Lakes waters, and the DNR guesses another 5 million fish are produced by natural reproduction. That leaves the DNR about 23 million fish short of the 40 million goal.

New hatchery facilities which are scheduled to go into production in the next few years will add 7 million fish — leaving the DNR 16 million short of its goal.

The next step toward the 40 million goal is the controversial one. The DNR would like to open about 3,000 more miles of stream to spawning fish to increase natural reproduction by 10 million.

In southwestern Michigan, that could mean moving fish over dams at Buchanan and Niles and up into the Dowagiac River system.

The final million fish would come from a new idea in fish raising — natural rearing areas.

Imprinting ponds would be employed to direct spawning runs of salmon to specific areas. The ponds would be along streams and the Great Lakes shoreline.

If strategically located in areas having no major stream system for planting of fish, Scott believes the ponds could provide "sure" fisheries.

In addition to acquiring land for the imprint ponds, the DNR also would like to acquire more land along the Great Lakes and tributary streams for public access and other facilities.

Another major objective of Scott's future fisheries division program is to reduce the reliance on chemicals for the control of the sea lamprey through construction of barriers to restrict the stream spawning areas accessible to this parasite.

Marine Taxidermy Now Big Business In Florida

HALLANDALE, Fla. (AP) — It may be only a bite-size snapper or maybe an 800-pound tuna. But if it is a prize ocean catch of a tourist fisherman, it may be worth the hundreds of dollars to stuff it for display.

More than seven million salt water fishermen visit Florida's sunny shores each year. And the demand to preserve prize catches of marlin, shark, sailfish and bluefin tuna is so great that marine taxidermy has grown to be a multi-million dollar industry.

When a vacationing fisherman leaves his treasured tuna or snapper, it is a slinky, dripping carcass, probably suspended from a hook at a marina. The next he sees it, some two-to-six months and a few hundred dollars later, the fish is brightly painted and firm, ready to hang above a fireplace or office desk.

A sling ray with a six-foot wing span might cost almost $400 to mount. A 12-foot marlin goes for more than $900 at one local taxidermist. And a one-to-10 inch snapper can be processed for less than $100.

The three or four major marine taxidermists in the state make their money by turning out a product as similar to the real thing as possible. But most fish mounts utilize no more than the thin skin from the live fish. Other mounts don't even use the skin but rely on fiberglass.

Unless a guy gets an absolute case of the tremors or his rifle sights are hopelessly askew, once deer and hunter are standing within reasonable range of each other, acquiring venison becomes somewhat routine.

There's no such word as routine in the archer's vocabulary for the margin of error fills the whole page, aided and abetted by intervening twigs . . . and funny things.

Consider the unnamed biologist whose entire jaw went numb when he sent a broadhead after a deer . . . accompanied by his favorite briar pipe. Neither projectile hit on target and sympathetic companions checked the game digest to verify legality of double-barrel archery. In the same hunting party, an adrenalin-powered arm drew the bowstring an inch beyond the arrow's neck . . . upon release, the string barely stroked one of the feathers in passing, dropping the arrow across his foot. Why must there be witnesses to such events?

The same hunter . . . now under control . . . managed a legitimate release at another target, but his arrow fell considerably short of its target. Contrary to tales of skittish white-tails, this one casually sniffed the arrow protruding from the ground before ambulating on . . . oblivious of the frenzy taking place in a nearby blind.

There's also the incident from another year when an archer, with his eyes glued on several approaching deer, snuffed out his cigarette against a pine stump and . . . twanged! . . . also his bowstring. (I know exactly how he responded. . .)

So don't be too concerned about the vulnerability of the poor deer during the current archery season . . . they can take care of themselves.

It doesn't really take much . . .

Michigan's 1976 firearm deer season may not have been as productive as last year's, but the hunter safety record afield was the state's best ever, reports the Department of Natural Resources.

An estimated 650,000 sportsmen shot an estimated 91,000 whitetails during the two-week late November season, say DNR wildlife biologists, who predict a final survey report next spring will show the total about 10 percent less than the 1975 harvest figure.

Only three deer hunters died as a result of gunshot wounds and only 14 others were injured, compared to nine deaths and 40 injuries in 1975 — a year previously acclaimed as the "safest on record."

The DNR began keeping statistics on hunting accidents in 1935, when four hunters were shot to death and six other suffered from gunshot wounds, points out Frank Opolka, the department's recreation safety supervisor.

Why was 1976 a model year for safety-conscious sportsmen? Opolka and safety specialist James R. Walker say there appears to be at least five key factors:

—About three out of every four hunters are believed to have worn garb colored in easily-visible "blaze orange," a fluorescent color that is not natural in an outdoors setting.

Because DNR conservation officers are convinced that "blaze orange" significantly contributes to fewer accidents afield, Opolka says the DNR will again "vigorously support" proposed legislation in 1977 that would require hunters to wear a cap, vest or jacket of that color.

—More hunters have been trained in safety and sportsman's ethics. Since 1971 over 500,000 teenagers alone completed DNR-programmed hunter safety courses, which were taught by a corps of 4,000 volunteer instructors.

—A lot of deer were available. Biologists estimated the pre-season herd at one million animals for the second year in a row. "Hunters apparently felt less pressure to get their deer and thus were not over-anxious and carefully selected targets," opines Walker.

—Conditions were better. The northern two-thirds of the state had snow for most of the deer season, which made spotting deer and hunters easier. Also, law officers say fewer hunters were afield on opening day — a Monday — resulting in better distribution of hunting pressure throughout the season. In 1975, opening day fell on a Saturday.

—The news media continually helped remind hunters to be safety-minded, says Opolka: "Our experience with reporters this year was that they sought out positive features about the deer season. They seemed interested in knowing more about the fact that maybe deer hunting is really no more dangerous than any other sport.

"We'd like to have a year with zero incidents — no accidents at all," he states. "We came pretty close this year. Of the three fatalities, only one was the result of a line-of-fire accident; the other two were apparently caused through general carelessness."

Dave Arnold, DNR deer specialist, says biologists estimate that hunters in 1976 took 12,500 bucks in the Upper Peninsula, 34,800 in the northern Lower Peninsula and 24,000 whitetails in the southern Lower Peninsula — a decrease in the harvest total in each region.

"We predicted a kill lower than the 1975 total when a record 96,800 bucks and 10,000 antlerless deer were taken," states Arnold. "Yes, the herd was estimated again at one million animals, but traditionally, yearling bucks make up the bulk of the harvest and there appears to have been far fewer this year."

"This fact was noted last June at the Natural Resource Commission's annual "deer meeting" when the Wildlife Division reported that the general condition of the herd in the Upper Peninsula and northern Lower Peninsula was poorer in the spring of 1975 than in 1974," continues Arnold. "From this information, we could logically assume that the number of fawns that survived immediately after birth in these areas was lower than in 1974."

"The spring of 1974 produced the bumper crop of bucks harvested in 1975. It follows that the 1976 buck kill in the northern two-thirds of the state would most likely be lower than in 1975. And it was."

Fishing Report

Steelhead anglers continue to have good success on the St. Joseph River, according to the Department of Natural Resources. However, the number of fishermen is very small.

Today's thawing temperatures won't help the ice fishing situation. The DNR continues to issue warnings about dangerous ice.

'Rudolph' Has Sold 113 Million Records

By TOM JORY
Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Johnny Marks remembers a visit to a Japanese bath in Tokyo, four or five years ago.

... And there you have these girls who give you a bath. And I was having this bath and this girl was scrubbing my back, and what do I hear? Dm di da-dum di dum-dum. And I turned to her and I says, 'What are you singing?' 'She looked at me in utter scorn. 'Don't you know (squeaky mock-Japanese) 'Rudolph the Red-Nosed Reindeer'?"

Does Johnny Marks know that song? He wrote it — 27 years and 113 million records ago. "I don't think there's ever been a record that catapulted itself like that one," muses the trim, 67-year-old composer. "It's the only one I know of that became No. 1 on the country charts, on the pop charts, in the jukeboxes."

Johnny Marks became an overnight hero to millions in 1949, though few knew his name. He's a hero today, still behind the scenes. Millions will hear his biggest hit in countless tongues. Millions will see three Christmas specials on TV — Johnny Marks wrote all the music. "Rudolph the Red-Nosed Reindeer" was just telecast for the 13th year in a row.

It was 1948. Tim Pan Alley. Nearly a decade earlier, Robert L. May had written the "Rudolph" story in Chicago as a Christmas giveaway for his employer.

Montgomery Ward and Co. "I wrote it," recalls Johnny Marks, "easily one of the worst songs ever written. It was just terrible. I threw that away, and the following year, I rewrote it. And that is the song you know today. 'I can sing it for you. The first one went, 'Rudolph the Red-Nosed Reindeer, had a very shiny nose.' But that's a terrible tune. (It only resembles the well-known smash hit.)

"Now what happened is, a year later, I'm walking along the street, it's never happened before, I started to hum. Dm di da-dum di dum-dum. You see, what I'm doing is inverting the notes, instead of going down, I'm going up."

Out went demonstration records — to Dinah Shore, Bing Crosby "all the top artists of the day, including Gene Autry. What's great about this, I did not know this man (Autry). I had no relation with him. He got the record at his office, played it over, and took it home with seven other songs to pick four for his next record session.

"He decided not to do 'Rudolph.' He said, 'I didn't feel it fit my image.' But his wife said, 'Gee, I think 'Rudolph the Red-Nosed Reindeer' is one of the greatest songs I ever heard. Put it on one side of the record for me, put what you think are the hits on the other.' And of course, the rest is history."

Three months later, Autry, the singing cowboy, sang "Rudolph" at Madison Square Garden. "I thought it would be a hit, a normal hit song," says Johnny Marks. "What happened to it, that was beyond my wildest dreams. I could not conceive of it."

Johnny Marks looks and plays the part. Trim white goatee, mellow cigar. He taps his foot as he hums through a tune. Home is in Greenwich Village, "a little yard in the back." His office probably hasn't changed much in the last quarter-century.

Johnny Marks had hits before "Rudolph," and he's had some since, not all of the Christmas variety. Kate Smith did "Anyone Can Move a Mountain," the Ink Spots did "Address Unknown," Bing Crosby did "Who Calls," Glenn Miller did "She'll Always Remember."

He set up St. Nicholas Music Co. to publish "Rudolph," and he's concentrated on Christmas songs since — "I Heard the Bells on Christmas Day" (Bing Crosby-1936), "Rockin' Around the Christmas Tree" (Brenda Lee-1960), "Holly, Jolly, Christmas" (Burl Ives-1963). But nothing Johnny Marks or anyone else ever did took off like "Rudolph."

Johnny Marks still writes a little music, but "it's a different world. I have to admit it's youth oriented ... and I find it a little more difficult." Christmas songs? "There are practically none come out now. John Denver, Cuno, Crosby, Autry, I mean, they just reuse."

MICHIGAN CITY, Ind. (AP) — Five inmates at the Indiana State Prison are being held in seclusion following the disclosure of a plot to use explosives to break out of the old facility.
"The plans called for making explosive devices to try and blow out a wall to make an escape," Warden Jack Duckworth said Monday. "One rumor is that they planned to blow out the north wall of the prison."
Now, investigators are trying to determine if more inmates were involved before turning the matter over to the LaPorte County prosecutor.
Chemicals from the prison soap factory and the hospital laboratory were to be obtained to make nitroglycerine.

CORE COMMUNITIES ORGANIZED Some Balkan Jews Won't Leave

By ALEXANDER G. HIGGINS
Associated Press Writer

BUCHAREST, Romania (AP) — Jews who have decided to stay in Romania and Bulgaria have organized a core community that can survive after all those who wish to emigrate to Israel have left, Jewish officials say.

About half of the 800,000 Jews in Romania before World War II were killed in Nazi concentration camps, according to Emil Schechter of the Romania Federation of Jewish Communities. Of the remaining number, about 335,000 have emigrated to Israel and 15,000 to the United States, he said.

Schechter added that about 45,000 Jews remain in Romania among a population of 21.5 million. Western diplomats said that is the official figure, but that the actual Jewish population may perhaps be as high as 90,000.

Romania attained most-favored-nation trading status with the United States in 1975 after agreeing to have a liberal policy on emigration.

The Soviet Union refused to sign a similar agreement on the grounds that the emigration provision was U.S. interference in internal Soviet affairs.

Schechter said the provision was unnecessary for Romanian Jews and that emigration was continuing, with about 2,400 to 2,500 Jews going to Israel during the first 11 months of 1976.

Jewish sources said there were some problems and delays in emigration, partly because state planning is on a five-year basis and many Jews are professionals whose services are counted upon.

One young Jewish woman said she and her husband were waiting for approval to emigrate. She added that while they had "equal rights in all points" in Romania, they are eager to start a new life in Israel, even though they realized the country had financial problems and there was potential danger of Arab-Israeli hostilities.

Schechter said he expected emigration to taper off and that the Romanian Jewish population would stabilize at about 30,000.

About 60 per cent of the Jews still in Romania are over 60, he said. They are retired and receiving a state pension, which they would lose if they emigrated.

The Jewish population of neighboring Bulgaria is much smaller, about 5,000 in a national population of 8.7 million, sources said. The other 55,000 Bulgarian Jews who survived World War II have gone to Israel, they added.

Although Bulgaria was allied with Germany during most of World War II, there was resistance to shipping Jews to concentration camps. A permanent exhibition in Bulgaria's capital, Sofia, documents the "Rescue of the Bulgarian Jews, 1941-1944."

Sofia's population of 950,000 includes 2,000 Jews, who have only one synagogue, which recently has been renovated, sources said.

Bulgaria's Jews cannot sustain the many programs of religion, culture and tradition which the larger Jewish population of Romania sponsors.

Bucharest's Yiddish theater celebrated its centennial last August. The theater has been state-supported since it was nationalized 28 years ago.

Communist officials attended the anniversary ceremony, and the theater's director said its plays have "revolutionary appeal."

About 600-700 Romanian Jews attend weekly courses on the Talmud and Torah, with lectures on Jewish history and concerts of Jewish music.

A social dance afterwards has been successful in getting young Jewish men and women to meet and marry, decreasing mixed marriages, a Jewish source said. Like other legally recognized religious groups, Romania Jews receive state aid, including subsidies or buildings and rabbis' salaries. Jewish fund-raisers in the United States send about $3 million a year to aid about 8,500 Romanian Jews, most of them elderly.

Jews are influential in Romania, especially Chief Rabbi Moses Rosen, a member of parliament, Schechter said.

Another Freighter Runs Aground Near Soo Locks

SAULT STE. MARIE, Mich. (AP) — Another freighter ran aground in the icy St. Mary's river near Sault Ste. Marie Monday night, once again halting shipping traffic.

The 530-foot Liberian cargo vessel Unimar ran aground about two hours after the Stewart Cort had cleared the Soo Locks. The Cort had stopped traffic for 13 hours before it was freed.

The Coast Guard said 25 ships — seven upbound and 18 downbound — were awaiting passage early today. All traffic was halted when word of the Unimar's situation was received by marine radio.

It would have been too dangerous for ships to attempt to navigate around the Unimar in darkness, a Coast Guard spokesman said.

Officials were to reassess the situation at first light today.

The 1,000-foot Cort — the biggest ship on the Great Lakes — had tied up traffic earlier Monday when the 105-foot-wide vessel tried to enter the 110-footwide locks. Coast Guard officials said loose ice filled the narrow clearance gap, and the ship was wedged against a lock wall.

Authorities were forced to drain and flush the locks four times before enough ice was washed out to allow the Cort through.

But the Cort was the only ship to clear before word of the Unimar's accident was received.

Last Thursday, the 714-foot

Cliff's Victory ran aground in the river, causing the worst navigation jam in 50 years. More than 60 ships were stalled for two days while the ore carrier was partially unloaded and pulled off a rocky shoal.

"It's not even officially winter yet," groaned a Coast Guard officer late Monday. "If this is what it's going to be like, we're in for a long season."

Coast Guard cutters and the ice breaker Mackinac were working continuously to keep ice broken up so ships could move through the locks as rapidly as possible. Once problems with the Unimar were resolved.

Saturday is the deadline for all ocean-going ships to clear the St. Lawrence Seaway before it closes for the winter.

ALLEGAN — The Allegan county health department has announced it will continue to make swine flu shots available to county residents for an indefinite period. Acting director Karl Zimmerman said the health department will administer swine flu shots daily from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. at its offices at 2233 33rd street, Dumont Lake. He said the department has flu serum for adults, young people ages 18-24, and for healthy children. People 18 to 24 must return for a second dose to receive maximum protection, he said. Zimmerman said the health department has already inoculated over 15,000 county residents, or about 40 per cent of the eligible population.

Hughes Attorney Claims 'Mormon Will' Forgery

LOS ANGELES (AP) — An attorney for the estate of Howard Hughes says gas station attendant Melvin Dummar was involved in forging the mysterious Hughes "Mormon will" which names him as one of the billionaire's heirs.

Attorney James Dilworth also told Superior Court Judge Neil

A. Lake on Monday that the FBI concluded 10 days ago that fingerprints on an envelope containing the document belonged to Dummar. The FBI, however, would not comment.

"It's been our belief for months that Mr. Dummar was, and had to be, involved in the forgery of this will," said Dilworth.

Dummar claims he found Hughes wandering in the desert in 1968, gave him a ride and loaned him a quarter. He was named in the handwritten will to receive one-sixteenth of his estate — an estimated $100 million or more. Dummar has said he had no knowledge of the document until it was made public.

Dilworth is a Texas attorney representing three of Hughes' maternal cousins in the hearings being conducted before Judge Lake to gather depositions prior to a Jan. 10 Las Vegas probate trial on the will's authenticity.

Both appointments are subject to Senate confirmation.

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — A $105,000 federal grant to Five CAP Inc., a community action agency serving Manistee, Mason, Lake and Newaygo counties, has been announced by the governor's office. The money from the Community Services Administration will fund the expansion of the agency's employment activities, job training and transportation program for the elderly.

Blossomland Amateur Radio Unit Will Stage Open House

The Blossomland Amateur Radio association will hold an open house Thursday for anyone interested in radio communications, according to Larry Knapp, activities chairman of the association. The program will consist of films and a discussion on amateur radio and be preceded by a short business meeting of the association. Knapp said the invitation is open particularly to citizens' band radio operators who want to become familiar with amateur radio. He explained that CB owners are licensed after filing out a registration form and paying a fee. Amateur radio operators are required to take a comprehensive examination and must know Morse code and theoretical application of electronics.

Another Freighter Runs Aground Near Soo Locks

SAULT STE. MARIE, Mich. (AP) — Another freighter ran aground in the icy St. Mary's River near Sault Ste. Marie Monday night, once again halting shipping traffic.

The 550-foot Liberian cargo vessel Unimar ran aground about two hours after the Stewart Cort had cleared the Soo Locks. The Cort had stopped traffic for 13 hours before it was freed.

The Coast Guard said 25 ships — seven upbound and 18 downbound — were awaiting passage early today. All traffic was halted when word of the Unimar's situation was received by marine radio.

It would have been too dangerous for ships to attempt to navigate around the Unimar in darkness, a Coast Guard spokesman said.

Officials were to reassess the situation at first light today.

The 1,000-foot Cort — the biggest ship on the Great Lakes — had tied up traffic earlier Monday when the 105-foot-wide vessel tried to enter the 110-footwide locks. Coast Guard officials said loose ice filled the narrow clearance gap, and the ship was wedged against a lock wall.

Authorities were forced to drain and flush the locks four times before enough ice was washed out to allow the Cort through.

But the Cort was the only ship to clear before word of the Unimar's accident was received.

Last Thursday, the 714-foot

Cliff's Victory ran aground in the river, causing the worst navigation jam in 50 years. More than 60 ships were stalled for two days while the ore carrier was partially unloaded and pulled off a rocky shoal.

"It's not even officially winter yet," groaned a Coast Guard officer late Monday. "If this is what it's going to be like, we're in for a long season."

Coast Guard cutters and the ice breaker Mackinac were working continuously to keep ice broken up so ships could move through the locks as rapidly as possible once problems with the Unimar were resolved.

Saturday is the deadline for all ocean-going ships to clear the St. Lawrence Seaway before it closes for the winter.

"It's been our belief for months that Mr. Dummar was, and had to be, involved in the forgery of this will," said Dilworth.

Dummar was not available for comment, but his attorney, Roger Dutton, suggested in Ogden, Utah, that someone may have attempted to transfer his client's thumbprint to the envelope.

Dummar claims he found Hughes wandering in the desert in 1968, gave him a ride and loaned him a quarter. He was named in the handwritten will to receive one-sixteenth of his estate — an estimated $100 million or more. Dummar has said he had no knowledge of the document until it was made public.

Galien Council Member Resigns

GALIEN — The Galien village council last night accepted the resignation of Councilman Jack Canfield.

Canfield, whose resignation was effective immediately, said his reasons for quitting the post were personal.

The 44-year-old trustee won re-election to a four-year term in March of this year.

In other areas, the council approved filing an application with the federal department of Housing and Urban Development for $400,000 in community development funds for 1977. Approval came following a public hearing on the matter.

As approved by the council, the application includes $106,000 as a portion of the village's share of a proposed, $1,340,000 sanitary sewer system, and $24,000 for a study of extension of sewer lines to property boundaries for 80 homes.

Other funds being sought are $30,000 for street improvements, $32,500 for park improvements and $12,500 to administer the grant if it is approved by HUD. It also seeks $80,000 to rehabilitate 15 homes in the village; $10,000 for a rehabilitation finance officer; $30,000 for the purchase of four sub-standard homes; $82,000 to relocate the residents of the four homes, and $3,000 to demolish the four structures.

The council also authorized payment $1,350 to engineers Whitman and Associates, St. Joseph, for installation of a new well for the village water system and an analysis of the water from the well.

In two moves related to a planned sewage treatment system for the village, the council voted to submit applications to the federal Environmental Protection Agency to discharge treated sewage from lagoons semi-annually into the Galien river, and to the state highway department to construct a sewer line in the US-12 right-of-way.

Gobles Stressing Basic 'Three Rs'

GOBLES — Gobles elementary school principal Randall D. Bus told the school board last night that elementary teachers this year are concentrating on the subjects of reading, writing and mathematics.

Bus said records would be kept on how much improvement is shown, and the results would be presented to the board.

Bus' remarks came during his presentation of goals and objectives he has set for the elementary school this year.

In other areas, board members said that if Van Buren county school boards do not show interest in a proposal to form a countywide organization, the Gobles board would probably seek to join the existing organization in Kalamazoo county.

The Van Buren organization has been suggested as a way various school boards can meet and discuss problems of mutual concern. The board was informed an organization of Berrien and Cass county school boards had asked the Gobles board to join, but board members said it would be too far to travel to that organization's meetings.

It was announced that 26 students in the high school had formed a ski club that meets each Thursday for skiing at Timber Ridge, a nearby ski area.

Board members said no settlement has been reached yet in contract negotiations with the Gobles teachers' association. The next meeting was scheduled for Jan. 10. The board cancelled the Dec. 27 meeting.

Lakeshore Plans New Math Class

The Lakeshore school board last night approved a new high school practical mathematics course as "a possible curriculum change in the near future."

The course, planned for juniors and seniors, is tentatively named math 200. It is designed to give applied math instruction beyond sophomore geometry to students who do not plan to become college math majors. Math 200 would replace the present second-year trigonometry and statistics course, according to math instructor Thomas Porter.

Porter said the course will "help the students use the math they already know to solve real-life problems." Instruction in the use of hand calculators will be included in the course. William Galbreath, assistant superintendent, reported to the board that the fall sports budget showed a profit of $1,328. Total expenses for fall sports were $15,326 and total revenues were $16,344.

Profits were shown by girls basketball, which cleared $175, and football, which cleared $3,351. Deficits were recorded by athletic administration, golf, softball, cross country, track and wrestling, Galbreath said.

Registration for second semester adult education classes will begin Dec. 27, the board was told by Dorothy Hildebrand, coordinator of adult education. Classes will be from Jan. 17 to May 18.

AIRMAN DIES

Royalton Approves Many Appointments

Royalton township board last night approved appointments to posts on township commissions and boards. Appointed to two-year terms on the board of review were Edward Kling, Robert McNay and Michael Callendar. The board will meet in March but meeting dates have not been set yet, according to Otto Jasper, township clerk. Callendar was also appointed to a one-year term on the zoning appeals board. Re-appointed to three-year terms on the planning commission were Otto Douthick, George Stover and Warren Kurtz. In another area, the board voted to contract with Ann's Secretary and Bookkeeping Service, 1477 Marquette Woods road, St. Joseph, to do part-time secretarial and bookkeeping work for $4 an hour.

Two New Buses Due For Decatur

DECATUR — The Decatur school board last night approved the purchase of two new school buses for spring delivery. A low bid of $8,877 for each bus body from Neil's, of Kalamazoo, was accepted. Sorell Chevrolet, Decatur, was awarded the contract for bus chassis with its bid of $8,975 each.

Also last night, Supt. Wayne Hellenka announced that the district's Christmas vacation will run from Dec. 17 to Jan. 3. The board also asked Hellenka to appeal an intermediate school district ruling denying the transfer of the H.A. Davis property from the Marcellus school district to the Decatur school district. Davis earlier told the board that his children now attend Decatur schools on a tuition basis because his Decatur township property is in the Marcellus district. Hellenka said he will make an appeal to the state board of education.

Second Man Dies Of Sniffing Fumes

From ASSOCIATED PRESS

A second inmate of the Michigan Training Center in Ionia has died and three others are hospitalized and in serious condition after sniffing fumes from a football helmet refinisher.

Authorities said William Keech, 19, of Monroe, died Monday at the Oakland Medical Center in Pontiac, Scott Lee Austin, 21, of Portage, died Saturday.

Austin was the son of Marvin Austin, owner and operator of the Southern Inn restaurant in Hartford, and Mrs. Shirley Carroll of Portage.

Dan Bolden, an administrative assistant at the Michigan Training Unit, said Monday the two dead prisoners went totally blind before they died. He said all five men suffered extensive liver, kidney and respiratory system damage.

Prison officials said the refinisher was stolen from an equipment cage in a recreation area at the prison.

A third inmate was hospitalized at Pontiac in "very poor condition" while two were being treated here at the Michigan Reformatory Hospital in serious condition with liver damage.

Bolden said the sniffing incident occurred Dec. 1 after an inmate broke into a locked recreation area and stole some helmet thinner, which Bolden said was used to refinish football helmets.

Authorities at the prison knew nothing of the sniffing episode until the day after it occurred, Bolden reported.

"We found three (inmates) the next morning, one a day later, and one several days after that. They weren't hard to spot. They started to turn completely yellow."

Galien Council Member Resigns

GALIEN — The Galien village council last night accepted the resignation of Councilman Jack Canfield.

Canfield, whose resignation was effective immediately, said his reasons for quitting the post were personal.

The 34-year-old trustee won re-election to a four-year term in March of this year.

In other areas, the council approved filing an application with the federal department of Housing and Urban Development for $400,000 in community development funds for 1977. Approval came following a public hearing on the matter.

As approved by the council, the application includes $106,000 as a portion of the village's share of a proposed, $1,350,000 sanitary sewer system, and $24,000 for a study of extension of sewer lines to property boundaries for 80 homes.

Other funds being sought are $30,000 for street improvements and $12,500 to administer the grant if it is approved by HUD. It also seeks $90,000 to rehabilitate 15 homes in the village; $10,000 for a rehabilitation finance officer; $30,000 for the purchase of four sub-standard homes; $62,000 to relocate the residents of the four homes, and $3,000 to demolish the four structures.

The council also authorized payment $1,350 to engineers Whitman and Associates, St. Joseph, for installation of a new well for the village water system and an analysis of the water from the well.

In two moves related to a planned sewage treatment system for the village, the council voted to submit applications to the federal Environmental Protection Agency to discharge treated sewage from lagoons into the Galien river, and to the state highway department to construct a sewer line in the US-12 right-of-way.

Gobles Stressing Basic 'Three Rs'

GOBLES — Gobles elementary school principal Randall D. Bos told the school board last night that elementary teachers this year are concentrating on the subjects of reading, writing and mathematics.

Bos said records would be kept on how much improvement is shown, and the results would be presented to the board.

Bos' remarks came during his presentation of goals and objectives he has set for the elementary school this year.

In other areas, board members said that if Van Buren county school boards do not show interest in a proposal to form a countywide organization, the Gobles board would probably seek to join the existing organization in Kalamazoo county.

The Van Buren organization has been suggested as a way various school boards can meet and discuss problems of mutual concern. The board was informed an organization of Berrien and Cass county school boards had asked the Gobles board to join, but board members said it would be too far to travel to that organization's meetings.

It was announced that 26 students in the high school had formed a ski club that meets each Thursday for skiing at Timber Ridge, a nearby ski area.

Board members said no settlement has been reached yet in contract negotiations with the Gobles teachers' association.

The next meeting was scheduled for Jan. 10. The board cancelled the Dec. 27 meeting.

SUED FOR DIVORCE LOS ANGELES (AP) — Actor-comedian Freddie Prinze, star of the NBC television series "Chico and the Man," has been sued for divorce by his wife of 15 months.

Lakeshore Plans New Math Class

The Lakeshore school board last night approved a new high school practical mathematics course as "a possible curriculum change in the near future."

The course, planned for juniors and seniors, is tentatively named math 2001. It is designed to give applied math instruction beyond sophomore geometry to students who do not plan to become college math majors. Math 2001 would replace the present second-year trigonometry and statistics course, according to math instructor Thomas Porter.

Porter said the course will "help the students use the math they already know to solve real-life problems." Instruction in the use of hand calculators will be included in the course.

William Galbreath, assistant superintendent, reported to the board that the fall sports budget showed a profit of $1,328. Total expenses for fall sports were $15,326 and total revenues were $16,344.

Profits were shown by girls basketball, which cleared $175, and football, which cleared $3,351. Deficits were recorded by athletic administration, golf, softball, cross country, track and wrestling, Galbreath said.

Registration for second semester adult education classes will begin Dec. 27, the board was told by Dorothy Hildebrand, coordinator of adult education. Classes will be from Jan. 17 to May 19.

AIRMAN DIES

Royalton Approves Many Appointments

Royalton township board last night approved appointments to posts on township commissions and boards. Appointed to two-year terms on the board of review were Edward Klug, Robert McCoy and Michael Callendar. The board will meet in March but meeting dates have not been set yet, according to Otto Jasper, township clerk. Callendar was also appointed to a one-year term on the zoning appeals board. Re-appointed to three-year terms on the planning commission were Otto Douthick, George Stover and Warren Kurtz. In another area, the board voted to contract with Ann's Secretary and Bookkeeping Service, 1477 Marquette Woods road, St. Joseph, to do part-time secretarial and bookkeeping work for $4 an hour.

Two New Buses Due For Decatur

DECATUR — The Decatur school board last night approved the purchase of two new school buses for spring delivery. A low bid of $6,877 for each bus body from Neil's, of Kalamazoo, was accepted. Sorett Chevrolet, Decatur, was awarded the contract for bus chassis with its bid of $9,975 each.

Also last night, Supt. Wayne Hellenka announced that the district's Christmas vacation will run from Dec. 17 to Jan. 3. The board also asked Hellenka to appeal an intermediate school district ruling denying the transfer of the H.A. Davis property from the Marcellus school district to the Decatur school district. Davis earlier told the board that his children now attend Decatur schools on a tuition basis because his Decatur township property is in the Marcellus district. Hellenka said he will make an appeal to the state board of education.

Second Man Dies Of Sniffing Fumes

From ASSOCIATED PRESS

A second inmate of the Michigan Training Center in Ionia has died and three others are hospitalized and in serious condition after sniffing fumes from a football helmet refinisher.

Authorities said William Keech, 19, of Monroe, died Monday at the Oakland Medical Center in Pontiac. Scott Lee Austin, 21, of Portage, died Saturday.

Austin was the son of Marvin Austin, owner and operator of the Southern Inn restaurant in Hartford, and Mrs. Shirley Carroll of Portage.

Dan Bolden, an administrative assistant at the Michigan Training Unit, said Monday the two dead prisoners went totally blind before they died. He said all five men suffered extensive liver, kidney and respiratory system damage.

Prison officials said the refinisher was stolen from an equipment cage in a recreation area at the prison.

Bolden said a prison disciplinary board had convicted Austin last March of sniffing lighter fluid fumes.

A third inmate was hospitalized at Pontiac in "very poor condition" while two were being treated here at the Michigan Reformatory Hospital in serious condition with liver damage.

Bolden said the sniffing incident occurred Dec. 1 after an inmate broke into a locked recreational area and stole some helmet thinner, which Bolden said was used to refinish football helmets.

Authorities at the prison knew nothing of the sniffing episode until the day after it occurred, Bolden reported.

"We found three (inmates) the next morning, one a day later, and one several days after that. They weren't hard to spot. They started to turn completely yellow."

NEWS OF MARKETS

Stocks Mixed At Opening

NEW YORK (AP) — Stock prices were mixed today in the early going.

Shortly after the opening of the session, the Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks was fractionally lower.

And advancing issues held a narrow lead over declines on the New York Stock Exchange.

Brokers said the market was feeling the pressure of profit-taking after last week's 22-point advance.

Wall Street also is awaiting word on the terms of the oil price hike expected to come out of this week's meeting of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries.

Early prices included Champion International, up $\frac{1}{8}$ to 26 $\frac{1}{8}$; Coca Cola, up $\frac{1}{8}$ to 76; and Wyle Corp., up $\frac{1}{8}$ to 11 $\frac{1}{2}$.

On Monday, the Dow Jones average gained 1.08 to 974.24 after an early advance succumbed to profit-taking.

At the close, advancing issues led declines by an 8 to 6 margin on the New York Stock Exchange.

Turnover reached 21.83 million shares, down from 25.96 million shares on Friday.

The American Stock Exchange market value index was up .16 to 103.36.

Warrant Lists Name In Error

The real name of a woman arraigned in Berrien District court Friday is Cheryl "Chris" Cummings, not Charlotte Cummings as it was listed on the arrest warrant and reported in The Herald-Palladium Saturday.

The prosecutor's office and the court first believed the woman's name was Charlotte, but a check by Chief Asst. Prosecutor Jeffrey Long determined the defendant's name is Cheryl, according to the prosecutor's office.

Charlotte Cummings, who identified herself as Cheryl's sister, brought the error to the attention of this newspaper.

Complaint, Chat Ends Board Says

HARTFORD — The Hartford school board said last night it has cleared up the complaint of a Hartford woman who had criticized the board for planning a pre-school program that would be in competition with a private school she operates.

A committee of school board members attributed the misunderstanding to a "lack of communication."

The committee members said complaints from Mrs. Betty Huddleston had been resolved after she was informed that the school district's proposed pre-school program for next year would only accept 24 students determined through a screening process to be low achievers.

How To Compute Taxes On Stocks

By SAM SHULSKY

Q. On the purchase and sale of common stock, the broker sends confirmation slips listing the gross and net price of the stock. Which figures do you use in figuring your loss or gain for income tax purposes?

A. In both cases you use the net amount given on the confirmation slip.

Examples: You bought 100 shares of a stock selling for 21 $\frac{1}{2}$, or a market cost of \$2,187.50. But your real cost for tax accounting purposes is that \$2,187.50 figure plus the buying commission — in this instance — of \$48.04, or a total cost for tax purposes of \$2,235.54.

You later sell the stock at a price of 24 $\frac{1}{2}$. Your gain, for tax purposes, is NOT the difference between 21 $\frac{1}{2}$ and 24 $\frac{1}{2}$, but the difference between the total cost of \$2,235.54 and the selling price of \$2,462.50. MINUS selling commissions of \$62.28, minus (in this instance) a state tax of \$6.25 and minus a securities fee of 9 cents. Your net receipts, then, are reduced to \$2,403.88. And the taxable gain on the transaction is the difference between \$2,235.54 and \$2,403.88, or \$167.84.

In other words, your taxable gain is not $275, but that amount reduced by buying and selling costs. Losses are figured the same way — the net buying costs and the net selling costs. In short, on a "lucky" deal, your profit is reduced by subtracting commissions and other fees from the gross market gain. In the case of a sale at a loss, your commissions and fees are added to the gross loss.

DATES TO KEEP IN MIND: Sales of securities to establish losses for 1976 may be made until the closing of the stock market on Friday, Dec. 31. If you want to establish a gain for 1976 taxes, "regular" sales must be made on or before Dec. 23. Sales to establish 1976 gains may be made after that date but with special delivery requirements — which may tend to reduce the price you get.

Q. You frequently refer to stocks as an inflation hedge. But often a declining market is explained as the result of increased inflation.

A. Moderation in all things — including inflation — is always desirable. We have, over the last decades, come to live with some inflation. But when it reaches double digit proportions (or looks as though it might) there is always the fear that the economy won't be able to handle it in normal fashion and that the disruption will be too much for even prosperous corporations.

Q. I own a house outright worth about $55,000 and receive a monthly rental of $150. My operating expenses run around $2,200. We are in our middle 60s. Should we sell and move into an apartment?

A. I assume that this $150 comes from a tenant in a two-family house. And I must also assume that your apartments are worth the same rental.

If these assumptions are true, I think you are subsidizing your tenant, that you are not getting enough income from his apartment.

Your total costs, figuring 6 per cent on your own money, come to about $5,500 a year. Your tenant is contributing only $1,800 of that which means you are putting up the remaining $3,700, or better than $300 a month. So the total result is that you own the house but are paying twice as much as your tenant. (Please keep in mind the assumptions I made about the rental value of the two apartments.)

Jobs, Not Tax Cuts, Said Best

EAST LANSING, Mich. (AP) —

Using tax cuts to create jobs will cost the government about six times as much per job as an expanded public employment program, says the chairman of the National Council on Employment Policy.

Charles Killingsworth, a professor at Michigan State University, presented the council's employment plan at a news conference here Tuesday.

He said if adopted, the plan would "bring us within striking distance of President-elect Carter's goal" of reducing the unemployment rate by 1.3 per cent in 1977.

The plan calls for expanding the present public employment program to provide at least one million jobs at an initial cost of about $5 billion a year. That would be 650,000 more jobs than the present level.

"This single action would reduce the national unemployment rate to seven per cent or less within six months," Killingsworth stated.

The council, a nonprofit organization of academic experts funded by the U.S. Department of Labor and the Ford Foundation, also recommended that $2 billion be added to the public works program, which would initially create another 112,000 to 140,000 new jobs within 12 months, he said.

"The indirect effects of this expenditure would create an approximately equal number of jobs, for a total of roughly 250,000 jobs," Killingsworth said.

The council in addition recommended expanding manpower training funds by at least $1 billion with part of the sum going to on-the-job training in private firms. And Killingsworth added that a small tax cut might be considered in addition to the spending increases.

Killingsworth said using tax cuts to stimulate jobs is expensive and the benefits are not likely to go to the geographical region and the labor force groups most affected by unemployment.

"The initial benefits of tax cuts obviously go only to those who pay federal income taxes — and this is mainly those who already have jobs," he said. He added that Congress is not likely to enact a tax cut quickly.

Rollback Unlikely, Paw Paw Is Told

PAW PAW — Village Atty. Warren Sundstrand told the village council last night it is unlikely the Federal Power commission would act to roll back a recent hike of the rate Paw Paw is charged for electric power.

On Oct. 13, Michigan Power Co. raised the rate it charges the village for electricity by 87 per cent. The village in turn was forced to raise rates to its customers by 50 per cent.

Sundstrand said a Washington, D.C. attorney retained by a number of municipalities to fight the increase before the power commission, said the commission is reviewing the hike this week, but that it was very unlikely a cut of the

British Get Soft Terms

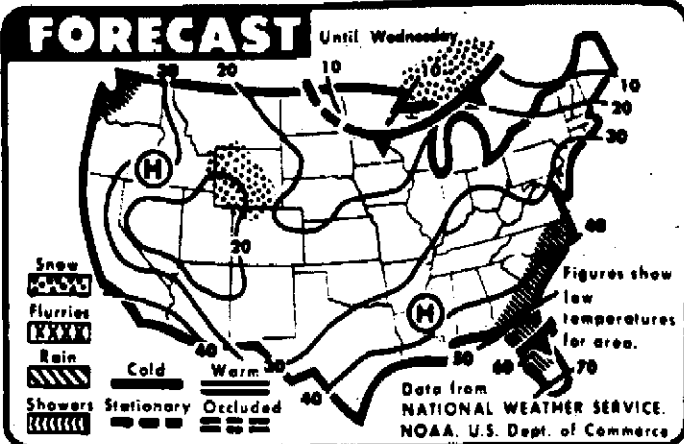

WASHINGTON (AP) — Managers of the International Monetary Fund (IMF) have agreed to softened terms for a $3.9-billion loan to prop up the wobbly British economy.

One of the still-secret provisions of the IMF loan requires the British to cut back government spending and state-sponsored borrowing abroad. In other words, the British will be expected to try harder to balance their books even at the cost of lowered living standards and higher output.

Sources here said IMF and British negotiators agreed that government spending should be cut by roughly 1.5 billion pounds, or $2.4 billion.

Watervliet OKs Choir Uniforms

WATERVLIET — The Watervliet school board last night voted to provide $1,500 toward the purchase of new choir uniforms.

Supt. Sam Gravitt said choir director Brad Moffat had asked for $2,100 to replace all 70 uniforms. Gravitt said Moffat could replace about 50 uniforms now or wait until more funds are available next year and replace all 70 at once.

In other areas, the board gave preliminary approval to a revised school policy that would prohibit any teacher, department or school building from accepting gifts or grants in excess of $50 without prior approval from the school board.

The revised policy will go into effect if it is approved at the next board meeting on second reading.

The board voted to allow Gravitt to attend a three-day Michigan Association of School Administrators conference in Grand Rapids Jan. 18-20. Gravitt estimated expenses paid for by the district would amount to about $80.

New Post Created By Fennville Board

FENNVILLE — The Fennville school board last night approved creation of one new job and the combination of two others. Jerry Howard, currently an elementary school principal at Lawton, was named to the new post of assistant middle school principal effective Jan. 3. Howard formerly was a teacher in the Fennville system.

The posts of migrant program director and community education director were combined under one job. John Lancaster, currently community education director, will be the new director. Those two posts were combined after Harold Turner, migrant program director since 1969, recently resigned.

Also combined were the posts of transportation supervisor and athletic director. John Pfister, now the athletic director, will hold the new job. Dan Loyd, transportation supervisor, recently resigned due to ill health. Eleanor Szabiec, business manager, said no salaries were set for either the new post or the combined positions, but will be set and announced later.

Watervliet Twp. OKs Dual Board

WATERVLIET — The Watervliet township board last night voted unanimously to adopt an agreement creating a combined fire and ambulance board.

The measure now goes to the Watervliet city commission which is expected to give its approval at a special meeting Dec. 28.

The joint board would consist of three representatives from the city and three from the township and would replace the six-member ambulance and fire boards.

The city and township got into the ambulance service after a local funeral home discontinued the service in 1974.

In other business, the township board voted to begin construction soon on a 20 by 20-foot addition to the township hall.

NEWS OF MARKETS

Stocks Mixed At Opening

NEW YORK (AP) — Stock prices were mixed today in the early going.

Shortly after the opening of the session, the Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks was fractionally lower.

And advancing issues held a narrow lead over declines on the New York Stock Exchange.

Brokers said the market was feeling the pressure of profit-taking after last week's 22-point advance.

Wall Street also is awaiting word on the terms of the oil price hike expected to come out of this week's meeting of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries.

Early prices included Champion International, up 1/8 to 26 3/4; Coca Cola, up 1/8 to 76; and Wyly Corp., up 1/8 to 11 1/2.

On Monday, the Dow Jones average gained 1.09 to 974.24 after an early advance succumbed to profit-taking.

At the close, advancing issues led declines by an 8 to 6 margin on the New York Stock Exchange.

Turnover reached 24.83 million shares, down from 25.96 million shares on Friday.

The American Stock Exchange market value index was up .16 to 103.36.

Warrant Lists Name In Error

The real name of a woman arraigned in Berrien District court Friday is Cheryl "Chris" Cummings, not Charlotte Cummings as it was listed on the arrest warrant and reported in The Herald-Palladium Saturday.

The prosecutor's office and the court first believed the woman's name was Charlotte, but a check by Chief Asst. Prosecutor Jeffrey Long determined the defendant's name is Cheryl, according to the prosecutor's office.

Charlotte Cummings, who identified herself as Cheryl's sister, brought the error to the attention of this newspaper.

Cheryl Cummings, 28, of 722 East Vineyard, Benton Harbor, was arrested and demanded examination Friday on a charge of assault with intent to do great bodily harm less than murder, against Willie Brown in Benton Harbor.

Complaint, Chat Ends Board Says

HANTFORD — The Hartford school board said last night it has cleared up the complaint of a Hartford woman who had criticized the board for planning a pre-school program that would be in competition with a private school she operates.

A committee of school board members attributed the misunderstanding to a "lack of communication."

The committee members said complaints from Mrs. Betty Huddleston had been resolved after she was informed that the school district's proposed pre-school program for next year would only accept 24 students determined through a screening process to be low achievers.

How To Compute Taxes On Stocks

By SAM SHULSKY
Q. On the purchase and sale of common stock, the broker sends confirmation slips listing the gross and net price of the stock. Which figures do you use in figuring your loss or gain for income tax purposes?

A. In both cases you use the net amount given on the confirmation slip.

Examples: You bought 100 shares of a stock selling for 21 1/2, or a market cost of $2,187.50. But your real cost for tax accounting purposes is that $2,187.50 figure plus the buying commission — in this instance — of $48.04, or a total cost for tax purposes of $2,235.54.

You later sell the stock at a price of 24 1/2. Your gain, for tax purposes, is NOT the difference between 21 1/2 and 24 1/2, but the difference between the total cost of $2,235.54 and the selling market price of $2,462.50. MINUS selling commissions of $52.28, minus (in this instance) a state tax of $6.25 and minus a securities fee of 9 cents. Your net receipts, then, are reduced to $2,403.88. And the taxable gain on the transaction is the difference between $2,235.54 and $2,403.88, or $167.84.

In other words, your taxable gain is not $275, but that amount reduced by buying and selling costs. Losses are figured the same way — the net buying costs and the net selling costs. In short, on a "lucky" deal, your profit is reduced by subtracting commissions and other fees from the gross market gain. In the case of a sale at a loss, your commissions and fees are added to the gross loss.

DATES TO KEEP IN MIND: Sales of securities to establish losses for 1976 may be made until the closing of the stock market on Friday, Dec. 31. If you want to establish a gain for 1976 taxes, "regular" sales must be made on or before Dec. 23. Sales to establish 1976 gains may be made after that date but with special delivery requirements — which may tend to reduce the price you get.

Q. You frequently refer to stocks as an inflation hedge. But often a declining market is explained as the result of increased inflation.

A. Moderation in all things — including inflation — is always desirable. We have, over the last decades, come to live with some inflation. But when it reaches double digit proportions (or looks as though it might) there is always the fear that the economy won't be able to handle it in normal fashion and that the disruption will be too much for even prosperous corporations.

Jobs, Not Tax Cuts, Said Best

EAST LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Using tax cuts to create jobs will cost the government about six times as much per job as an expanded public employment program, says the chairman of the National Council on Employment Policy.

Charles Killingsworth, a professor at Michigan State University, presented the council's employment plan at a news conference here Tuesday.

He said if adopted, the plan would "bring us within striking distance of President-elect Carter's goal" of reducing the unemployment rate by 1.5 per cent in 1977.

The plan calls for expanding the present public employment program to provide at least one million jobs at an initial cost of about $5 billion a year. That would be 650,000 more jobs than the present level.

"This single action would reduce the national unemployment rate to seven per cent or less within six months," Killingsworth stated.

The council, a nonprofit organization of academic experts funded by the U.S. Department of Labor and the Ford Foundation, also recommended that $2 billion be added to the public works program, which would initially create another 112,000 to 140,000 new jobs within 12 months, he said.

"The indirect effects of this expenditure would create an approximately equal number of jobs, for a total of roughly 250,000 jobs," Killingsworth said.

The council in addition recommended expanding manpower training funds by at least $1 billion with part of the sum going to on-the-job training in private firms. And Killingsworth added that a small tax cut might be considered in addition to the spending increases.

Killingsworth said using tax cuts to stimulate jobs is expensive and the benefits are not likely to go to the geographical region and the labor force groups most affected by unemployment.

"The initial benefits of tax cuts obviously go only to those who pay federal in come taxes — and this is mainly those who already have jobs," he said. He added that Congress is not likely to enact a tax cut quickly.

Rollback Unlikely, Paw Paw Is Told

PAW PAW — Village Atty. Warren Sundstrand told the village council last night it is unlikely the Federal Power commission would act to roll back a recent hike of the rate Paw Paw is charged for electric power.

On Oct. 13, Michigan Power Co. raised the rate it charges the village for electricity by 87 per cent. The village in turn was forced to raise rates to its customers by 50 per cent.

Sundstrand said a Washington, D.C. attorney retained by a number of municipalities to fight the increase before the power commission, said the commission is reviewing the hike this week, but that it was very unlikely a cut of the

WASHINGTON (AP) — Managers of the International Monetary Fund (IMF) have agreed to softened terms for a $3.9-billion loan to prop up the wobbly British economy.

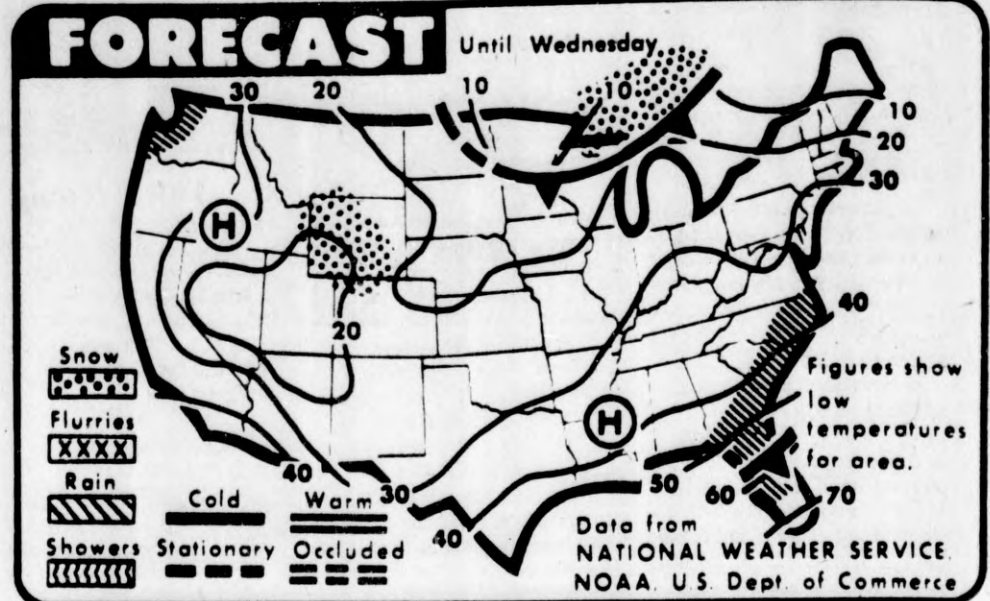

One of the still-secret provisions of the IMF loan requires the British to cut back government spending and state-sponsored borrowing abroad. In other words, the British will be expected to try harder to balance their books even at the cost of lowered living standards and higher output.

Sources here said IMF and British negotiators agreed that government spending should be cut by roughly 1.5 billion pounds, or $2.4 billion.

That's about half of the IMF's original proposal for a cut in what is called "public sector borrowing."

Watervliet OKs Choir Uniforms

WATERVLIIET — The Watervliet school board last night voted to provide $1,500 toward the purchase of new choir uniforms.

Supt. Sam Gravitt said choir director Brad Moffat had asked for $2,100 to replace all 70 uniforms. Gravitt said Moffat could replace about 50 uniforms now or wait until more funds are available next year and replace all 70 at once.

In other areas, the board gave preliminary approval to a revised school policy that would prohibit any teacher, department or school building from accepting gifts or grants in excess of $50 without prior approval from the school board.

The revised policy will go into effect if it is approved at the next board meeting on second reading.

The board voted to allow Gravitt to attend a three-day Michigan Association of School Administrators conference in Grand Rapids Jan. 18-20. Gravitt estimated expenses paid for by the district would amount to about $80.

New Post Created By Fennville Board

FENNVILLE — The Fennville school board last night approved creation of one new job and the combination of two others. Jerry Howard, currently an elementary school principal at Lawton, was named to the new post of assistant middle school principal effective Jan. 3. Howard formerly was a teacher in the Fennville system.

The posts of migrant program director and community education director were combined under one job. John Lancaster, currently community education director, will be the new director. Those two posts were combined after Harold Turner, migrant program director since 1969, recently resigned.

Also combined were the posts of transportation supervisor and athletic director. John Pfister, now the athletic director, will hold the new job. Dan Loyd, transportation supervisor, recently resigned due to ill health. Eleanor Szkipiec, business manager, said no salaries were set for either the new post or the combined positions, but will be set and announced later.

Watervliet Twp. OKs Dual Board

WATERVLIIET — The Watervliet township board last night voted unanimously to adopt an agreement creating a combined fire and ambulance board.

The measure now goes to the Watervliet city commission which is expected to give its approval at a special meeting Dec. 28.

The joint board would consist of three representatives from the city and three from the township and would replace the six-member ambulance and fire boards.

The city and township got into the ambulance service after a local funeral home discontinued the service in 1974.

In other business, the township board voted to begin construction soon on a 20 by 20-foot addition to the township hall.

The cost will come to about $5,000 and some of the work will be done by Supervisor William Gaines, township officials said.

Gaines said he will not draw extra pay for work he does on the addition. Besides being supervisor, Gaines is also

SANTA SETTLES HEALTH DISPUTE WITH ELVES

We have it on good authority that the head of Santa's elf brigade had planned to protest this year. It seems that with all the extra toy making effort that goes into the pre-Christmas rush, many of the elves have become run down, anemic and very susceptible to those north pole coughs and colds.

But Santa, acting wisely, has arranged for a good stock of multiple vitamin products to be brought in and is insisting that all the elves take these vitamins on a regular basis. Looks like everything will be right on schedule again this year.

Crime Partners Receive Differing Sentences

Two co-defendants were sentenced Monday by Berrien Circuit Judge Chester J. Byrns for entering a Millburg farm supply store. One with a "clean" record was placed on probation while the other with prior criminal convictions was sentenced to prison.

Sentenced for entering Gelder's farm supply without permission Sept. 2 were Anthony W. Coleman, 17, of 5108 Union road, Eau Claire, and Gary L. Warren, 21, of 351 Millburg drive, Millburg.

Warren was sentenced to 2 to 3 years in prison, while Coleman was placed on two years probation, assessed $200 fine and costs, and ordered to make restitution of some $320 to Gelder's. No restitution was ordered for Warren.

Byrns told Warren his sentence was different from Coleman's because Warren had a juvenile record, had served a prior prison term for breaking and entering, and at the time of the offense was on probation from district court for another crime against property. Judge Julian E. Hughes imposed a 6 to 25-year prison term on Michael G. Henderson, 23, of 2015 Hatch street, Benton township, for armed robbery. Henderson on May 8 robbed Earl Sill of cash with a gun at 429 North Blue Creek road, Benton township.

Perry Lee Smith, 35, of 169 North Winans street, Benton Harbor, was sentenced to 18 months to 3 years in prison by Judge William S. White for attempted arson April 21 at a home at 1306 Bishop street, Benton Harbor.

Timothy L. Baggett, 17, of Gallien, was handed a 16 to 24-month prison sentence by White for attempted larceny in a building — the attempted theft of cash Oct. 20 from the residence of Max Nitz in Baroda township.

In other sentences by White: Jerry L. Moss, 20, of 601 Territorial road, Benton Harbor, was placed on two years probation and assessed $300 fine and costs for carrying a concealed weapon — a handgun — Sept. 9 in Benton township.

Begina Crockett, 25, and Ruth Adair, 34, both of Chicago, both were placed on two years probation, assessed $500 fine and costs, and ordered to spend the last six months of probation in jail for attempted larceny in a building. They were accused of attempting to steal clothing from Rohring's clothing store at Fairplain Plaza on March 31. While noted the jail terms could be waived if the women do a good job on probation.

Charles H. Bowman, 22, of 108 Quince, Benton Harbor, was ordered to spend the first four months of a two-year probation in jail, and assessed $250 fine and costs, for attempting to carry a concealed weapon, a revolver, Oct. 1 in Benton township.

Judge Hughes sentenced Robert R. Dickey, 17, of 5887 George street, Stevensville, to two years probation and as-essed $250 fine and costs for attempted larceny in a building — the attempted theft of food and a coffee pot from a concession stand at Dickinson stadium in St. Joseph on Oct. 21.

In other sentences by Judge Byrns:

Dennis M. Hopkins, 38, of Houston, Texas, was placed on two years probation and ordered to pay $250 fine and costs for fourth degree criminal sexual conduct — taking indecent liberties with a four-year-old boy Aug. 6 in Lincoln township.

Anthony L. Hardy, 21, of 4272 Arrow Wood drive, rural Benton Harbor, was sentenced to two years probation and assessed $300 fine and costs for conspiracy to receive and conceal stolen property — a stereo amplifier — valued at less than $100 July 9, 1975, in Benton township.

Jerry Partee, 40, of 1094 Pavane street, Benton Harbor, pleaded innocent to a charge of assault with a deadly weapon — a knife — against George Barnes Nov. 13 in Benton Harbor.

Assault and battery — Gerald G. Baker, 26, of 3746 McGulgan, Sodus township, $45 or 10 days in jail; Marden Curtis, 54, of 1841 Union street, Benton township, 10 days in jail and $105; and Clark Jones, 23, of 250 Pine street, Benton township, $55 or 10 days in jail.

Use of marijuana — Chester A. Shirley, 17, of Keeler, $50 or 10 days in jail; Frederick A. Baysinger, 17, of 333 Pleasant street, Watervliet, $50 or 10 days in jail; Thomas L. Mutart, 23, of 218 East Shawnee road, Baroda, $50 or 10 days in jail; Bradley W. Dejarlais, 21, of Lansing, $50; James M. Solis, 17, of Muskegon, $50 or 10 days in jail; and Don R. Battice, 18, of Muskegon, $50 or 10 days in jail.

Court Rulings Seem To Differ

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — A Court of Appeals panel has issued apparently contradictory opinions on whether a school board must state publicly its reasons for taking certain actions against teachers.

"Something like this will just have to be resolved by the Supreme Court if the parties appeal," a spokesman for the court said Monday.

In two separate rulings, the three-judge panel said: —A school board must state publicly its specific reasons for terminating the employment of a probationary teacher. That ruling reversed the firing of a Marcellus teacher.

—There is no requirement that the reasons for extending a teacher's probationary period be made public or be placed in the minutes of a meeting, though decisions must be made at public meetings. That decision upheld a board action to extend probation for an Adrian teacher.

The court's conclusions were based on the Michigan Teacher Tenure Act.

The first case involved Robert Dryden, employed by the Marcellus Community Schools as a probationary teacher for 1973-74 and 1974-75. The school board discussed Dryden's record in a private session, then met in public and, with no further discussion, voted to fire him as of the end of the school year.

The appeals court reversed his firing. It said a school board is required to state publicly its specific reasons for ending employment of a probationary teacher, and to make its decisions in public.

The second case involved Adrian teacher Craig Anderson. At a public meeting, the school board voted to extend Anderson as a probationary teacher for another semester. If his performance was satisfactory, he was to receive a contract for the following semester to complete his third year of probation.

But no reasons were given at the meeting. Instead, they were sent to Anderson in a letter.

The appeals court affirmed the action, saying there is no requirement that reasons for such an action appear in the minutes of the meeting.

"All the statute requires is that the decisions be made at a public meeting," it said.

"Public discussion of specifics can only serve to place more pressure on the teacher," it said.

Judge George Bashara dissented in the Dryden case, saying it was the same as Anderson's. Judge Michael Cavanagh dissented in the Anderson case, saying it was the same as Dryden's.

Restaurant Damaged

St. Joseph police said a Stevensville driver escaped injury Monday night when his foot apparently slipped from the brake to the accelerator and his car crashed into the side of a restaurant.

The car, driven by Kenneth Eugene Perry, 64, of 5080 St. Joseph avenue, jumped a 10-inch curb and struck the side of Rossy's drive-in, 2829 Cleveland avenue, about 8:25 p.m., police reported.

Damage to the building included a portion of the wall, a broken four by four-foot window and damage to the entrance doorway, according to police.

Police reported the accident occurred in the restaurant parking area and no tickets were issued. No one inside the restaurant was injured, police said.

AREA POLICE ROUNDUP

Woman Tells Officers Con Game Loss Is $184

Benton Harbor police said a woman was tricked out of $184 Monday and left holding the bag that she thought contained $7,000 but which had only two packages of facial tissues inside.

According to police, Mac Clark, 26, of 651 Territorial road, reported that a man "with an African accent" gave her a paper bag supposedly containing $7,000 in cash for safekeeping. She told police she gave him $184 as good faith money.

She said the man approached her about 11:30 a.m. on Pipestone street near Wall street and asked if she would accompany him to Fairplain Plaza to read a sign for him "because he could not read English very well."

She said he flashed a large number of bills he told her amounted to $7,000. She went with him along with another man in their car. She said the two men talked about finding a prostitute, but he did not want to carry the large amount of cash and asked her to hold it for him. She said they let her out of the auto near Fairplain Plaza and had left when she discovered there was no money in the bag.

St. Joseph police said Scott Raschke, 18, of St. Joseph township, was arrested on two charges early today after a three-mile, high-speed chase that included a half-mile stretch of Benton Harbor's Jean Klock park beach then back into St. Joseph.

Patrolman Joseph Garski said the chase began on Upton drive shortly before 3 a.m. and reached speeds up to 90 miles per hour. It ended at the intersection of Pleasant and Main streets, Garski said, when he pulled his patrol car alongside the fleeing auto and forced it to the curb.

Garski said the fleeing auto eluded a roadblock at Main and Broad streets and another at Church and Broad streets.

Raschke, 2818 Sandra terrace, was booked at the Berrien county jail on charges of driving under the influence of intoxicants and fleeing and eluding a police officer.

A wallet containing $1,800 in cash and three checks totaling $1,085 was reported either lost or stolen, St. Joseph township Police said Monday.

Police said Dee Hickmott, 3544 Washington avenue, St. Joseph township, noticed his wallet was missing early Sunday. Police said Hickmott reported he and friends had been to several places during the evening.

St. Joseph Police said St. Joseph high school officials reported the school's administrative area was burglarized over the weekend. The theft was reported Monday morning.

Police said doors that covered a window opening that had been used formerly for the bookstore were forced open. Police believe the break-in occurred while the school building was open for various purposes over the weekend. There were no signs of forced entry to the school building, police said.

Reported stolen was more than $35 in cash from several desks, two portable radios, three stop watches, and a $125 tape recorder and a cassette tape player.

Benton Harbor Patrolman Dale Easton said he arrested a woman Monday after a shot was fired near where he was talking to a man in the 200 block of Garfield avenue.

Booked on a charge of discharging a firearm inside the city was Christine Jackson, 41, of 205 Garfield. Police said she was released after posting $100 bond.

Easton said he had been dispatched to a reported fight at 205 Garfield and had been flagged down by a man who said he was involved, but was leaving. Easton said he heard a shot and saw a woman standing on a nearby porch with a gun in her hand. He said he drew his revolver and ordered her to drop the gun, which she did. No one was injured and no charges were filed in connection with the reported fight.

A Benton Harbor man told city police Monday he chased off a would-be burglar after he was awakened by scratching sounds at his front door about 9 a.m.

Steve Wooden, 28, of 1234 Columbus avenue, said he opened the door and saw a man holding a screwdriver. Wooden said he grabbed a baseball bat, swung it at the man and missed, then threw it at him as he fled.

Wooden said he gave chase and caught the man in the yard, but the man escaped during a struggle. Police said they found pry marks around the door. Wooden was not injured in the incident, police reported.

A thief stole four wrapped gifts from under the Christmas tree at the apartment of Kevin Cox, 1007 1/2 State street, according to a report filed with St. Joseph police.

Cox reported that taken along with the four gifts, valued at $27, were a turquoise ring and bracelet, St. Joseph high school class ring of 1975, and costume jewelry, all valued at about $150.

Benton township police said between $1,300 and $1,400 in hand and power tools were reported stolen from the garage at the James Christopher residence, 1183 Paw Paw avenue.

In Benton Harbor, city police said Ella R. Greenwood, 651 Territorial road, reported her home was ransacked, but what, if anything was taken, had not yet been determined. Police said a rear door was forced open.

Also reported to Benton Harbor police was the theft of a $50 television from the car of Emma Hill, 275 High street, parked at the rear of 359 High.

Three reports of vandalism were filed Monday with Berrien sheriff's deputies and Benton township police.

Deputies said a window was broken at the Daniel Abbott residence, 1800 South Park road, Bainbridge township, and a window at the Mary Lenhardt residence, 2128 South Park road, had a hole in it. Both incidents reportedly occurred about 4:30 p.m. Sunday and the damage was believed to have been caused by pellets from a BB gun, deputies said.

Township police said Gene Brant, 1326 Stewart, reported he found two arrows that had apparently been shot into the aluminum siding of his home. No estimate of damage was reported.

District Judges Faced By 29

Six people demanded examinations, 23 were sentenced, and a charge of arson against a man was dismissed in Berrien Fifth District court.

Asst. Prosecutor Scott Beatty said a charge of arson of a house was dismissed against William E. Prentice, 42, of 7506 Red Arrow highway, Lincoln township, because of lack of evidence. Beatty said Prentice's wife, who was to be one of the main witnesses, was not allowed to testify because of a ruling that a wife can't testify against her husband.

Demanding examinations were:

Fred Mathis, 52, of 1141 McAllister avenue, Benton Harbor, on a charge of assault with a dangerous weapon, a pistol, Dec. 11 against Anna Mathis. Bond was set at $5,000.

Clarence Bryant, 32, of Route 1, Box 181, Covert, on a charge of unlawful driving away a motor vehicle Oct. 27 in Watervliet. Bail was put at $1,500.

Robert E. Stewart, 24, of Gallien, on a charge of malicious destruction to property over $100, an auto, Dec. 4 in St. Joseph township. Bond was set at $1,500. He also pleaded innocent to a charge of malicious destruction to property under $100, a building in St. Joseph township Dec. 4. Bail on the second charge was set at $500.

Larry D. Porter, 25, of 1090 Highland avenue, Benton Harbor, on a charge of breaking and entering a house at 621 East Main street, Benton Harbor Dec. 11. Bond was set at $5,000.

Donald A. Crowder, 17, of 710 South Fair avenue, Benton Harbor, on a charge of breaking and entering a house at 1048 East Empire avenue, Benton township, Dec. 12. Bond was set at $5,000. Crime Partners Receive Differing Sentences

Two co-defendants were sentenced Monday by Berrien Circuit Judge Chester J. Byrns for entering a Millburg farm supply store. One with a "clean" record was placed on probation while the other with prior criminal convictions was sentenced to prison.

Sentenced for entering Gelder's farm supply without permission Sept. 2 were Anthony W. Coleman, 17, of 5108 Union road, Eau Claire, and Gary L. Warren, 21, of 351 Millburg drive, Millburg.

Warren was sentenced to 2 to 5 years in prison, while Coleman was placed on two years probation, assessed $200 fine and costs, and ordered to make restitution of some $320 to Gelder's. No restitution was ordered for Warren.

Byrns told Warren his sentence was different from Coleman's because Warren had a juvenile record, had served a prior prison term for breaking and entering, and at the time of the offense was on probation from district court for another crime against property. Judge Julian E. Hughes imposed a 6 to 25-year prison term on Michael G. Henderson, 23, of 2015 Hatch street, Benton township, for armed robbery. Henderson on May 8 robbed Earl Sill of cash with a gun at 429 North Blue Creek road, Benton township.

Perry Lee Smith, 35, of 169 North Winans street, Benton Harbor, was sentenced to 18 months to 5 years in prison by Judge William S. White for attempted arson April 21 at a home at 1306 Bishop street, Benton Harbor.

Timothy L. Baggett, 17, of Galien, was handed a 16 to 24-month prison sentence by White for attempted larceny in a building — the attempted theft of cash Oct. 20 from the residence of Max Nitz in Baroda township.

In other sentences by White: Jerry L. Moss, 20, of 601 Territorial road, Benton Harbor, was placed on two years probation and assessed $300 fine and costs for carrying a concealed weapon — a handgun — Sept. 9 in Benton township.

Regina Crockett, 25, and Ruth Adair, 34, both of Chicago, both were placed on two years probation, assessed $500 fine and costs, and ordered to spend the last six months of probation in jail for attempted larceny in a building. They were accused of attempting to steal clothing from Rohring's clothing store at Fairplain Plaza on March 31. White noted the jail terms could be waived if the women do a good job on probation.

Charles H. Bowman, 22, of 108 Quince, Benton Harbor, was ordered to spend the first four months of a two-year probation in jail, and assessed $250 fine and costs, for attempting to carry a concealed weapon, a revolver, Oct. 1 in Benton township.

Judge Hughes sentenced Robert R. Dickey, 17, of 3887 George street, Stevensville, to two years probation and as-essed $250 fine and costs for attempted larceny in a building — the attempted theft of food and a coffee pot from a concession stand at Dickinson stadium in St. Joseph on Oct. 21.

In other sentences by Judge Byrns: Dennis M. Hopkins, 38, of Houston, Texas, was placed on two years probation and ordered to pay $250 fine and costs for fourth degree criminal sexual conduct — taking indecent liberties with a four-year-old boy Aug. 6 in Lincoln township.

Anthony L. Hardy, 21, of 4272 Arrow Wood drive, rural Benton Harbor, was sentenced to two years probation and assessed $200 fine and costs for conspiracy to receive and conceal stolen property — a stereo amplifier — valued at less than $100 July 9, 1975, in Benton township.

Ronald D. Underwood, 18, of Kalamazoo, pleaded guilty to unlawful use of a motor vehicle — a pickup truck owned by Allen Durrin — Nov. 7 in Benton township.

George M. Dunn, 21, of 808 Weld street, Benton Harbor, pleaded innocent to a charge of first degree criminal sexual conduct (formerly sodomy) with another inmate at the Berrien county jail on Nov. 5.

James Johnson, 17, of Lawrence drive, Benton township, pleaded innocent to a charge of assault with intent to rob while armed stemming from an alleged assault with a gun on Inez Lee Nov. 1 in Benton Harbor.

Jerry Partee, 40, of 1064 Pavone street, Benton Harbor, pleaded innocent to a charge of assault with a deadly weapon — a knife — against George Barnes Nov. 13 in Benton Harbor.

Assault and battery — Gerald G. Baker, 26, of 3746 McGuigan, Sodus township, $45 or 10 days in jail; Marden Curtis, 56, of 1841 Union street, Benton township, 10 days in jail and $105; and Clark Jones, 23, of 250 Pine street, Benton township, $55 or 10 days in jail.

Use of marijuana — Chester A. Shirley, 17, of Keeler, $50 or 10 days in jail; Frederick A. Baysinger, 17, of 333 Pleasant street, Watervliet, $50 or 10 days in jail; Thomas L. Mutart, 23, of 219 East Shawnee road, Baroda, $50 or 10 days in jail; Bradley W. Dejarlais, 21, of Lansing, $50; James M. Solis, 17, of Muskegon, $50 or 10 days in jail; and Don R. Battice, 18, of Muskegon, $50 or 10 days in jail.

District Judges Faced By 29

Six people demanded examinations, 23 were sentenced, and a charge of arson against a man was dismissed in Berrien District Court.

Asst. Prosecutor Scott Beatty said a charge of arson of a house was dismissed against William E. Prentice, 42, of 7566 Red Arrow highway, Lincoln township, because of lack of evidence. Beatty said Prentice's wife, who was to be one of the main witnesses, was not allowed to testify because of a ruling that a wife can't testify against her husband.

Demanding examinations were:

Fred Mathis, 52, of 1141 McAllister avenue, Benton Harbor, on a charge of assault with a dangerous weapon, a pistol, Dec. 11 against Anna Mathis. Bond was set at $5,000.

He also pleaded innocent to a charge of malicious destruction to property under $100, a building in St. Joseph township Dec. 4. Bail on the second charge was set at $500.

Larry D. Porter, 25, of 1090 Highland avenue, Benton Harbor, on a charge of breaking and entering a house at 621 East Main street, Benton Harbor Dec. 11. Bond was set at $5,000.

Court Rulings Seem To Differ

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — A COURT of Appeals panel has issued apparently contradictory opinions on whether a school board must state publicly its reasons public for taking certain actions against teachers.

"Something like this will just have to be resolved by the Supreme Court if the parties appeal," a spokesman for the court said Monday.

In two separate rulings, the three-judge panel said:

—A school board must state publicly its specific reasons for terminating the employment of a probationary teacher. That ruling reversed the firing of a Marcellus teacher.

—There is no requirement that the reasons for extending a teacher's probationary period be made public or be placed in the minutes of a meeting, though decisions must be made at public meetings. That decision upheld a board action to extend probation for an Adrian teacher.

The court's conclusions were based on the Michigan Teacher Tenure Act.

The first case involved Robert Dryden, employed by the Marcellus Community Schools as a probationary teacher for 1973-74 and 1974-75. The school board discussed Dryden's record in a private session, then met in public and, with no further discussion, voted to fire him as of the end of the school year.

The appeals court reversed his firing. It said a school board is required to state publicly its specific reasons for ending employment of a probationary teacher, and to make its decisions in public.

The second case involved Adrian teacher Craig Anderson. At a public meeting, the school board voted to extend Anderson as a probationary teacher for another semester. If his performance was satisfactory, he was to receive a contract for the following semester to complete his third year of probation.

But no reasons were given at the meeting. Instead, they were sent to Anderson in a letter.

The appeals court affirmed the action, saying there is no requirement that reasons for such an action appear in the minutes of the meeting.

"All the statute requires is that the decisions be made at a public meeting," it said.

"Public discussion of specifics can only serve to place more pressure on the teacher," it said.

Judge George Bashara dissented in the Dryden case, saying it was the same as Anderson's. Judge Michael Cavanagh dissented in the Anderson case, saying it was the same as Dryden's.

AREA POLICE ROUNDUP

Woman Tells Officers Con Game Loss Is $184

Benton Harbor police said a woman was tricked out of $184 Monday and left holding the bag that she thought contained $7,000 but which had only two packages of facial tissues inside.

According to police, Mae Clark, 20, of 651 Territorial road, reported that a man "with an African accent" gave her a paper bag supposedly containing $7,000 in cash for safekeeping. She told police she gave him $184 as good faith money.

She said the man approached her about 11:40 a.m. on Pipestone street near Wall street and asked if she would accompany him to Fairplain Plaza to read a sign for him "because he could not read English very well."

She said he flashed a large number of bills he told her amounted to $7,000. She went with him along with another man in her car. She said the two men talked about finding a prostitute, but he did not want to carry the large amount of cash and asked her to hold it for him. She said they let her out of the auto near Fairplain Plaza and had left when she discovered there was no money in the bag.

St. Joseph police said Scott Raschke, 18, St. Joseph township, was arrested on two charges early today after a three-mile, high-speed chase that included a half-mile stretch of Benton Harbor's Jean Klock park beach then back into St. Joseph.

Patrolman Joseph Garski said the chase began on Upton drive shortly before 3 a.m. and reached speeds up to 90 miles per hour. It ended at the intersection of Pleasant and Main streets, Garski said, when he pulled his patrol car alongside the fleeing auto and forced it to the curb.

Garski said the fleeing auto eluded a roadblock at Main and Broad streets and another at Church and Broad streets.

Raschke, 2818 Sandra terrace, was booked at the Berrien county jail on charges of driving under the influence of intoxicants and fleeing and eluding a police officer.

A wallet containing $1,800 in cash and three checks totaling $1,085 was reported either lost or stolen, St. Joseph township Police said Monday.

Police said Dee Hickmott, 3544 Washington avenue, St. Joseph township, noticed his wallet was missing early Sunday. Police said Hickmott reported he and friends had been to several places during the evening.

St. Joseph Police said St. Joseph high school officials reported the school's administrative area was burglarized over the weekend. The theft was reported Monday morning.

Police said doors that covered a window opening that had been used formerly for the bookstore were forced open. Police believe the break-in occurred while the school building was open for various purposes over the weekend. There were no signs of forced entry to the school building, police said.

Reported stolen was more than $35 in cash from several desks, two portable radios, three stop watches, and a $125 tape recorder and a cassette tape player.

Benton Harbor Patrolman Dale Easton said he arrested a woman Monday after a shot was fired near where he was talking to a man in the 200 block of Garfield avenue.

Booked on a charge of discharging a firearm inside the city was Christine Jackson, 41, of 205 Garfield. Police said she was released after posting $100 bond.

Easton said he had been dispatched to a reported fight at 205 Garfield and had been flagged down by a man who said he was involved, but was leaving. Easton said he heard a shot and saw a woman standing on a nearby porch with a gun in her hand. He said he drew his revolver and ordered her to drop the gun, which she did. No one was injured and no charges were filed in connection with the reported fight.

A Benton Harbor man told city police Monday he chased off a would-be burglar after he was awakened by scratching sounds at his front door about 9 a.m.

Steve Wooden, 28, of 1234 Columbus avenue, said he opened the door and saw a man

Restaurant Damaged

St. Joseph police said a Stevensville driver escaped injury Monday night when his foot apparently slipped from the brake to the accelerator and his car crashed into the side of a restaurant.

The car, driven by Kenneth Eugene Ferry, 64, of 5080 St. Joseph avenue, jumped a 10-inch curb and struck the side of Roky's drive-in, 2629 Cleveland avenue, about 8:25 p.m., police reported.

Damage to the building included a portion of the wall, a broken four by four-foot window and damage to the entrance doorway, according to police.

Police reported the accident occurred in the restaurant parking area and no tickets were issued. No one inside the restaurant was injured, police said.

holding a screwdriver. Wooden said he grabbed a baseball bat, swung it at the man and missed, then threw it at him as he fled.

Wooden said he gave chase and caught the man in the yard, but the man escaped during a struggle. Police said they found pry marks around the door. Wooden was not injured in the incident, police reported.

A thief stole four wrapped gifts from under the Christmas tree at the apartment of Kevin Cox, 1007 1/2 State street, according to a report filed with St. Joseph police.

Cox reported that taken along with the four gifts, valued at $27, were a turquoise ring and bracelet, St. Joseph high school class ring of 1975, and costume jewelry, all valued at about $150.

Benton township police said between $1,300 and $1,400 in hand and power tools were reported stolen from the garage at the James Christopher residence, 1183 Paw Paw avenue.

In Benton Harbor, city police said Ella R. Greenwood, 656 Territorial road, reported her home was ransacked, but what, if anything was taken, had not yet been determined. Police said a rear door was forced open.

Also reported to Benton Harbor police was the theft of a $50 television from the car of Emma Hill, 275 High street, parked at the rear of 268 High.

Three reports of vandalism were filed Monday with Berrien sheriff's deputies and Benton township police.

Deputies said a window was broken at the Daniel Abbott residence, 1800 South Park road, Bainbridge township, and a window at the Mary Lombardo residence, 2126 Lombard road, had a hole in it. Both incidents reportedly occurred about 4:30 p.m. Sunday and the damage was believed to have been caused by pellets from a BB gun, deputies said.

Township police said Gene Brant, 1326 Stewart, reported he found two arrows that had apparently been shot into the aluminum siding of his home. No estimate of damage was reported.

District Judges Faced By 29

Six people demanded examinations, 23 were sentenced, and a charge of arson against a man was dismissed in Berrien District Court.

Asst. Prosecutor Scott Beatty said a charge of arson of a house was dismissed against William E. Prentice, 42, of 7566 Red Arrow highway, Lincoln township, because of lack of evidence. Beatty said Prentice's wife, who was to be one of the main witnesses, was not allowed to testify because of a ruling that a wife can't testify against her husband.

Demanding examinations were:

Fred Mathis, 52, of 1141 McAllister avenue, Benton Harbor, on a charge of assault with a dangerous weapon, a pistol, Dec. 11 against Anna Mathis. Bond was set at $5,000.

Clarence Bryant, 32, of Route 1, Box 181, Covert, on a charge of unlawful driving away a motor vehicle Oct. 27 in Watervliet. Bail was put at $1,500.

Robert E. Stewart, 24, of Galien, on a charge of malicious destruction to property over $100, an auto, Dec. 4 in St. Joseph township. Bond was set at $1,500. He also pleaded innocent to a charge of malicious destruction to property under $100, a building in St. Joseph township Dec. 4. Bail on the second charge was set at $500.

Larry D. Porter, 25, of 1090 Highland avenue, Benton Harbor, on a charge of breaking and entering a house at 621 East Main street, Benton Harbor Dec. 11. Bond was set at $5,000.

Donald A. Crowder, 17, of 710 South Fair avenue, Benton Harbor, on a charge of breaking and entering a house at 1048 East Empire avenue, Benton township, Dec. 12. Bond was set at $5,000. He was also sentenced to fine and cost of $25 or five days in jail for careless driving Dec. 3 in Benton township.

Detroit Pleads Guilty To Van Buren Sex Charge

ARRIVES: Quebec Premier Rene Levesque talks to reporter before checking into his hotel in Ottawa. Levesque is in Ottawa for two-day federal-provincial first ministers conference which began Monday. (AP Wirephoto)

PAW PAW — A 46-year-old Detroit man pleaded guilty Monday in Van Buren circuit court to a charge of third degree criminal sexual conduct growing out of the alleged rape of a 13-year-old Covert girl.

Covert police said Leonard Shepherd was arrested last July 26 after the girl was allegedly forced into a car at knifepoint as she walked along 32nd avenue.

Shepherd was apprehended by three citizens who had been alerted by friends of the girl.

In other cases, James A. Rick, 47, 113 North State street, Gobles, was sentenced by Judge Meyer Warshawsky to serve 90 days in jail, fined $200, and placed on two years probation as a result of his earlier guilty plea to a charge of attempted larceny in a building. The charge involves the reported theft of $26 from the office of Dr. Daniel Ekkens, Gobles, last June 24.

Kim Pond, 18, route 2, Dewey Lake street, Dowagiac, pleaded no contest to a charge of felonious assault against Tpr. Dennis Reinsch of the Paw Paw post on Aug. 10 near Decatur.

Reinsch reported he was fired on by a man armed with a shotgun while he was pursuing a car in connection with an alleged shooting melee in Decatur.

Larry Dean Whittier, 21, route 2, CR-382, Watervliet, pleaded guilty to a charge of larceny by conversion. Whittier allegedly failed to return a loaner car to Stoney's Ford Sales, Gobles, on May 29 which he had been using while his car was in for repairs.

Clegg J. Byrd, 38, Grand Junction, pleaded guilty to a charge of resisting arrest by South Haven city police Nov. 10. Gail Dollar, 21, 201 Walnut street, Bangor, pleaded guilty to a charge of attempting to utter and publish a forged check for $50 Oct. 25 in South Haven.

Carl Jay Leslie, 25, route 2, Lake Brownwood, Paw Paw, pleaded innocent to a charge of receiving and concealing stolen property, a .22-caliber rifle and and shotgun, belonging to Cornelius Cole, Paw Paw, during the second week of October.

Daniel Joseph Brown, 19, 7147 East Beach drive, South Haven, pleaded innocent to a charge of breaking and entering a trailer in South Haven township on Sept. 4.

Donald James Tate, 19, 102 North Center, Hartford, pleaded innocent to a charge of malicious destruction of property, a window at 19 West Main, Hartford, on Nov. 9.

Black Is Questioned

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — Security police arrested one of South Africa's leading black editors early today for questioning but released him eight hours later, the deputy commander of the security police announced.

The journalist was Percy Quoboza, 38-year-old editor of The World, South Africa's biggest black newspaper and chief unofficial source of information on conditions in South Africa's black townships.

It could not be learned immediately what Quoboza was questioned about.

Demands Examination On Weapons Charge

PAW PAW — Thomas Roy Carpita, 29, Park Forest, Ill., demanded a preliminary examination when arraigned in Seventh District court here Monday on a charge of carrying a concealed weapon.

He also stood mute on charges of speeding and possession of marijuana. Bond was set at $1,700 pending hearings Dec. 21.

State police at Paw Paw said Carpita was arrested Sunday after they had stopped a pickup truck for a traffic violation on

I-94 at Paw Paw road. Two suspected marijuana cigarettes and a 9-mm. pistol were discovered during a search of the vehicle, troopers said.

In another case, Laurel Garrison, 23, Comstock, demanded examination on two counts of uttering and publishing no account checks totaling $165 on Nov. 5 and Nov. 7, 1975, in Matlavan.

The hearing was scheduled for Dec. 21 and bond set at $3,500.
